IRONIC UPON ARBITRAMENT

STRIKE PROSPECT GROWS

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 9.—Hopes for an early resumption of the anthracite wage parleys were dashed today by the reply of President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America to the recent letter of Samuel D. Warriner, Chairman of the Anthracite Operators' Conference, who declared that despite the breaking off of relations he was hopeful "that means will be found to compose the differences between us and avoid a suspension."

Mr. Lewis in his letter to Mr. Warriner indicated that only an abandonment by the operators of their opposition to wage increases and the check-off would bring the miners into conference again. In well chosen words, ironically polite, the miners' chief rejected Mr. Warriner's suggestion of arbitration.

Challenged by Mr. Warriner to justify his earlier statement that the miners opposed arbitration because of the "anthracite operators' well-known policy of keeping close to an arbitrator," Mr. Lewis said he referred "to the arbitration proceeding of some years ago when the final decision of the arbitrator was changed between twilight and dawn."

In 1920 the miners expected a wage increase of 27 per cent from President Wilson's arbitration commission. They received 17 per cent.

Mr. Lewis added nothing to his letter in the way of explanation. "It speaks for itself," he said when questioned. It could not be learned whether developments of the last 24 hours had decided the tone of the reply, which it was earlier reported would be as conciliatory as that of Mr. Warriner.

Mr. Lewis's Letter.

Here is Mr. Lewis's reply:

Mr. Samuel D. Warriner, Chairman, Anthracite Operators' Conference, 437 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

My dear Mr. Warriner:—

I acknowledge your favor of the 6th instant. I do not desire to quibble over the fine shades of meaning affecting words and involved phrases. It remains that your Atlantic City conferees informed the mine workers' representatives, including myself, that they would reject any demand that would disturb the factor of mine costs. In addition, they rejected the request for full recognition of the union for some other mysterious reason. Your letter confirms the position of your committee. Be it so. We do not have any inclination to further argue when judgment has been given. I will be glad to hear from you when you abandon this position.

I note your reference to my previous comments upon arbitration. I can well understand your natural irritation in the premises. I referred, of course, to the arbitration proceedings of some years ago when the final decision of the arbitrator was changed between twilight and dawn. You might, if you wish, accept the reference as a compliment from the mine workers to a skilful adversary.

We really do not care to arbitrate. Thanks for the offer. We know that you think the medicine would be good for us, but frankly, we have little faith in your diagnosis. It will be long before we recover completely from your previous arbitration treatment, and until we do we will modestly decline to accept your prescription. Very truly yours,

JOHN L. LEWIS, President.

Strike More Likely.

The prospect of a strike of 155,000 mine workers upon the expiration of the present agreement on Sept. 1 was heightened by the Lewis letter. The Federal authorities have made it plain that they intend to take no hand in the situation unless an emergency is created after a strike is called. Secretary of Labor Davis is due from Europe on Aug. 25, a week before the expiration of the anthracite agreement. If he deems it wise, he may, acting unofficially, arrange a conference of mine workers and operators, but the time will then be short and it it feared here that it would be too late to reach an agreement and avoid a suspension Sept. 1.

Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, as Chief Executive of the State in which all the hard coal mines are located, may, if he wishes, call both sides to a conference at Harrisburg. That is apparently the only possibility of getting the disputants together in time to frame an agreement and avert a walk-out.

A strike is certain, according to the miners, unless the anthracite operators, as Mr. Lewis states bluntly in his letter, abandon their position of "no wage concessions and no check-off."

The unionists believe that a strike will win for them some of the demands which were adopted late in June at the convention of the three anthracite districts. These include a wage increase of 10 per cent. for contract miners, a dollar a day for day men, payment for certain "dead work" and the free furnishing of pneumatic drills and compressed air to operate them.

To grant the miners' demands, according to Mr. Warriner, would add $100,000,000 annually to the coal production bill of the operators and would mean between $1 and $2 a ton addi-

Severe Earthquake in Smyrna Razes Village, Damages Others

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 9 (AP).—Severe earthquake shocks on Thursday and Friday in the Villayet of Smyrna razed one village and badly damaged several others.

The loss of life is believed to have been small, but many persons were injured.

PARIS, Aug. 9 (AP).—A Havas dispatch from Smyrna says that one entire village was destroyed and that several persons were injured during earthquake shocks Saturday night and today at Hamadieh and Denizli. In the latter place the railway station was destroyed and a number of houses collapsed.

The shocks occurred between 10 o'clock Saturday evening and 8:30 o'clock Sunday morning.

ROB SUBWAY BOOTH, GIVE OUT CHANGE

Members of early-morning dance or supper parties starting home on the Seventh Avenue subway yesterday morning received change from an armed hold-up man in the busiest booth in the Times Square station. None knew of the presence of the robber, however, for in every respect he acted the part of the cashier or change agent and handed out the proper amounts even when bills that might have tempted his cupidity were thrust under the window.

In the booth was another robber, who swept the night receipts of the booth into a canvas bag, and John Duncan, 45 years old, 185 Concord Street, Brooklyn, the change agent of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company. Duncan's hands were securely tied behind him and he was powerless to move, even if he had been inclined to ignore the muzzle of a pistol that kept digging at his back to remind him to keep still.

The daring hold-up was perpetrated in Booth 4—the first booth approached by passengers entering the Times Square station through the street entrance at the northwest corner of Forty-second Street and Seventh Avenue. Only a small volume of travel was filtering through the turnstiles. It was 3 o'clock in the morning.

Caught at Turnstiles.

Duncan had been on duty since 7 o'clock in the evening. The receipts from the Saturday night theatre crowds were large. The change agent, who was about to be relieved, opened the side door of his booth just a crack, saw no one and decided to seize that opportunity to harvest the crop from the row of turnstiles in front of his booth.

He had unlocked one after another of the battery of turnstiles, emptied them of their nickels, which he dumped into a canvas bag, closed the money receptacle of the last turnstile and was just starting back to his booth when he found himself face to face with two armed men, according to the story told by Duncan to detectives of the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station.

Duncan said the men covered him so quickly that he believed they must have been hiding behind the change booth. One of the armed men approached the change maker so closely that he seemed to be about to confide a secret. Speaking in a low voice, he ordered Duncan to get back into the booth instantly without making any noise.

So quietly did the robbers go about their business and so deftly did they juggle their pistols that they kept Duncan covered without attracting attention from passengers entering or leaving the subway station. The intruders probably were taken for inspectors as they followed the change maker into the booth and closed the door.

Bind Agent's Hands.

Average Age in New York State Has Risen From 24 Years in 1840 to 30 Years Now

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Aug. 9.—Under the caption "We Are Getting Older," the current issue of Health News, issued by the State Department of Health, declares that "the estimated average age of our people now is 30 years and 3 months, whereas eighty-five years ago we were barely out of our 'teens." The following table of the average age of the population of New York is based on returns from the Federal census:

Year.	Average Age.
1850	24 years 7 months
1870	26 years 7 months
1880	27 years 8 months
1910	28 years 11 months
1920	29 years 8 months
1925 (est.)	30 years 3 months

"The figures given must not be interpreted as indicating the number of years by which the span of life has actually been lengthened," the article says. "These facts may be gleaned from another source; namely, from so-called life tables. Unfortunately for this State, we have no tables for the earlier years. We shall, therefore, compare the 'expectation of life'—the number of years a new-born baby was expected to live in 1901 (the first year for which we have these data)—with 1910 and 1920:

EXPECTATION OF LIFE.

Year.	Males.	Females.
1901	45 years 7 months	49 years 3 months
1910	47 years 11 months	51 years 11 months
1920	52 years 10 months	55 years 8 months

"Thus in only twenty years the expectation of life at birth has increased for males by 7 years and 3 months; for females, by 6 years and 5 months.

"Two factors have exerted the greatest influence upon the age composition of this State as well as of most of the other States in this country—immigration and the advance in preventive and curative medicine. Progress in public health work has increased the duration of life of the people, and therefore raised its average age. On the other hand, immigration has retarded the normal aging process, by adding every year to our population thousands of young persons from overseas. If the purpose of present restrictive immigration laws is carried out the average age of the people in the future will mount even at a higher rate than it has in the past."

ONE DEAD, MANY HURT AS RIVAL FACTIONS CLASH IN BERLIN

BERLIN, Aug. 9.—One member of the Stahlhelm, a reactionary organization, was killed and a number of members of the Stahlhelm and the Republican organization Reichsbanner were wounded in a clash this afternoon between Monarchists and Republican groups during the preliminary celebration of the anniversary of the adoption of the German Constitution.

A detachment of the Reichbanner, marching through Kurfuerstendamm, Berlin's residential section, en route to a big Republican demonstration, was attacked by the reactionary group. The Reichsbanner leader, who tried to check the Stahlhelm forces' advance by firing shots into the air, later fired into the crowd which refused to halt, killing a member of the Stahlhelm.

Police Stop Free-for-All Fight.

Several members of both sides were injured in the free-for-all fight which followed before the police broke it up. The Reichsbanner leader surrendered to the police.

In Treptow, which is a suburb of Berlin, 150,000 Republican militants paraded across the common in military formation, drilling like veteran soldiers. President Hoersing of the Reichsbanner, addressing the crowd, reported the membership in this Republican protective organization as now numbering 3,000,000, all of whom, he said, were potential soldiers should the republic be forced to fight for its existence.

Already provincial delegations, more than 50,000 strong, including a contingent from Austria, have arrived in Berlin to swell the ranks of the Reichsbanner League. And on this occasion, unlike that of President von Hindenburg's inauguration, the black, white and red flag of imperialism is conspicuous by its absence, while the banner of the republic is everywhere to the fore.

The Republican press stresses the "Bigger Germany" character of this celebration, supposedly commemorative only of the creation of the Weimar Constitution six years ago.

"Living Symbol" of Pan-Germanism.

Writing in the Democratic Vossische Zeitung, Georg Bernhard, Germany's foremost Liberal publicist, qualifies the presence of the Austrian delegation as a "living symbol of the Pan-German significance of the Republican colors, black, red and gold." He continued:

"These colors are not only the standard of Germany's political unity but of German culture and Germanism as well. Wherever Germans live, either as individuals abroad or in masses on foreign soil, there the colors of the young republic must demonstrate the cultural community and intellectual union of all who speak and think in German."

The Berliner Tageblatt observes:

"It would be self-deception to pretend that German Republicans approach the anniversary of their Constitution this year happy and content. Certainly the republic stands fast, but it is not the republic we aspired to when, six years ago, the great work of the Democrats, the Democratic Catholic Centre and the Socialists arose out of the chaos which was the heritage of the old régime.

"For the first time since then there is a Government of the Right at the helm, and in the Presidential election the opponents of the republic were victorious. Yet since they have been in power the Right parties have had to pursue the foreign policy that killed Rathenau, and by offering voluntary renunciation of Alsace-Lorraine they have gone much further than any Democratic Government did.

"Moreover, a Nationalist Minister of the Interior issues invitations for the celebration of the republic's birthday and, on the palace of President von Hindenburg and the public buildings occupied by Nationalist Ministers there will fly the German Republican colors—black, red and gold."

Find Urn and Bangles in Rhodesian Ruins; Experts Says They May Be 10,000 Years Old

JOHANNESBURG, Aug. 9.—An ancient copper urn, containing five thick copper bangles, supposedly taken from the legs of dead slaves, has been found among the wonderful terraced ruins of Ivanga, in Southern Rhodesia. When exposed to the air the urn crumbled into dust.

The find is said to be of first importance archaeologically. The age of the urn, which was found ten feet deep under alluvial soil and which is the only man made article ever found in these terraced ruins, is estimated by the finder to be from 8,000 to 10,000 years.

The Ivanga district is noted for its ruins, which cover an area of sixty by forty miles. They consist of the remains of stone buildings, aqueducts and terraces. No clue has hitherto been obtained regarding the builders of these ruins.

South Africa has long been a centre for archaeological research and has yielded important discoveries in the last few months. Many scholars are inclined to look upon the region as the cradle of humanity as a result of the recent discovery there of a skull of a native who died a few weeks ago which corresponds entirely to the famous Boskop skull, one of the most primitive known.

The Taungs area is particularly rich in fossils of archaeological and anthropological importance and is now being combed for data by several expeditions.

The Rhodesian skull found at Broken Hill, considerably further north than Taungs, has been taken by some students to show the migration south of the ancestors of man from the equatorial regions of Central Africa to the open forests and short grass plains of South Africa.

ASK YOUNG TO HEAD AIRWAY COMPANY

Promoters of $50,000,000 Corporation Expect Dawes Plan Organizer Will Accept.

HAMMOND TELLS OF PLANS

Great Air Liners Would Serve Chief Cities of Country and Go Abroad.

Special to The New York Times.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 9.—Plans of John Hays Hammond Jr., Herbert Satterlee of New York and General Clarence B. Edwards to establish a daily air service linking the chief cities of the United States and ultimately to create a transatlantic dirigible system were revealed in detail today by Mr. Hammond.

If this company, known as the Airways Corporation, obtains a lease of the Los Angeles, requested of the Government for experimental purposes, the plans contemplate a dirigible daily schedule between New York and Chicago to be covered in twelve hours. The proposed rate of mileage is 10 cents, or $75 for the trip from New York to Chicago.

If using the Los Angeles in the experimental stages proves successful, the company purposes to extend the system with faster ships to include Boston, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Chicago, Omaha and St. Louis. A second route takes in Southern cities and goes as far as Havana.

Owen D. Young May Head Company.

The promoters have outlined the program to Owen D. Young of the General Electric Company and the genius in the Dawes plan, and requested him to become head of the $50,000,000 corporation. He has the proposal under consideration and reports are that he will accept if the Government acts favorably in leasing the Los Angeles and in the enactment of air navigation legislation.

"The dirigible railways proposed by us will not be in competition with the railroads," Mr. Hammond explained today. "We have discussed the scheme with the heads of the leading railroads and they welcome the running of a daily air service between the chief cities of the United States. They say it will relieve them of some of the great expense of maintaining fast trains, which are not paying.

"If the Government cooperates to the extent of leasing the Los Angeles to us and manning it with naval officers for the experimental stages our company plans to build airships double the capacity of the Los Angeles and faster. Our plans call for ships of 5,000,000 cubic feet, capable of carrying 100 passengers with baggage and fifty tons of freight of a perishable nature.

"The Los Angeles is not fast enough nor of proper carrying capacity ofr final commercial use. What we ask of the Government is to aid us in the experimental stages so that we can determine whether if the air route were developed with faster ships and more comfortable ones we could afford to go ahead and expend the $50,000,000 it is estimated will be required to build a dirigible air service to connect the chief cities in this country.

"Of course a greater capitalization will be necessary to carry out our ultimate plans to place commodious ships in the transatlantic service. The development of service to Europe will come only after it is shown that the ships will pay interest from 8 to 10 per cent. on the money invested in American air development.

Cities Offer to Build Masts.

"Already two cities, Omaha and Chicago, have offered to build mooring masts which cost about $250,000 and provide other loading facilities. We are greatly encouraged with the offers of municipal and private assistance already made if our plans are carried out with the cooperation of the Federal Government.

"We would use the Los Angeles only between New York and Chicago. The travel between these two office is the largest in the country and if the service proved successful then our company would extend the route, with new and better ships, to Omaha and St. Louis and cover Boston, Detroit, Buffalo and Pittsburgh. The distance to Chicago from New York by air is 750 miles and our charge would be 10 cents a mile, or $75, which is not much in excess of the Pullman and passenger rates on fast trains between these two points. The distance of the extended route to include the eight cities mentioned would be 2,800 miles.

"Our plans ultimately propose to have all these cities connected with service to Atlanta, Havana and Panama, making a route of over 4,000 miles. If these

BROWNING GIRL QUITS CINDERELLA ROLE

OMITS TO SAY A GOOD-BYE

Realtor Says He Is Amazed but Admires Her—Will Never Adopt Another.

Edward W. Browning, wealthy real estate broker, announced last night that Mary Louise Spas Browning, the young woman he adopted in the belief that she was 16 years old and not 21 years, as she really is, had left his custody. He said that she had accepted an offer to enter the movies and to write her story for publication.

The realtor said that an agent, who said that he represented a movie firm and also could get her story into print, made the offer yesterday afternoon to the girl in the home of Robert H. Dunnet, 1,181 East Ninety-first Street, Canarsie, Queens. Mr. Browning had placed the girl in the home of Mr. Dunnet, a business associate, pending his application tomorrow to Surrogate Daniel A. Noble to have the adoption set aside on the ground that Mary Louise had misstated her age in the adoption papers.

Mr. Browning said he had tried to persuade the young woman not to accept the offer, but that she had finally decided to take it. Mr. Browning said that he had spent $20,000 in his effort to make the young woman his foster-daughter and a companion to Dorothy Sunshine Browning, 9 years old, who was adopted five years ago. He said the sum included the cost of forty frocks which he purchased for her.

Tells of Agent's Visit.

"The agent telephoned me at the Kew Gardens Inn," said Browning. "He told me that he would like to help me out of my difficulty, and after some conversation I invited him over for dinner last night. He came and had dinner and talked. He outlined what he had in view for Mary and I told him that I thought it would be better for him to await the outcome of the proceeding looking to annulment of the adoption. Then he left."

Mr. Browning said that he had the agent's offer on his mind when he arose yesterday morning, and after thinking it over he decided that perhaps it would be wise to move the girl out to the Dunnet Summer home in Rockville Centre, L. I. He was opposed to taking this step, but if it were to save the girl annoyance—as he thought—he would motor her out to the Long Island town.

With this idea in mind, Browning telephoned to Mr. Dunnet, and when the business associates joined him at the Kew Gardens Inn they got into their machines and went out to Rockville Centre. Mrs. Laura G. Dunnet, mother of Mr. Dunnet, said that she would be glad to open her home to Mary Louise for the time being. After riding about Brooklyn to prevent persons from following them, the motorists went to Canarsie.

In the meantime Mary Louise, with Mrs. Dunnet, the little daughter of the Dunnets, and two trained nurses employed by Browning, had remained in the frame dwelling there in seclusion. The shades of the house were drawn and the neighbors were unaware who was there.

According to Miss Virginia Martin, who was employed by Browning to be her companion, the girl passed the morning in and out of hysteria. The threatened loss of her future with the millionaire caused her to spend Saturday night in almost unbroken tears. Yesterday morning she cheered up a trifle and began to move about the house, scribbling literary ventures on a small pad.

Mr. Browning and Mr. Dunnet reached the house shortly after 3 o'clock. The agent had arrived before them. So had word that Mary Louise was in the house. A crowd had gathered so great that Mrs. Dunnet appealed to the police. Two mounted policemen were sent around and took up a patrol that lasted until 7:30 o'clock last night.

According to Mr. Browning, the discovery that the agent was already trying to persuade Mary Louise to leave occasioned him distress.

"He repeatedly told the girl that he could obtain her a position in the motion picture industry, and that he could also provide her with an opportunity

HE ALLEGES SELF-DEFENSE

PLANNED FLIGHT TO MEXICO

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 9.—Cornered today in an Oakland apartment, where he had been hiding since the explosion he contrived after the murder of an itinerant laborer in the Pacific Cellulose Company's plant at Walnut Creek, Charles Henry Schwartz shot and killed himself.

The chemist and head of the company who, in an attempt to perpetrate a $200,000 insurance fraud, had lured the wanderer into his laboratory and murdered and mutilated him in the hope that the charred corpse would be named as his own, had been the object of a nation-wide search for nine days following the blast that wrecked his factory on July 30.

The murderer sent a bullet into his brain at the Nottingham Apartments, 446 Forty-first Street, Oakland. Detectives from Berkeley and Oakland, acting on special information, had the place surrounded, but the sound of the shot as they attempted to force the door to his apartment apprised them beforehand that they had been cheated out of their quarry alive.

On a table near his body was a death note addressed to his widow, Mrs. Alice Schwartz, 2,901 Rockbridge Boulevard, Berkeley, in which he made a full confession of the murder.

Mrs. Schwartz, who, since the murder, has been dry-eyed and insistent that the body found in the laboratory was that of her husband, could not be reached today. She sent word through her attorney that she had no statement to make.

That the chemist sought to escape into Mexico at a propitious time was evident from a map showing all the railroads and highways of that country and a Pullman ticket to Barstow, both found in Schwartz's effects.

Apartment Manager Gave Clue.

It was through C. W. Hayward, manager of the apartment house where Schwartz sought refuge, and N. B. Edmunds of Berkeley that Schwartz was located.

On Thursday morning, July 29, the day that the "too perfect crime" was executed, Schwartz appeared before Hayward.

"I want to rent an apartment and I will be here tonight," he told the manager.

Hayward said that he had known Schwartz casually for more than two years under the name of Harold Warren. He readily gave the man an apartment.

The next morning at 4 o'clock Schwartz stumbled into the place, limping, bruised and visibly disturbed. He awoke Hayward.

"I have had trouble with the police in Santa Clara," he said, excitedly. "I was in an automobile accident there and there was booze in my car. There were three men with me. What happened to them I don't know. But I escaped with a sprained ankle. I will have to lay low for a while."

From then on Schwartz did not leave the apartment. Occasionally he walked furtively through the hallways, but always first making sure that no one was outside his door. He took all his meals with the Hayward family, and, although usually nervous, he never lost his characteristic bravado.

On several occasions at the table he discussed volubly the Walnut Creek explosion, always urging the theory that the body was that of Schwartz.

Several days after Schwartz's arrival, Hayward grew suspicious. He told Ed-

Chandelier of 1766, Missing for 87 Years, Is Found Hidden in Attic of St. Paul's Chapel

Hidden away in an attic the great crystal chandelier which hung in St. Paul's Episcopal Chapel, Broadway between Fulton and Vesey Streets, until 1838, was found last Spring, it was learned yesterday, when the work of restoring the interior of the church began. It is planned to utilize this chandelier in the new scheme of decoration and the other smaller chandeliers if they can be found.

The great chandelier was laid away in the attic when the chapel was last renovated. The twenty-four smaller chandeliers were given to various churches. The present location of some of them are known, and an effort is being made to discover the others and have them returned.

"It is hoped that many of the original ones may be returned through the cooperation of the churches which have had them in their possession," said a statement issued yesterday from the office of Trinity Parish, Fulton and Church Streets, of which St. Paul's is a part.

St. Paul's is the oldest building of worship in New York City, it having been erected in 1766. Arrangements have been completed to restore the interior as nearly as possible to its original form when George Washington worshipped there.

The work of restoring the church has begun with the chancel. It is under the direction of Thomas Nash, architect for Trinity parish. Because the whole interior is to be restored to the Colonial Gregorian style the coloring of the chancel will be white, gray and gold—rather than dull brown and gold, which are the present colors.

Two rows of pews have been removed together with the floor underneath, and this space is to be tiled to match the rest of the floor. When this flooring was taken up the beams were found to have been laid directly on the ground when the building was erected in 1766, and were in perfect condition. The earth underneath these cedar beams is probably that of the original wheat field in which St. Paul's was built.

'Too Hot to Talk,' Says Dawes, But He Tells a Fish Story

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 9 (AP).—When newspaper men met in his car here Vice President Dawes, on his way to Chicago at the conclusion of a Western vacation, they found him in his bare feet, collarless, "breaking in" a new pipe and decidedly ruffled.

When he greeted C. W. Delamatre, an Omaha attorney and his former college classmate, Mr. Delamatre suggested that he talk with the reporters first.

"It's too darned hot to talk," Mr. Dawes replied.

RADIO AIDS SEARCH FOR EVELYN HOBBS

Mother Is Near Breakdown as Police, Parents and Friends Fail to Trace Her.

Evelyn Jacqueline Hobbs, the 18-year-old society girl who left her home at 911 Park Avenue Saturday morning for a hike in Westchester County, had not returned last night, and her father, Elon St. Clair Hobbs, a lawyer, said no word had been received from her either at his home here or his country home at Twin Lakes, Conn., where her brothers and sister are staying. He said he felt sure, however, that she would return home this morning.

Miss Hobbs's disappearance was reported to the police on Saturday, and yesterday a general alarm was broadcast by radio. As nothing has been heard of her and as her movements have not been traced since she walked out of her home, her father was very much alarmed.

Mrs. Hobbs, who had been resting at a hotel here after caring for her daughter during a long illness, returned to the Park Avenue home on Saturday afternoon, and Mr. Hobbs said that after talking with her he felt that his daughter's absence might be explained by the fact that she knew her mother would be away over the week-end and had decided to take advantage of this to go for a walk in the country. She had been ill for so long that he thought she simply forgot that her parents would be worried when she did not return.

Thought Nurse Was With Her.

Mr. Hobbs took the blame for her disappearance upon himself, for he heard her leave the house, but as he was in bed he concluded that the nurse who had been caring for the girl must be with her. Later he found she had left without saying a word to any one.

"Mrs. Hobbs was away at the time at a hotel in the city," he said, "for she was worn out from caring for our daughter during her long illness and thought she would rest better in a hotel, where she could be completely isolated. She returned home yesterday afternoon and she came to the conclusion that Evelyn had merely gone away for the week-end because her mother was also away. We are sure we will hear from her tomorrow."

Mrs. Hobbs was on the verge of a nervous breakdown, he said, and should be in bed, although she would not rest until she heard from her daughter. Although the police were notified and Mr. Hobbs and his friends did everything they could to trace the girl's movements, nothing was learned to indicate where she went after leaving the apartment house. The elevator man was the last one to see her, for he was dozing on a bench early in the morning when Miss Hobbs asked him to help her open the heavy door leading to the street.

She had been in ill health for a year, her father said, having left school because of her weakness. For several months she had suffered from tonsilitis, and an operation for removal of her tonsils was performed at her home a short time ago. Since then she had been constantly attended by a nurse.

Miss Hobbs had only $25 with her when she went away, for her father had given her $20, with which she planned to do some shopping, and at the time

RICHMOND REVOLTS; ANTI-HYLAN TICKET TO ENTER THE RACE

Judge J. H. Tiernan Announces He Will Run for Borough President There.

CURLEY QUITS THE MAYOR

Assistant Corporation Counsel Will Be a Candidate for District Attorney.

WALKER IDOL AT BALL GAME

Has Picture Taken With Babe Ruth—Hylan Denies Charge of Disloyalty to Smith.

Democrats in the Borough of Richmond, regarded as a veritable Hylan stronghold, raised the banner of revolt yesterday against the renomination of Mayor Hylan for a third term. The smallest of all the boroughs, Richmond was the first to decide to place in the field a local ticket in opposition to the prospective nominees on the Hylan ticket who have not as yet been named.

The uprising against Mayor Hylan in Richmond will mean that in every borough where the regular Democratic organization is nominally pledged to the Mayor for a third term the Tammany-Bronx Democratic entente behind the candidacy of Senator James J. Walker will have organized local support for their candidates. The prevailing opinion in the Borough of Richmond is that the Mayor will be smothered on primary day by the organized opposition in that borough. Shall Governor Smith or W. R. Hearst lead the Democratic Party in City and State, will be the clear-cut issue upon which the battle will be waged in Richmond.

The nominal leader of the anti-Hylan Democratic faction in Richmond is Bertram G. Eadie, who is Chairman of what is known as the regular Tammany organization of Staten Island. Mr. Eadie is a prominent Richmond lawyer. The real leader, however, is J. Harry Tiernan of Tompkinsville, County Judge and Surrogate of Richmond. He is looked upon as beyond doubt the most powerful figure in the Democratic organization of the borough. He made it known yesterday that he would turn his back on the position he now holds and enter the Democratic primaries as a candidate for Borough President of Richmond against John A. Lynch, the incumbent, who will be a candidate for re-election on the Hylan ticket, although his term on the bench has four years more to run.

Curley Also Quits.

Announcement was made also that Assistant Corporation Counsel Thomas F. Curley, who received his present appointment from the Hylan Administration, had quit the Mayor and would become candidate for the nomination for District Attorney against District Attorney Albert C. Fach, who has been slated to run for renomination on the Hylan ticket.

The announcement of the revolt in Staten Island, which was easily the biggest development of the day, fell like a bomb in the Hylan camp. David S. Rendt, the Democratic borough leader, who all through the recent conferences of the Big Five stuck to Hylan and was regarded as more strongly committed to the Mayor than any of the other leaders, evidently is in for a big fight. The news of the Richmond development came about the time when the Tammany-Bronx entente's candidate for Mayor, Senator James J. Walker, was being lionized by the baseball fans at the Yankee Stadium, where he was photographed with Babe Ruth and Colonel Jacob Ruppert, President and owner of the Yankees, after 20,000 spectators had cheered and applauded the candidate for several minutes as the "Father of Sunday Baseball." Senator Walker was sponsor in the upper house at Albany of a bill which made professional baseball on Sunday possible.

The revolting Democrats of Staten Island will open headquarters and take steps to place their ticket offficially in the running today. Their fighting base will be in the Hugo Building at St. George. A Walker headquarters will be opened simultaneously in Brooklyn in the Albee Theatre Building, on De Kalb Avenue, while the anti-Hylan and anti-Connolly Democrats in Queens, another borough included in Mayor Hylan's triple alliance, will mobilize for action at a meeting to be held for organization purposes tomorrow.

Resent Rendt's Action.

Bertram G. Eadie, the anti-Hylan leader in Richmond, made this statement last night:

"The rank and file of the Democratic Party on Staten Island feel that a great injustice has been done to them in the attempt made by David S. Rendt to deliver them to Mayor Hylan for a third term.

"Judge Tiernan did not consider entering the fight against Hylanism until W. R. Hearst issued orders that Tammany Hall must renominate the Mayor. The order was taken by Judge Tiernan's supporters to mean that Hylan's renomination would result in the ruin of the Democratic Party in the whole city.

"The thing that clinched the decision on the part of Judge Tiernan to go into the fight on Hylan came with the designation of Senator James J. Walker as Tammany's candidate. Senator Walker is held in high esteem on Staten Island and has a very big following here.

"During the leadership of Thomas R. McGinley, he repeatedly announced in public that he would support Tammany Hall this year in the city and borough election.

"Upon McGinley's death less than three months ago, the general belief among Staten Island Democrats was that his successor would carry out his promises to support Tammany Hall, in this respect for the good of the Democratic Party throughout the city.

"Mr. David S. Rendt was selected to succeed Mr. McGinley without an election. It was with amazement that the Staten Island Democrats read his letter of several weeks ago to one of the members of Mayor Hylan's cabinet, in which he stated that he would support the Mayor in his effort to gt a third term nomination. He had no authority to give such support, which could come only from a majority vote of the Richmond County Democratic Committee. He has received no such authority from the committee.

"The issue in Staten Island is as clear cut as in any other borough—it is, Shall we as Democrats follow the leadership of Governor Smith or that of W. R. Hearst."

Stands By Tiernan.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Curley said:

"I served under Governor Smith in the State Legislature and with Senator Walker and Joseph V. McKee. I know their sterling qualities and I would not be true to my conscience were I to stand by and not help in their fight for nomination and election.

"More than that—I feel we need a man of the virile type of Judge Tiernan to represent Staten Island in the Board of Estimate. That island's cause for the last eight years has been left to the disposal of the Mayor. What we need is a Borough President like Judge Tiernan who is familiar with the needs of Staten Island. Then we will get results and not merely lip service."

Judge Tiernan, when he last ran for his present office, had the support of the Richmond Republicans. It is believed that the Republicans might support him again as an anti-Hylan candidate for Borough President. Of course, that will be used as a strong argument in his favor in his primary fight against Borough President Lynch.

Mayor Hylan made public yesterday a statement in which he entered a complete denial of the charge made against him by Martin G. McCue, Clerk of the Surrogates' Court and one of the leaders in the Twelfth Assembly District. Mr. McCue, in a speech at his clubhouse on Friday night, carged the Mayor with disloyalty to Governor Smith as a candidate for the Presidential nomination in the Democratic National Convention a year ago, and, incidentally, disloyalty to the Democratic organizations in State and city, which were committed to his candidacy.

Hylan Tells of Call on McAdoo.

McCue accused Mayor Hylan of flirting with William G. McAdoo, Governor Smith's chief opponent. Mayor Hylan said yesterday that he had called on Mr. McAdoo at the latter's request, and that he had asked the Mayor if he would consider the nomination for Vice President on his ticket. Mayor Hylan said he told Mr. McAdoo he did not want a nomination and favored Governor Smith. He also said he intervened with William R. Hearst on the Governor's behalf.

Here is Mayor Hylan's statement:

"Martin G. McCue, Clerk of the Surrogate Court, if quoted correctly, made a most unfair statement at his clubhouse against me. I would not under ordinary circumstances reply. But his statement is incorrect and unfair to me and the people should know the truth so that the false impression he is desirous of spreading will be nailed.

"He either does not know what he is talking about or is maliciously telling an untruth. He said that I went to William G. McAdoo to give him aid and comfort. William G. McAdoo was a candidate for President. Mr. McAdoo requested an interview. I saw and talked with him. He asked me if I would consider the nomination for Vice-President on a ticket with him. I told him that I was with Governor Smith for the nomination for the Presidency and would, under no circumstances, accept a nomination.

"That McCue and the people he is trying to mislead may know the truth as to what I did for Governor Smith, I will tell at least this one thing I did.

"One of Governor Smith's managers for the Presidential nomination, Judge Morgan J. O'Brien, came to me at the City Hall during the convention at Madison Square Garden and asked me to request Mr. Hearst to use his good offices with the late Colonel William Jennings Bryan to get his support for Governor Smith for the Presidency if possible.

"I made the appointment with Mr. Hearst immediately in accordance with his request and did all I could to help Governor Smith. When he was nominated for Governor last Fall and on every other occasion, I have supported him by campaigning all over the city in his behalf. I feel that a few Tammany leaders, in placing a minority Tammany ticket in sympathy with the traction increase-fare interests in the field against the regular Democratic city ticket for Mayor on which my name will be placed by the majority of the leaders, was a most ungrateful thing to do to me. I have given Tammany every recognition and help possible for almost eight long years since I have been in the Mayor's office. Worse than this ungratefulness is the spreading by lying of propaganda against me.

"If the great leader of Tammany, Charles F. Murphy, was living there would be no minority Tammany increase-fare ticket against me in the primary."

Hylan Spends Day at Home.

Mayor Hylan spent most of the day at his Bushwick Avenue home. Last night he went to Ebbett's Field in Brooklyn where he was cheered by a big crowd at an outdoor concert of massed bands which had been arranged under municipal auspices.

The Walker campaign is getting a flying start. Headquarters for Manhattan were opened yesterday at the Hotel Commodore, where Senator Walker's colleague, Senator Bernard Downing, probably will be in charge as campaign manager. Before tomorrow morning there will be Walker fighting bases in all the other boroughs as well and by the middle of the present week the campaign for the Tammany-Bronx candidate will be in full swing.

Tammany leader George W. Olvany said last night that he was being simply overwhelmed with offers of aid from Democratic organizations and individuals in the three boroughs nominally behind Hylan. In Queens Democrats from all parts of the borough will meet and organize for Walker at a gathering to be held at the Jamaica Club at Jamaica. The Queens headquarters probably will be located in that locality with sub bases in other parts of the borough.

"Amazing is the only word that describes the way these offers of help from regular Democrats in Brooklyn and Queens have been pouring into our headquarters in Fourteenth Street," said Judge Olvany. "We have been getting them from Richmond, too, though not in such volume. Since the three leading regular candidates were designated last Thursday a large part of my time has been given to reading letters from voters in these boroughs praising our ticket and pledging the heartiest support. The telephones have been ringing almost without let-up, all the messages being in the same tone."

Speakers Offer Aid.

Secretary James A. Egan of Tammany Hall said yesterday that with active preparations under way for an intensive campaign for Walker and his running mates in every Assembly district in the city volunteer speakers were offering their services in great number.

"Senator Walker is eager to get the constructive program he is advocating before the voters in every part of the city," Mr. Egan said. "We are mapping out a campaign intinerary for him that will keep him speaking four or five hours every night. He will make the ordinary whirlwind campaign look like a dead calm."

The leaders of the Hylan triple alliance, John H. McCooey of Brooklyn, Borough President Connolly of Queens and David S. Rendt, the Democratic leader of Richmond, conferred briefly yesterday, but made no progress toward perfecting the Hylan slate, which, it was stated, would be promulgated early this evening.

On the eve of their final conference for that purpose Mr. McCooey was the recipient of a communication from former Assemblyman Thomas E. Willmott, Chairman of the Municipal Civil League, calling upon him to drop Hylan.

In his letter Mr. Willmott said:

"Twenty thousand enrolled Democrats of this county urge you to save the Democracy of Brooklyn from its suicidal attempt to force upon the people another four years of Hylanism.

"It must be apparent to you, and to those district leaders who are in touch with the voters, that the designation of John F. Hylan for the Democratic nomination for a third term will arouse against our party in this borough the bitter opposition of tens of thousands of loyal Democrats who agree with the leaders of New York and the Bronx Democracy that a continuance of Hylan policy is unthinkable.

"It is not too late for you at this eleventh hour to insure a victory for the democracy in Kings County. The defeat of Hylan as the designated candidate at the primaries, which is inevitable, must reflect lasting discredit upon your own leadership and the wisdom of the county committee and plunge our local organization into a hopeless fight against a popular Governor from our own party. Our poll of business men showed a hostility to Hylan fully equal to that revealed among labor men and city employes. It is astounding to think of a designation of Hylan in the face of returns which are well known to you and which should make a county leader glad that he has been warned in time."

SEE OPPOSITION TO MILLER.

Friends Say Influences Are at Work to Defeat His Renomination.

Friends of Borough President Julius Miller of Manhattan have complained that after the showing he had made during the four years he had served in his present office, influences were at work to defeat him for a renomination, due to his failure to do the bidding of certain district leaders where patronage or contracts were concerned.

The name of Borough President Miller is on the tentative local slate which will come up for discussion at a meeting of the Tammany Executive Committee tomorrow afternoon, when a candidate for Borough President and county offices are to be picked.

At least two contestants for the Borough President's office will be discussed at the meeting. One is City Magistrate Max S. Levine, head of the Grand Street Boys' Association and a former Tammany district leader on the east side. The other is State Senator Nathan Straus, who returned from Europe last week and who has been urged recently as a candidate for President of the Aldermanic Board. The name of Senator Straus will be formally submitted to Tammany Leader Olvany this morning with resolutions adopted by the Downtown Chamber of Commerce, strongly urging his designation.

A lively contest for the Shrievalty designation is expected too. Two candidates are in the field, James J. Hines, leader of the Eleventh Assembly District, a recent insurgent, and Charles W. Culkin of the Third Assembly District. A third entry appeared yesterday when friends of Martin G. McCue, Tammany leader in the Twelfth and Clerk of the Surrogates' Court, got busy behind a boom for him, either for the nomination for Sheriff or for County Clerk. Culkin is regarded as the best bet for the Shrievalty designation at present.

ASSAILS PARTY MACHINES.

Socialist Mayoralty Candidate Attacks Both Major Groups.

The conference of the Big Five and the outcome were made the topic of a letter sent out yesterday to leaders of his party by the Rev. Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for Mayor. In this communication he pays his respect to Democrats and Republicans alike.

"Not the people's interest but the personal interest of politicians and privilege holders have been uppermost," he wrote in comment on the conferences of the Big Five Democratic Borough leaders to pick a candidate for Mayor.

"Mayor Hylan's failures are written large in the history of the last eight years, but how contemptible is the slogan accepted not only by Olvany but by the anti-Hylan press: 'Any one to beat Hylan.' 'Any one' ex-Judge and present Boss Olvany has decided is to be Senator Walker, on the strength of whose prospective nomination Wall Street tipsters advised the purchase of I. R. T. and B. M. T. stock.

"In the strife between Hylan and Walker in Tammany's effort to repudiate its part in the last eight years without guarantees for the future, we need not take sides. But it will be our own fault if out of that strife we do not educate New York to the ugly facts of its subjection to political machines which only cry 'Stop, thief!' when the wrong man has his hand in Father Knickerbocker's pocket.

"This applies to Sam Koenig's Republican outfit as well as to the Democratic machine to which New York Republicanism so often plays the little brother. Now it plays respectable but in all these weeks of waiting it has not had courage to name its candidate or state its platform. Its idea of political strategy is to wait for Democratic mistakes."

WANTS DATA FOR VOTERS.

Institute Says Librarians Should Feature Campaign News.

The Institute for Public Service, 1,125 Amsterdam Avenue, gave out yesterday a letter it had written to public library workers of the city, suggesting that the shortest cut to larger appropriations for books and higher salaries for public library workers would be service to voters wishing information about campaign controversies. Libraries are asked to stop excluding political controversy, at least to the extent of featuring on bulletin boards what opposing newspapers say about various candidates and policies, particularly the attitudes and promises of candidates and parties with respect to the transit situation.

"One reason why library service is undervalued," the Institute states, "is the traditional policy of keeping carefully disinfected and insulated against political controversy. Thus it happens that at time of crisis, like the present campaign, hundreds of thousands who feel the crisis and need help are told not to look for that help at the people's university just around the corner.

"Questioning twenty libraries in five boroughs, we were told that several threw 'Seven Years of Progress' and 'The A. B. C. of Hylanism' into the waste basket; not one branch keeps the most widely read newspapers of opposing views; no branch keeps classified arguments, showing the conflicts of parties on the transit problem, which so intimately affects the daily life of New York voters; only one had a complete file of transit company and city propaganda on subways; only one can guide readers, whether individuals or clubs, in basing votes upon facts."

HEARS RUSSIAN WIRELESS.

FREMONT, Neb., Aug. 9 (AP).—Don Anderson, a local amateur radio operator, operating station 9-BNU, heard a station at Novgorod, Russia, sending code messages over thirty meters wave length Friday night.

He said the Russian station was RDW, Laboratory NIJNI, and the transmitting was in continental code and in the Russian language. He is a member of the American Radio Relay League.

HYLAN BRAVES RAIN; SPEAKS AT CONCERT

DOWNPOUR HALTS MUSIC

But Mayor Promises City Band Program Will Be Given at Another Time.

Rain stopped a concert of massed bands and the Police Glee Club at Ebbets Field last night but did not hinder Mayor Hylan from making an informal political speech to a crowd estimated at 20,000.

The concert, under the auspices of the Mayor's Music Committee, was to have been given by the glee club and the police, fire and street cleaning departments bands. Two numbers by the bands had been rendered. Then the police singers started their music, partially drowned by the thunder, which grew heavier every minute. Before they had finished their first number the rain came and singers, bands and an overflow crowd on the field fled to the stands for cover.

While all were waiting for the rain to stop Mayor Hylan arrived. He was met by Police Inspector McDonald. With him were his Secretary and son-in-law, John F. Sinnott; his bodyguard and brother-in-law, Detective Irving O'Hara, and a friend, Frank J. Coyle. Starting at one end of the great horseshoe made by the lower tier of the stands the Mayor, waving his white straw hat at the crowd, led his party from one end of the stand to the other. He was greeted by cheers and handclapping.

Then the Mayor ascended to the second tier and toured this tier from end to end, his retinue increased by several newspaper men. Before he had finished, persons began calling for a speech—and he answered with two speeches.

Standing well back in the lower tier the Mayor said that it was not easy for him to talk on this Sunday evening with so many beautiful ladies regarding him, but that he was delighted to meet and greet so many of his friends. Then, after a few more informal remarks he said:

"Do not forget that Sept. 15 is primary day and when you see my name on the ballot do not forget to vote for John F. Hylan."

The crowd by this time had apparently resigned itself to a postponement of the concert, and while the Mayor conferred with Philip Berolzheimer there were more calls for a speech from the Mayor, who took up a position in the reserved seat section, where he could look up at his hearers.

"I am sorry the concert has been interrupted by the rain," he said, "but I am going to ask Mr. Berolzheimer, whom I appointed to his position, to secure another night for the bands and the glee club to show you what has been accomplished in that direction during my Administration. Previous Administrations never paid attention to the departmental bands."

The Mayor then charged that the papers did not print the truth about him and that they were linked with "Jerry Dahl and the B. M. T."

"This man Waterman whom the Republicans are going to run against me and also the Tammany leaders are all against me, conspiring to put over a higher fare," the Mayor went on. "Primary day is Sept. 15. That is the day for those of you who are enrolled as Democrats to go to the polls and if you think well of what I have done for the past eight years then cast a vote for John F. Hylan and against all the scheming of the Wall Street crowd."

Raising his hand the Mayor called for "ayes" in favor of the 5-cent fare. A chorus of "ayes" from all parts of the stand answered him. Next he called for "ayes" from those who favored his reelection. Again came a chorus of affirmative votes from the stands.

TRIBUTE TO BRYAN PAID BY RAULSTON

Scopes Trial Judge Gives Chicago Memorial Meeting His View of Commoner.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9 (AP).—At a William Jennings Bryan memorial service at the North Shore Congregational Church today, Judge John T. Raulston, who presided at the recent Scopes trial at Dayton, Tenn., paid tribute to him as one of the leading figures in the "evolution case." In part he said:

"I did not know 'the great Commoner' before meeting him in the court house at Dayton, but it required no extensive observation to show him fitted for the title 'Commoner.' Not that there was a characteristic in his nature common in a vulgar sense; not that he was inferior or low in birth or origin, or that his talent, his habits, his learning, culture or character were mean and wanting in dignity, but he was the true commoner because, notwithstanding his towering intellect, his magnetism, his eloquent speech, his gentle manner, his unusual culture and his superb character—notwithstanding all these great endowments—he was simple in manner, magnanimous at heart, sympathetic by nature and loyal and true to the humble and needy, and instead of forgetting God, as many do who are thus endowed, he revered and honored his holy name. * * *

"Mr. Bryan seemed to prefer to fight out the issues along the lines outlined by defense counsel if such could be done under a proper construction of the statutes involved. By this line of defense it was insisted that before there could be a conviction the State must prove that the defendant had taught a theory which denied the story of the divine creation as taught in the Bible.

"By a fair and reasonable construction, I concluded that the statute was clear, specific and unambigious and therefore no expert testimony was necessary.

"This holding irritated defendants' counsel to the extent that one distinguished lawyer showed contempt for the holding of the court to the extent that it became the duty of the Court to cite him for contempt, and when this great man in whose memory I speak, saw his adversary, who had taunted him and who had attempted to belittle and provoke him, in peril, he rushed to the Court and begged for mercy for the man who had been so ungracious to him.

"I am advised that the press has said I forgave counsel because of the request made by Mr. Bryan. This is not true. While I much admired him for the request and I thought it showed his greatness, still I forgave counsel because of his having begged for mercy himself."

CONFER ON BANK STRIKE.

Paris Clerks Will Meet Employers Today to Discuss Settlement.

PARIS, Aug. 9 (AP).—With the announcement that the Minister of Labor has arranged for tomorrow morning a meeting the of the striking bank clerks and banking officials, the strike of the bank workers seems to be in a better situation for settlement than at any time during the past week.

The bank employes will hold out for an increase of 100 francs monthly in wages in order to meet the high cost of living, but they appeared to day willing to temporize on the question of compensation for the days they have been on strike. They also are trying to find a common ground with the bank directors on the question of recognition of their union. Up to the present the bank directors have been strongly opposed to the recognition.

BENNETT MAY RUN AGAIN FOR MAYOR

WATERMAN STILL IN DOUBT

Former State Senator William M. Bennett, who in the 1917 Mayoralty election succeeded in splitting the Republican Party and helped to defeat John Purroy Mitchel as a Fusion candidate for re-election against John F. Hylan, according to reports in circulation yesterday may enter the Republican primaries again this year as an aspirant for the nomination for Mayor.

Mr. Bennett has not been a candidate for any office for four years. In the 1921 Mayoralty election the Republican outlook was so poor that Mr. Bennett did not have the courage to go in. Yesterday it was said by a Brooklyn Republican that he had seen designating petitions for Mr. Bennett in circulation in that borough. While it is not believed that his entry into the Mayoralty race this year could have the effect of his 1917 campaign, when he defeated Mayor Mitchel in the Republican primaries, the report caused some uneasiness in Republican circles.

Mr. Bennett was reached on the telephone and the report from Brooklyn was repeated to him. He would neither affirm nor deny it, but seemed interested in developments in the Republican camp.

"This year a great opportunity is open to the Republicans to redeem themselves from their mistakes of the past and win with a straight Republican ticket," Mr. Bennett said. "Why under the circumstances are they looking about for Democrats to go on their ticket in the Republican primaries and afterward in the election? The Democratic National Convention a year ago left that party with a legacy of hate that survived throughout the campaign and paved the way for an easy Republican victory. The Big Five conference this year, in my estimation, will have an equally disastrous effect on the Democratic Party in the Greater City. The Republicans can win."

Charles D. Hilles, Republican National Committeeman and Chairman of the Greater City Republican Committee, will return from the West early today. A meeting of his committee has been called for an early hour, when it is expected the city slate of the Republicans will finally be written.

Inquiries from Republican leaders yesterday indicated that no assurances had been received during the day that Frank D. Waterman of "Say it with shovels" fame would accept the designation for Mayor on the proposed "Citizens" ticket. The two remaining places on the ticket have been left open pending word from Mr. Waterman that he will run.

"After Waterman, whom is there to name?" Chairman Samuel S. Koenig of the New York County Republican Committee, was asked yesterday at his Summer home, near Asbury Park.

It was suggested yesterday that Mr. Waterman, in the event that Mayor Hylan should be defeated in the primaries and not become an independent candidate for a third term, would be in a position to withdraw and permit some other candidate to be substituted. The selection of the fountain pen manufacturer was made when the Republican leaders were looking forward to Mayor Hylan as the Democratic nominee.

HELD AS QUEENS BURGLAR.

Jamaica Man's Home Yields $10,000 Loot, Detectives Say.

Sedgwick Rosenberg, 22 years old, of 103 Pulaski Street, Jamaica, was arrested last night by Detectives Henner, Sabatino and Hetticher of Jamaica headquarters as he was leaving the unoccupied home of Brockton Lockwood at 9,443 216th Street, Queens Village, carrying two suitcases which the detectives declare contained jewelry and clothing. The Lockwood family is in Maine for the Summer.

After locking him up, the detectives went to his home, where his wife, Edith, told them that he had been arrested on a charge of forgery some months ago, but had not been convicted. They found quantities of jewelry, clothing, silverware, and furs worth $10,000, according to the detectives' estimate.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Strasser of 8,626 143d Street, Jamaica, called at the station house last night and identified $500 worth of the loot, which they said had been stolen from their home Saturday night while they were at a beach. Mr. and Mrs. John Groh of 8,902 Sutphin Boulevard, Jamaica, said that their home had been robbed Friday night, and identified articles of jewelry and clothing worth $1,000 in the recovered loot.

PLAN HUGE MEDICAL CENTRE

University of Pittsburgh Officials Announce $14,000,000 Project.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 9 (AP).—Plans to erect a $14,000,000 medical centre at the University of Pittsburgh, to rank with the foremost in the world, are announced by the university's medical committee.

Agreements have been perfected, it was stated, to include the Presbyterian, Children's, Elizabeth Steele Magee, Montifiore and the Eye and Ear Hospitals in a group to be operated in conjunction with the university's fifty-two-story Cathedral of Learning. In connection with this centralized group the school expects to conduct a $2,000,000 medical unit.

The plan will be financed by the hospitals joining the unit, most of which have plans under way for new buildings.

The five institutions will have a capacity of 1,350 beds, said to surpass the capacity of any present group and equaled only by a similar plan of amalgamation of the Presbyterian Hospital of New York City with the Medical School of Columbia University now under way.

to tell her life's story or write anything else that might appeal to her. I, of course, sought to dissuade her.

Mr. Browning said he telephoned to Commissioner Coler to get his advice, but was unable to reach him. He then telephoned to his attorney, Francis C. Dale. Mr. Dale's advice was that Mary Louise was 21 and could do as she pleased, and that, personally, he thought that Mr. Browning should not interfere in any way.

However, Mary Louise was making up her own mind last night. She put on her hat—one of those which her foster-father enjoyed seeing her purchase on one of their shopping tours last week—and departed. She stepped out to the agent's taxicab and was off without the formality of bidding Mr. Browning a good-bye.

Browning Tells of Loss.

"You have a hard time being honest and telling the truth in this world," said the realtor, in discussing the going of Mary Louise. "If you do, some one is sure to double-cross you. I spent $20,000 in trying to make that girl my foster-daughter. I am sorry for the whole affair. I had confidence in her to the very last. If she had been 17 years old, it would have been different. But 21 years was too much.

"She is a wonderful actress. Well, if you try to help some one, you are double-crossed, and if you don't help them, they try to take it out on you."

"The trouble with me," he summed up, "about Mary Louise, is that I believe people's words. Will I adopt another girl? Absolutely never. I am through trying to do good for people. Commissioner Coler and District Attorney Newcombe acted in the most intelligent manner for the best interests of the people and all concerned. I was glad to cooperate with them. I could not at first believe that Mary was 21. Why, she celebrated her birthday while she was with me, and had a birthday cake with sixteen candles on it. I was sure that was her age. Her future is not in my keeping. I am sorry for her and sorry for her parents."

Mr. Browning said he would explain later the action of Mrs. Anna St. John of 44 Purchase Street, Rye, N. Y., in asking Commissioner Coler to return Dorothy Sunshine to her. Mrs. St. John was the child's first foster mother. An attorney representing her is to confer today with Mr. Coler.

CHINESE STAFF QUITS THE BRITISH LEGATION

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PEKING, Aug. 9.—Today the Chinese employes of the British Legation here went on strike. At first it was regarded as a minor incident, but it assumed more serious proportions as more was learned about its origin.

The number of employes in the strike now exceeds 100, and it is charged by some persons that the Chinese Government is the conniving party at what Britishers consider an insult to the representative of the British Crown. Their conviction is that the legation is the object of an extremist conspiracy to force the British hand.

Educational associations in Kiangsu, Chekiang and Hupeh Provinces have issued a manifesto denouncing missionary schools in violent language. These "poisonous" foreign institutions represent the suppressing of free thought and the ideals of Chinese students and are forcing Christianity on them, the manifesto is said to declare. Some observers think that if such a state of public opinion continues few missionary schools will be able to open in the Autumn.

The plan to hold a judicial inquiry into the Shanghai shooting is warmly approved privately by responsible Chinese, but it is violently denounced in the extremist press. It is asserted that the diplomatic report contains a strong condemnation of the Municipal Council of Shanghai and its British personnel, and that the object of the British Government is to sink this document and endeavor to obtain a more favorable decision.

PEKING, Aug. 9 (AP).—The Chinese employes at the British Legation and the electric power house walked out this morning. The strikers aggregate 200.

The legation appealed to the Chinese Foreign Office for relief, and the Foreign Office sent a representative to the headquarters of the students, who control the situation among the strikers, accompanied by two police captains. This action, however, appears to have been without result.

The spokesman for the strikers is said to have informed the emissary from the Foreign Office that the strikers were anxious to return to their duties if assured of police protection. Thus far, however, such protection has not been promised them. The students have established an office at the National University and invited foreign-employed servants to register, on pain of forfeiture of strike pay in the event they are called out later.

HONGKONG, Aug. 9.—Although Hongkong wears a normal appearance, it is in serious straits. Trade is stagnant, and the business community already has suffered a loss of at least $75,000,000.

Some of the smaller firms have become bankrupt. The position is regarded here as desperate and threatening Hongkong's extinction.

In reply to the Earl of Balfour's speech in the House of Lords last week regarding a revision of the treaties with China, local business men and bankers assert that the radical Canton Government, by its complete boycott of trade between Hongkong and Canton, already has scrapped parts of the Nanking Treaty of 1842 and the Tientsin Treaty of 1858. These alleged fundamental breaches have completely strangled local commerce, causing an enormous loss to Chinese and British merchants, bankers and ship owners of Hongkong and South China, as well as to piece goods and other avenues of trade with Great Britain.

It is urged here that the Canton Government, which is wholly independent of Peking and is charged with seeking the destruction of Hongkong, will not be affected in the smallest degree by an inquiry into the Shanghai riots, the Shameen incident or any number of conferences in Peking. Therefore, it is asserted here that Canton must be dealt with separately and promptly by the British Government.

BLAMES SON'S TEMPER FOR MINISTER'S DEATH

Special to The New York Times.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, Aug. 9.—Revenge has been established as the motive that prompted Warren Vandervoort, 17 years old, to shoot and kill his father, the Rev. R. J. Vandervoort, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Parkersburg, Thrusday nihgt and wound his mother.

A friend of the Vandervoort family told the Butler County authorities today that last Thursday Mr. Vandervoort warned his son that he must mow the lawn and do the chores before he went motoring. The boy demurred, but his father was adamant. When the boy completed his task he went directly to the hardware store, where he purchased his rifle.

This friend said Warren had an ungovernable temper and when he was angry would stop at nothing. He is convinced that Warren flew into a rage when forced to do the chores and was seized with the desire to kill his father. He believes the shooting of Mrs. Vandervoort was an afterthought prompted by his frenzy. It was pointed out that Mrs. Vandervoort always stood between the boy and his father during their petty quarrels.

NEW NOTE TO BERLIN ON SECURITY LIKELY

Paris and London Dubious About Anglo-French Discussion on Compact.

PARLEY BEGINS TOMORROW

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 9.—Foreign Minister Briand is leaving for London tomorrow, but on the French side considerable indefiniteness is being allowed to cover the aims and objectives of his visit. During the last week nothing has been talked of in Paris but the new Russian rapprochement, and whatever the real worth of the Krassin d'Allies negotiations they have served to create a feeling in France of greater diplomatic strength and bargaining power than was the case only a few months ago.

With him M. Briand is taking the draft of a Rhineland guarantee compact, but it is by no means certain that that plan will ever see the light of day or even be discussed. Its drafting seems to have been done with the object of putting down in concise form French desires, and also, perhaps, of creating the impression of willingness to carry the negotiations to a definite point.

At the same time, in French official circles and the press, it is advanced in contrast with this action of M. Briand's that, as Germany made the original proposal, it is more for Germany now to provide the draft of a treaty which will take account of the allied views, as expressed in the note of June 16, than for the Allies to try to shape a treaty which must have the appearance of a concession to German views or be of such a kind that must inevitably be difficult for Germany to accept.

New Note Thought Likely.

The sending of a new note to Germany answering that of July 20 therefore is considered the most likely outcome of the Briand-Chamberlain conversation. Probably it will be confined to a discussion of those points on which the two ministers are in agreement and will leave aside all matters which can still be regarded as controversial between France and England.

Thus it is understood that Mr. Chamberlain shares entirely M. Briand's view that no exceptions can be made in favor of Germany if she is admitted to the League, or that at least the granting of any exemption from the obligations under Article 16 can be done only by the League Assembly and cannot be promised by the Allies apart from the general body of which they are members.

The French press is still stoutly maintaining the right of France in case of German aggression against Poland to have full liberty of action along the Rhine, and this point is regarded as essential. But it is considered not impossible that an arrangement can be reached which will make this right so dependent on the failure of arbitration treaties and so surrounded by precautions as to make it applicable only after every other means of preventing an outbreak has been exhausted and therefore is no more dangerous to the other signatories.

In other words the French are seeking to use it as a lever by which to strengthen the form of the arbitration treaties and limit the possibility of and necessity for its application.

M. Briand is taking with him, as well as the general draft of the treaty, compact drafts of these arbitration treaties, but here, even more than in the case of the general treaty, it would seem to be a more proper procedure for Germany to submit the first drafts, to which the French, in agreement with the Poles, Czechoslovaks and English, could make amendments. However, these drafts, couched as they must be when coming from the French side, will have the appearance of dictation, and even should they not be so intended their amendment at German request after their consideration and possible approval by England would be rendered more difficult.

French Moves Made Cautiously.

Everything in the conversations which begin Tuesday depends on the will of the French that the compact should succeed, and it must be frankly stated that so far there has been no very clear indication from the Government, except that expressed in the note of June 16, of any strong wish in that direction. Every step so far has been taken with immense caution and only when the approval of England has been obtained, and in some cases obtained with difficulty.

English insistence on the bilateral nature which the compact must have has certainly never aroused any enthusiastic approval here, and M. Briand's task, if he is to have the approbation of his countrymen, must be to obtain from the English just a little advantage, such as a reaffirmation of Article 44 of the Treaty of Versailles, which will give a better appearance to the contract than if the balance between the German and French cases were absolutely equal.

It is common criticism that the proposed compact seems designed to safeguard Germany from attack by France just as much as to safeguard France from attack, and that aspect of the whole matter is perhaps what is at the root of general suspicion.

The English are regarded here as working in their own interests and not in the spirit of wartime alliance. It is there perhaps that is to be found the origin of the flirtation with M. Krassin. That flirtation should not, however, be taken too seriously. It may be only a small pawn in a very big game, and it does not weigh much against the necessity for the compact, for if the compact fails to become a reality there are few Frenchmen who will regard the future with confidence.

British Suspicious of French

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—Official London is awaiting Premier Briand's visit tomorrow on behalf of the security compact with mixed emotions. M. Briand is well liked here, but there is an uncomfortable feeling among Britons that the astute French Foreign Minister may try to "put something over" on England.

The British Government is being sternly admonished by squads of apprehensive critics that England's skirts must be kept absolutely clear of entanglements whereby she may be forced to fight France's battles in Eastern Europe.

The belief is prevalent in well-informed circles that M. Briand, though willing to make certain concessions to England, will stand firm on the French interpretation of France's position toward her Eastern allies. There is also an impression that he wishes to impose upon England the old Geneva protocol—which is anathema to Britons—dressed up as something entirely new with the pretty new name of "Security Pact." This must not be tolerated, the British Government is being solemly told by the chorus of volunteer watchdogs of British interests.

The Government does not minimize the importance of the meetings with M. Briand. At least one special Cabinet meeting will be held as a consequence of these conferences, and Austen Chamberlain, the Foreign Secretary, will be in close consultation with his Cabinet colleagues throughout the conversations with the French Foreign Minister.

From present indications Briand will remain in London only two or three days, having announced his intention of being back in Paris by Thursday. But the thorny path he and Mr. Chamberlain must tread may easily necessitate his staying longer—possibly the entire week. The nature of British apprehensions regarding the stand M. Briand may take is voiced by J. L. Garvin in today's Observer as follows:

"What must be made clear with the greatest courtesy to the French Foreign Minister is that there is a point beyond which we cannot go and that there are moral considerations upon which the whole value of this project depends. Great Britain and the dominions have decidedly and finally repudiated the spirit of the protocol—which would keep Europe divided into two hostile sections—and will not allow it to be revived under another name.

No Commitments In East.

"In no form shall we undertake entanglements and commitments in Eastern Europe. France must bear the sole responsibility for her military alliances in that quarter. We are willing to make a Western pact only, guaranteeing the French and Belgian frontiers, while giving Germany equal guarantee against arbitrary invasion on that side. That separate action on the Ruhr precedent shall not again be taken and that France shall not again march into Germany except by authorization of the League is a stipulation vital to the British view of the contract.

"Unless M. Briand will accept political realities in his country as they are the fate of the protocol will be repeated."

In other quarters there is a strong belief that M. Briand does not really want a security compact anyhow. In these quarters it is assumed that if he fails to win British approval for France's new draft of the compact and the Franco-British conference should fail there would be no tears shed on the Quai d'Orsay.

If the conferences should fail, however, the British are not concealing their belief that the situation might become serious. In fact, one newspaper says "the outlook will be very black indeed" if Austen Chamberlain and M. Briand fail to hit it off together.

It is pretty generally assumed at the present moment that M. Briand will not take up officially the question of French debts to Britain at the conferences with Mr. Chamberlain, though there is a probability that they will be informally discussed in the course of the conversations here.

Makes Friends With Fellow-Inmates—Smokes and Holds Head in Deep Thought.

Special to The New York Times.

CHESTER, Ill., Aug. 9.—Russell Scott, convicted of murder and saved from the gallows by the Chicago jury that declared him to be insane, arrived here at the hospital at 1 A. M. today. Scott and his guards got off the train a mile away from the station and walked up the 200 steps to the asylum. Superintendent Stubble Field was waiting for him, and he was assigned to the cell where he will remain all his life.

He was also assigned a seat at the dining room and in the recreation ward. This morning he ate in silence the regular prison fare of oatmeal, milk, bacon and strong coffee. At noon he was turned into the bullpen with the other prisoners. He immediately began to make friends and talked and chatted, occasionlly taking off his straw hat and holding his head, seemingly in deep thought.

Most of the afternoon he sat in the shade, his pale face forming a marked contrast with the sunburned patients. Curious patients crowded around him, but guards dispersed them. He was constantly smoking.

tional to the consumer. The employers are opposed to any demand that will add a penny to the cost of production. Between this position and that of the mine workers is a chasm that must be bridged before a strike can be averted.

Little Danger of Suffering.

"Market conditions and the logic of the situation," as a Swampscott dispatch to THE NEW YORK TIMES expressed it may have more to do with bringing about peace than any high placed individuals. For several days Government statistics have indicated that in the event of an anthracite strike there would be plenty of bituminous coal on hand. This supply, with the use of other substitutes such as oil and coke, Federal authorities point out, will last through the Winter, so that a hard coal famine need not entail suffering.

It is pointed out that it is to the interest of mine workers and operators to reach an agreement before the public decides to use substitutes on a large scale. Use of soft coal and coke in large quantities in the anthracite consuming territory will be bad for the miners and for the operators, as it will curtail their markets and lead to unemployment. The operators have for some time stressed the inroads made by oil and other substitutes in the anthracite consuming territory.

The logic of the situation it is said, would lead to no more than a brief suspension of operations. Federal and State observers hope that logic will find a place in the threatened industrial war.

Mr. Warriner could not be reached tonight for comment on Mr. Lewis's letter.

LEWIS SURPRISES COOLIDGE.

President May Hasten Return to Capital if Strike Comes.

Special to The New York Times.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 9.—President Coolidge was said tonight to be surprised at the unfavorable turn of events in the coal negotiations. While he was reported as still hopeful, it was said for him that he had expected that the negotiations would be resumed this week.

The refusal of Mr. Lewis to resume the parleys unless the operators abandon their position against a wage increase and the check-up, in the opinion of those who have followed the negotiations, makes the outlook dark for any peaceful solution by the parties in the dispute.

The Administration intends to keep its hands off until after a strike actually occurs, and then about the only thing President Coolidge can do is to suggest arbitration, which the mine workers' representatives have alread refused when suggested by the operators.

President Coolidge may find it advisable to return to Washington shortly after Sept. 1, to be close to the Government officials who will act for the public in the probable strike. He had planned originally to close the Summer White House here after Labor Day.

Daily Style Hint For Well-Dressed New Yorkers

NEW YORK, August 10—Because the stylists of New York and London issue a ukase that a certain thing is "the thing" is no reason for adopting it, unless it is becoming to you. That is imperative. Common sense takes precedence over fashion. Nevertheless, it is well to know that the most fashionable color in Autumn clothes will be Brown. Not every shade of this color lends itself to suits. Some tints are appealing and some are appalling. One must practise discrimination in selection. Exclusive, but not expensive.

CHARGE MISHANDLING OF GRAND CANYON

'TOURIST CAMP A DISGRACE'

INDIAN AGENTS ASSAILED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Charges involving the administration of the Grand Canyon National Park and other Federal lands in Arizona were made public today by representatives of the Senate Committee on Public Lands, which is soon to begin an investigation of the public land problem. The charges are based on an investigation made by Senators Ashurst and Cameron of Arizona, who were delegated to hold the hearings by the committee. The investigation was preliminary to the field hearings which the committee will start in Salt Lake City next week in which every phase of the problem involving the public domain of 431,000,000 acres will be gone into.

In the report, parts of which were given out today, it is asserted that the concessions in the Grand Canyon Park have been monopolized, that the tourist camp is a disgrace to the service, that money has been squandered in the matter of roads, and that conflicts between private land owners and the Federal authorities are frequent.

Various other allegations more or less grave are made. Against the Indian administration it is charged that the Government's "tribal herd" policy has resulted, not, as the Government expected, in the Indian himself, but the white Indian agent, going into the cattle business.

Stephen T. Mather, Director of the National Park Service, who left for the West a few days ago, declared his opinion that the investigation of the Grand Canyon was open to severe criticism. He made it plain that he believed a "grudge" was in it somewhere, and he did not deny that he had Senator Cameron in mind.

Cameron Involved in Suits.

Senator Cameron has clashed many times with the Park Service in the matter of the Grand Canyon, and a suit involving certain placer mining claims in the Grand Canyon country is now pending against him in Arizona. Recently the Government brought another civil suit, involving claims on the Colorado River, in which it named as defendants the Senator's wife; Ralph Cameron Jr., his son; Mrs. S. E. Quieroz, whose first husband was John B. Stetson of Philadelphia; G. H. Stetson of Philadelphia; Mrs. H. B. Stetson of Elkins Park, Pa.; H. R. and M. Gillett of New York City; E. H. Hopkins of Hollywood, Cal., and E. W. Campbell, the Senator's private secretary.

Senator Cameron was not made a party to this suit, which was filed in the Federal Court at Phoenix by Harold Baxter, who acted for Attorney General Sargent. The Government asked cancellation of the claims on the grounds of fraud.

The preliminary report of the Arizona investigation, which is addressed to Senator Stanfield, of Oregon chairman of the committee, says, in part:

"The Committee made a personal inspection of the park. The committee found that the accommodations for tourists coming by automobile and not stopping at a hotel were very bad. Only one camp is provided for such tourists, and tourists are not permitted to camp elsewhere. This camp is located a long ways from the rim of the canyon, the chief attraction of the park. It is located near a railroad and near an open sewer, and near the place for disposing of garbage. No shelter is provided for these tourists. No tents can be rented in the park. The ground is bare of grass. Fuel is furnished by the park. The only water available must be purchased from the Santa Fe Railroad.

Park Service Criticized

"The Park Service does not operate any facilities providing for the care of visitors. The only concession of any importance in the park is the Fred Harvey concession. He has a twenty-year concession of all park facilities providing for the care of visitors, with the exception of a small general store and a small photograph shop. Thus he has the hotel, lodging house, meeting house and transportation concessions.

"The Park Superintendent testified that he had not made an inspection of the books, records or accommodations of the Harvey Company; he knew of no inspection that had been made by any one; he was not familiar with the rates charged by the Harvey Company. The Harvey Company has a hotel with seventy rooms that is well managed. In addition to the hotel the company has a number of tent houses. These cost about $225. They are very unsightly. They consist of plain pine boards enclosing one room.

"The cottages will hold three persons, at a maximum charge of $6 a day. No housekeeping facilities are provided in these cottages and the tourists must eat at the hotel. The cottages accommodate 400 people. There are provided for these 400 people four baths and four toilets. Nowhere in the park are there any accommodations for tourists who desire to camp in the park or to keep house there who have not brought the necessary equipment. There are more people now coming to the park by automobile than by train.

Roads Declared "Wretched."

"Over $700,000 has been spent by the park since its creation in 1919, in the building and improving of roads and trails. The park has only four miles of surfaced roads. All the roads were laid out and partially improved prior to the creation of the park. No new roads have been built by the park. The roads in the park are in wretched condition.

"In the last two years practically all the appropriations for roads and trails have been spent in developing trails below the rim of the canyon. The records show that not over 10 per cent. of the people who visit the park go below the rim thereof. There are now six or seven trails leading down into the canyon. Only about two of the trails are used, yet the park recently spent over $50,000 in the building of a new trail.

"There is a regulation providing that employes dismissed by the Santa Fé, Fred Harvey Company or the park will not be employed by either of the two other institutions. This black-listing of former employes is directly contrary to the law of Arizona.

Indian Agents Condemned.

"There was very strong protest made to the committee relative to the administration of Indian reservations. Delegations of Indians appeared before the committee and protested that the Indian agents were not permitting them to carry on any business of their own. They testified that the agents were employing whites instead of Indians.

"The chief complaints, however, came from stockmen on Indian reservations. They complained of the high fees charged, but their chief complaint was the action on the part of the Indian agents in Arizona, especially the White River Indian Reservation agent, relative to cancelling leases. At this time there is no unused range in Arizona. Indian reservation permittees have to liquidate when their leases are cancelled. Their stock is in no condition to put on the market; there is a very poor market for their stock; with the live stock business in such a terrible financial plight the policy being pursued by the Indian agents in Arizona is destructive.

"An investigation of these herds showed that the Indians were not going into the cattle business, but that the Indian agent was. He ran the tribal herd and the herds of the individual Indian. He hired white supervisors of such herds. Indians were only employed on a wage basis.

"In Arizona there are approximately 11,000,000 acres in forest reserves. Except in the northern part of the State, there is practically no saw timber on these lands. The chief value in use of most of the forest land is grazing. Many witnesses were in favor of taking out of the forests lands chiefly valuable for grazing. A number opposed this, however, because such a move would create uncertainty as to the use of such lands, and would disturb the ten-year permits now in effect.

"The testimony of the witnesses was unanimous in favor of the creation of some agency outside of the Forest Service to which forest permittees could appeal. The present system of appeal is considered a farce. Most of the permittees are opposed to using the present system because they do not believe their chances of reversing the local officer sufficient to risk getting his ill-will because of making the appeal. Former forest officials testified that they were rarely reversed in their decisions.

"Many of the local forest officers were considered to be petty tyrants and their decisions very arbitrary. An impartial board is needed."

FRENCH AIRMEN ALOFT 45 HOURS 11 MINUTES

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 9.—Pilots Drouhin and Landry ended their world record time and distance flight at near 3 o'clock this morning with ten litres of gas left in the reservoir. Over a measured 100-kilometer circle they had traveled forty-four times (2,732 miles) in 43 hours 32 minutes 47 seconds, beating the record of Kelly and Macready by 212 miles, but they stayed in the air over the aerodrome nearly another two hours, making the total flying time without landing 45 hours 11 minutes 59 seconds.

Besides the time and distance records, they broke no less than three other intermediate distance records, notably the 2,000-kilometer record, covering that distance in 14 hours 54 minutes 58 seconds.

If their flight had been a straight line they would easily have crossed from Paris to New York with the plane which, when it took off fully laden with gas and oil, weighed 6,500 kilograms. During the flight the two pilots took short turns of sleep and declared themselves fresh and able to go on when their gas supply was exhausted and they were forced to make a landing.

It is recalled today that only nineteen years ago in France Santos Dumont made the first distance and time record, covering 220 meters in 21 1-5 seconds.

PARIS, Aug. 9 (AP).—A non-stop flight from Paris to Rabat, Morocco, is to be attempted on instructions from Premier Painlevé by Colonel Denain. He is to start early tomorrow morning from Villacoublay.

JERSEY REGIMENTS PARADE.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP SILZER, SEAGIRT, N. J., Aug. 9.—Residents of points all along the Jersey shore came here this afternoon to view the first regimental parade of the season. The units in line were the 104th Engineers, under Colonel G. N. Hurd of Englewood; 119th Medical Regiment, in command of Colonel John H. McCullough of Trenton; Headquarters Company, Forty-fourth Division, under Lieutenant Walter Albers of Plainfield, and Motor Transport Company 173, in command of Lieutenant E. C. Tuttle of Norristown, all of whom arrived here yesterday for their annual encampment of two weeks.

The troops this morning attended church services on the lawn of the Summer home of Governor Silzer in charge of Major Charles W. Gulick of Englewood, chaplain of the engineer regiment. Tomorrow morning the troops will begin a strenuous training program. They will pass in review before Governor Silzer and his staff on the afternoon of Aug. 21, the third Governor's Day of the season.

ASK YOUNG TO HEAD AIR RAILWAY LINES

elaborate plans should succeed the next step would be the development of transatlantic air service.

"The carrying out of these plans, as I have said, is largely dependent upon favorable action by the Government as to the lease of the Los Angeles and the enactment of air navigation laws. Before any man will invest his money in airship stock he will want to know what the Government is going to do in the way of regulation. Capital of course would not submit to such regulation as is now imposed on the railroads by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"Before an air service can be successfully developed Congress will have to pass air navigation legislation, such as has been elaborately worked out by Secretary Hoover and is now before Congress. If capital knows exactly what it can do in the air through well-formulated laws, then it will go ahead. But it will do nothing of permanent value until air navigation laws are passed. We are hopeful that the coming Congress will dispose of the Hoover bill finally.

"We were told by President Coolidge that he looked upon our idea favorably, seeing in it the formation of a company which would be of service to the country in wartime. He has ordered the Secretaries of War, Navy and Commerce to give prompt consideration to our proposal.

"In our passenger line we would use helium gas, which is known to be absolutely safe. But if there is any large freight business we purpose to build special ships for such work. In these ships we would use hydrogen with 15 to 20 per cent. of helium. Latest experiments have shown that this mixture of gas is also absolutely safe and, of course, is not as expensive as helium.

"If our plans are carried out we will build ships for use in service in this country as comfortable as transatlantic liners. Our plans call for promenade decks, large cabins, dining saloons and library."

Ford May Bid for Los Angeles.

According to reports, the Government expects Henry Ford to make a proposal for the Los Angeles. Since he is in a position to make air freight lines immediately profitable the Government officials are anxious that he should become a bidder for the airship and establish a line from New York to the Pacific Coast. The dirigible will be leased to the highest bidder.

Secretary Hoover is confident that the United States will enter into the field of transportation with a great stride by this time next year.

"The United States is just on the threshold of aviation as a practical transportation system," he said today. "This country has been slow in taking up the airships as a means of transportation except for mail purposes. It is one of the strange things of American life and industry that the machine which was invented by American genius should be allowed to become a factor in transportation and social life abroad and be neglected in this country where it is especially needed because of the great distances. But I foresee an era approaching when the United States will lead the world in its air railways."

PETAIN PREDICTS MOROCCO SUCCESS

Marshal's Report Points Out That Reinforcements Will Relieve Burden on Fighters.

SAYS RIFF DRIVE HAS FAILED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 9.—The French Government made public today a portion of Marshal Petain's report on the situation in Morocco as observed by him during his recent visit to the front. The portion of the report which the Government released is concerned largely with a description of the difficulties confronting the French troops and contains eulogistic comments on their valor and heroism.

Nothing in this section of the report alludes to peace negotiations. On the contrary, Marshal Petain's conclusions indicate he contemplates the necessity of continuing the war. He points out, with considerable emphasis, that arrival of reinforcements will make the task easier for the French. Troops which have been fighting three months will have a rest and a general reorganization will take place to put the French in better position to impose authority and bring their military operations to a successful conclusion.

"Thus the horizon is clearing up, declares Marshal Petain. "The adversary in spite of repeated attacks has not been able to attain any political objective—Fez and Taza—which he boasted he would enter in triumph. What has not been sufficiently brought out is that despite all conditions favorable to him, Abd-del-Krim has not entered Fez, that the road to Taza remains open, that these two towns are now definitely secure against any further attack and that the interior of Morocco remains completely loyal to us."

French Column Drives Out Rebels.

EL ARAISH, Spanish Morocco, Aug. 9 (AP).—Advices received here from the French zone of operations say that a French column under command of Colonel Freydenburg enveloped the enemy tribesmen at Macizo Azgene, killing many and compelling the others to take to flight. The road at Zitouna has been cleared of rebels.

In the region of Sarhar, the advices add, tribesmen continue to make raids south of the Ouezzan Road and have looted stores where supplies are kept. It is believed the French have as their objective a plan to compel the rebel tribesmen to withdraw to the north toward Sarhar, so as to prevent any rebels remaining in the rear.

In the central sector movement of French columns from Kelaa des Sless to Fez-el-Bali has been effected, but with fiery resistance by the tribesmen. In the fighting the rebels left sixty dead and nine prisoners were taken, together with many rifles.

It is reported that Abd-el-Krim, the rebel leader, is engaged in a battle with the tribes north of Taza.

In spite of the extreme difficulties presented by the terrain, an enemy convoy with twenty-five mules was surprised by French airmen, who bombed the rebels, killing twenty-one.

RABAT, Aug. 9.—Everything is in readiness for the American aviators, from receptions and dinners to all details of the organization of their squadron down to the orderlies assigned to each of them. They will not go to Fez immediately, but receive further training in Moroccan air warfare for several days at Casablanca. This is especially necessary, the commandant of aviation here explained, because flying conditions are much different from elsewheres, particularly now during the hot season, when even seasoned Moroccan pilots are greatly bothered by sudden air holes, often dangerous.

Every precaution is being taken to prevent accidents marring the initial efforts of the Americans. For this reason when it is thought the Americans are sufficiently trained at Casablanca they will be taken by automobiles to Fez to get fully acquainted with the aviation landing field there. They will then return the same way to Casablanca, from where they will immediately fly in squadron formation to Fez and begin active operations.

Contrary to previous reports, the French intend to use the Americans not as observers but exclusively as pilots, each to be accompanied by a Frenchman more accustomed to the lay of the land at the front. Regulations require aviation reports to be made by French nationals. The Americans appear on the register as a squadron already for operating here. Technically, they form part of the Cheriffian instead of the French Army, paid for out of the Moroccan budget from the appropriation assigned to the upkeep of the Sultan's famous Black Guard.

Ditmars to Sail With Enough Snake Venom To Poison an Army; to Make Serum in Brazil

Snake venom enough to poison an army will be part of the luggage of Raymond Ditmars, curator of reptiles of the Bronx Zoo, when he sails for Rio de Janeiro next Saturday on the Southern Cross of the Munson Line. Thousands of entreating letters have caused the curator to depart upon a mission which he expects will result in saving many lives annually in the United States.

"It seems to be a popular theory that our zoological gardens is a snake headquarters," Mr. Ditmars said yesterday. "Every year we receive thousands of letters from all parts of the country asking us either for snake serum or for information as to where it may be obtained.

"As a matter of fact we have no good source of it in this country. Firms whih make a business of inoculating animals and cultivating this antitoxin will not bother with rattlesnake serum, for instance, because they say it doesn't pay. Consequently we can obtain in this country only the Brazilian product."

Brazilian snake serum, Mr. Ditmars said, was all right for bites by Brazilian rattlers, but not very effective against the American variety. This was because the serum, as obtained from inoculated cows, was the product of Brazilian rattler poison, which differed from the American. It is because of this, Mr. Ditmars explained, that he is making his present trip to South America, where he will arrange with Brazilian Government institutions for the cultivation of American rattler serum. He plans first to visit the institution headed by Dr. Vitale Brazil, snake specialist, near Rio. Mr. Ditmar's poison luggage contains venom of American rattlers. Part of this he will leave with Dr. Brazil to be used to inoculate animals for the production of the correct antitoxin for American use, and the rest he will take to another institution near Sao Paulo.

The decision to take this trip followed a survey accomplished through the cooperation of State Boards of Health, Mr. Ditmars said. The survey showed that every year 100 persons were dying in this country from snake bite simply because they lacked the correct serum. The job of attempting to supply the demand had proven a "white elephant" to the Zoo, he said, and was going to be turned over to L. M. Cowdrey, importer, of 30 Church Street, who would attend to the distribution of the serum when it started coming into the country.

Another object of the expendition, Mr. Ditmars said, was to complete his collection of poisonous snakes, 300 of which may be seen sliding about the snake quarters in the Zoo. He will remain in South America about three weeks.

REBELS IN SYRIA STILL HOLDING OUT

CAN RAISE A STRONG ARMY

Painleve's Statement Admits Loss of 100 Men in First Engagement—French Leader a Suicide.

CAIRO, Aug. 9.—Information received from authoritative Druse sources concerning the revolt of the Jebel Druses against France indicated it is on a larger scale than at first thought, and was provoked, as already contended by a section of the Paris press, by dissatisfaction with the administration of Druse territory under General Sarrail, Acting Governor and French High Commissioner in Syria.

This is the sixth insurrection in Syria since the French occupation, the first occurring in 1919. In 1921 the French concluded a treaty with the tribesmen constituting the independent State of Jebel Druse with a legislative council, the French appointing an adviser. Differences soon developed and the Druses complain that France, by appointing her own Acting Governor and by manipulating the powers of the adviser, managed to get all the reins of Government into her own hands. Matters became worse when Captain Carbillet, who served chiefly in Senegal and whose attitude toward the Druses is described as resembling that of Colonial Governors toward the negroes, was appointed Acting Governor.

When Carbillet recently went to France the Druses hoped they had seen the last of him. Learning of his approaching return, they delegated thirty-six notables to go to Beirut to petition General Sarrail not to send Carbillet back but Sarrail refused to receive the delegation and detained some of them.

Armed Clash at Festival.

What precipitated matters, however, was the Acting Governor's mistaking the religious festival of Curban Bairam for a political gathering and ordering its dispersal by troops. Firing took place with several deaths on both sides and the Governor ordered the arrest of the President and members of the local tribunal and other dignitaries, including the leader of the Hauran Christians.

The head of the Damascus Inteligence Department was then sent to Hauran to restore order. He attempted to arrest the Sultan Pasha, who resisted. This led to aerial bombing of the Sultan Pasha's vilage, which gave the signal for a general outbreak. The Sultan Pasha with a large following seized Sueida, capturing the French Acting Governor and besieging the citadel in which the garrison of 200 men took refuge. Though scantily provisioned they are still holding out gallantly and beat off the Druse assault, after which the attackers adopted starving-out tactics.

The first French relieving column of 200 men sent toward Sueida was ambushed and wiped out. The second column of 400 was surprised in the darkness and suffered heavily, losing all vehicles, ammunition, machine guns and three armored cars. Meanwhile, French airplanes were dropping tons of explosives upon Druse villages, killing eighteen men and numerous women and children. This resulted in stiffening the revolt while the Bedouins from the neighboring deserts are coming in to join the Druses. Six airplanes have been shot down and two pilots made prisoners.

Water is exceedingly scarce. The French are compelled to transport water by rail and road from Damascus, and street water carts have been requisitioned. The French unsuccessfully appealed to the Damascus Kurds and to Circassians of Kuneitra for help against the Druses.

When threshing is ended the Druses probably will be able to put in the field 7,000 first-class horsemen and possibly 15,000 rifles. The Druse armament is poor, consisting of a miscellaneous collection of German, Turkish, French and British rifles. They are without machine guns except those they have captured.

A dispatch from General Sarrail to Premier Painlevé asserts that there has been no trouble in the Jebel Druse region south of Damascus since Friday.

The opposition newspaper are demanding the recall of General Sarrail, while Government organs are endeavoring to belittle the reported encounters. Mgr. Cadi Nicolas, Archbishop of Hauran and the Druses, in an interview on his arrival today from Mareilles, said the insurrection occurred after his departure, but that "the Druses, who are unarmed and have no officers, cannot be prepared for any serious movement."

A dispatch from the Temps correspondent at Beirut also was reassuring. It said General Sarrail had plenty of troops to quell any insurrection, but the correspondent pointed out that reports of the progress against the French by Abd-el-Krim in Morocco might have incited the Syrian rebels also to try their luck against the French. The dispatch said the French casualties were slight and that no tanks had been captured by the rebels, as none is in service at the present time in the Levant.

Painleve Explains Outbreak.

PARIS, Aug. 9.—On the basis of a report just received from General Sarrail, French High Commissioner in Syria, Premier Painlevé today made his first official declaration on the revolt of the Jebel Druse. According to M. Painlevé the whole trouble originated in quarrels of clans which compose the "family" of the Sultan, some of those clans being energetically Francophile, and others being stubbornly attached to the idea of complete independence. The conflict between the two factions developed a serious character owing to outrages perpetrated against the pro-French elements and General Sarrail felt compelled to send several columns into the region to restore order.

On July 19 one of these columns containing about 165 men marched into an ambush carefully prepared by the rebels and more than 100 men were massacred. The remainder managed to escape and to return to French headquarters.

Another column under Colonel Michaud was immediately dispatched to punish the rebels. This column was followed by a convoy of camels carrying supplies and ammunition. At a certain moment in the course of the march the convoy, which moved slowly, found itself separated from the column by a considerable distance. The rebels, taking advantage of the situation, leaped out from behind rocks and attacked the convoy from the flanks. Native Syrian riflemen, who were charged with protection of the convoy, offered no resistance and the whole convoy was captured.

Owing to the capture of supplies and ammunition, Colonel Michaud had to retreat, fighting the rebels off every inch of the way, and losing a considerable number of men during the course of a battle against heavy odds.

M. Painlevé declared he was not in a position to give out an exact figure on the losses sustained by the French in these operations.

"It does not seem, however," said M. Painlevé, "that any serious developments have taken place since these incidents or that there has been any further contact between the French and Syrian troops. Contrary to a report in the foreign press, the post of Sueida is still in our hands and General Sarrail has already taken steps to provide it the necessary reinforcements. It must be recalled that General Sarrail offered only recently to place some of his troops at the disposition of the Government for operations in Morocco, so little had he anticipated these regrettable incidents in his own department."

Anxiety in Official Circles.

In Government circles the feeling of uneasiness is quite apparent. With the Moroccan war still on its hands, the Government is not any too eager to admit another of its protectorates is now up in arms. Every effort, therefore, naturally is being made to keep the Syrian affair from assuming alarming proportions. The opposition, however, insists upon dragging it into the open and exploiting it as proof of maladministration and Governmental debility.

The Government's anxiety is all the greater because an organized revolt of the Jebel Druse would be difficult to quell. The Jebel Druse is a torrid, rocky and impenetrable bit of country of Southern Syria containing a population of about 60,000 natives as rough and unmalleable as the region they inhabit. The Druses represent the oldest Syrian people and preserve most of the ancient traditions of that country. Warriors by instinct, they jump at any opportunity to fight, especially when confident of their power to win. France had a taste of their methods of warfare in 1860, when the Druses attacked the Maronites and France had to send an expedition into upper Syria to restore order.

Pacification of the Druses seemed to some extent accomplished, however, with the course of years, and following the Great War this people succeeded in establishing an independent state under the French mandate, which they accepted on the sole condition that they retain their autonomy and be allowed to remain outside the Syrian Federation.

Except for local rivalries which finally resulted in a small revolt, quickly settled by General Weygand, the region gave the French little or no trouble. Autonomy of the Jebel Druse was solemnly celebrated and General Weygand had a triumphant reception at Sueida, capital of the country. The middle of last month, however, following the recall of General Weygand and the appointment of General Sarrail as High Commissioner, conditions suddenly took a turn for the worse.

It is charged that with the advent of General Sarrail there began a period of harsh inquisitions and decrees offensive to traditions and customs of the natives. Discontent spread and the natives, it appears, proceeded to organize their forces for revolt. The movement developed rapidly under the fearless and capable leadership of Sultan Atrash, who became chief of the rebels and who organized the ambush of July 19, in which the greater part of a French column was wiped out.

Robs Chicago Theatre of $12,000.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9 (AP).—An armed robber escaped with $12,000 from the office of the State and Lake Theatre in the heart of the theatre district here tonight. He entered the theatre office from a lobby entrance, cowed five persons there with a revolver, grabbed the cash, and then was lost in the crowd.

she had $5. The fact that on Friday she was intending to spend part of Saturday shopping was sufficient indication, her father thought, that she had not intended to go away for any length of time, and that the hiking trip was merely an impulse. He has not been able to get in touch with any of her friends with whom she used to walk, for most of them are out of town. He felt sure, however, that she had gone on such a journey because he found her hiknig clothes missing from her wardrobe.

Saturday night he went to as many railroad ticket offices as he could reach in an effort to learn if his daughter had bought a ticket for Twin Lakes, Conn., where her brother and sister are spending the Summer.

"If she had asked for permission to go hiking or anywhere I would gladly have given it," he said, adding that the fact that she went out so quietly and alone early in the morning had made him wonder if the operation and her long illness might not have slightly affected her mind.

"There was no trouble in the family," he said in answer to questions, "no family friction. Enemies? Why, I have none—none that I know of."

GIRL, 15, AT DANCE BLINDED BY ALCOHOL

POLICE START AN INQUIRY

Lessee of Bay Neck Yacht Club Says That No Liquor Was Sold During the Affair.

Helen McDonald, 15 years old, blind and semiconscious from alcohol, was taken from the Bay Neck Yacht Club at the foot of Cochran Avenue, Bayside, on Little Neck Bay, to her home at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. From there she was removed to Flushing Hospital where it was said last night that her condition was still very serious, although she had recovered consciousness and her sight.

The McDonalds live at Cochran Avenue and Kelly Lane, Bayside, not far from the club. John McDonald, the girl's father, a postoffice clerk, and Mrs. McDonald said yesterday that Helen, with her cousin, Grace McDonald, and several other girls, went to the club Saturday night about 10 o'clock to dance. At 2 o'clock in the morning the girl had not returned. The parents went to the club and found her with her cousin.

Helen was lying as if asleep on an army cot on the second floor of the ramshackle wharf house which is the headquarters of the yacht club. After taking her home and failing in their attempts to revive her, the parents conveyed her to the hospital.

Yesterday the club was vacant. Investigators found a number of bottles on a table on the first floor. A dilapidated piano and a few chairs completed the furnishings.

On the wall was a notice informing readers that the Bay Neck Yacht Club was in process of organization, that its purposes were purely social and that the dues would be either $2 a month or 50 cents a week. The notice was signed: "Al Smith, Bill Bennett, John Picht."

William Bennett, who, with his family, occupies a bungalow not far from the club, said that he had leased the property for club purposes and that with other members of his family he had been present at the dance when the McDonald girl and her friends entered. He declared emphatically that no alcoholic drinks were served by the club and that the only drink on sale was orangeade. He said that if Helen McDonald had had anything to drink, members of her party must have furnished it.

Helen revived sufficiently to tell something of the evening's happenings to her mother at the hospital. Mrs. McDonald said that Helen had been dancing and during an intermission drank from a glass she found on the table. The girl described its contents to her mother as "something green." From that time on she remembered nothing.

BOY SHOOTS HIS SISTER.

Accidentaly Discharges Rifle Bought With Vacation Earnings.

While explaining the mechanism of a new .22-calibre rifle purchased with the proceeds of his vacation earnings yesterday morning, Thomas De Simone, 15 years old, of 113 Christopher Street, accidentally shot his 13-year-old sister, Cornelia. The girl was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital with a bullet in her right side. The boy was arrested charged with juvenile delinquency.

According to the police, the boy, who was graduated from public school last term, bought the gun in a shop on the Bowery.

Railroad Detectives Start a Campaign Against "Beats."

New York Central Railroad detectives, in a campaign against hobos who endanger their own lives by stealing rides on fast trains, arrested four alleged train-riders yesterday. The men were arraigned in Yonkers City Court yesterday. Carl Brown, 22 years old, of 2,127 Mayfield Avenue, Chicago, one of the prisoners, said he was bound for Rochester, but started going in the wrong direction.

Lately many persons have been killed trying to beat their way on trains, the railroad officers said. They arrested, besides Brown, Peter Monaco, 18, of 579 Central Avenue, Jersey City; Frank O'Brien, 22, of 550 Hastings Avenue, Detroit, and Rudolph Trapp, 24, of 25 South Street, New York City. They told Judge Davis Gorfinkel that all four defendants barely missed death in attempting to escape arrest when they ran in front of a train. Judge Gorfinkel remanded the four for sentence.

RICH MEN

often leave poor heirs

A PROMINENT manufacturer died leaving a "going business" and a number of "gilt edge" securities.

It seemed an estate ample to keep his family in comfort. Yet, through inexpert management, it became so involved in difficulties that the entire income from it was wiped out for a number of years.

Then the executor died, and a successor had to be appointed by the court, causing additional worry and care to the family.

THIS CASE is typical of dozens which arise almost daily in the settling of estates. Most of them would be avoided if testators had a clearer understanding of the need for insuring proper protection for their heirs.

The success of the Irving-Columbia in settling estates, during more than a quarter of a century, has been the result of bringing to its task special facilities, experience, sound business judgment and personal interest in the affairs of clients.

FORESEE NEW CRISIS OVER BRITISH COAL

FEAR A BUDGET UPSET

Fierce Competition Between British and German Producers Is Predicted as Another Result.

LONDON, Aug. 9 (AP).—Dispersal of the Ministers and members of Parliament for a long vacation seems not likely to stop the criticism of the Government's method of obtaining a truce in the coal mine dispute.

A prominent Conservative writer in the Sunday newspapers bluntly accuses the Government of having "for prudential reasons financed a Communist triumph." The writer further declares that Premier Baldwin staked himself and his party upon a prodigious gamble.

A. J. Cook, Secretary of the Miners' Federation, who by the miners and the Laborite extremists generally is being hailed as the hero of the hour for his activities in the mine dispute, speaking today at Crook, County Durham, said labor's victory was the greatest in the history of the labor movement. Its lesson was that labor could get only what it is strong enough to take. He predicted a first-class political crisis during the coming nine months in consequence of the Government's handling the coal deadlock.

"Premier Baldwin told me," said Mr. Cook, in the course of his speech, 'You had us this time, but hereafter we will be prepared.' Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill, on the same occasion, said, 'Remember, Cook, this is not a gift from us, but it is cheaper than a revolution.' "

Mr. Cook added that in reply to the Chancellor he said: "We don't want revolution. We don't want to destroy one another, for that's what revolution means."

What is said to be a moderate statistical estimate of the subsidy granted by the Government to the coal mines shows that the loss of £173,000 suffered by the South Wales coal mine owners for the first six months of 1925 will, on the present basis, be changed into a profit of £949,000, and there is a general admission, even by many Conservative newspapers, that the subsidy is only too likely to involve the taxpayers in a loss of £20,000,000, and perhaps £40,000,000, thus completely upsetting all Mr. Churchill's calculations for the next budget.

The Government's idea seems to be that by a large absorption of unemployed in the coal trade there will be a considerable set-off in saving on the unemployment dole, and also that the prospect for cheaper coal for home and industrial purposes ought generally to stimulate industry to the benefit of the country all around.

Should the subsidy, as many believe, have the effect of greatly stimulating the production of coal, some newspapers foresee fierce competition between British and German coal in foreign markets. It is known that while the deadlock existed in the Ruhr, the Ruhr mine owners were hoping to profit by a cessation of work in the British mines to get rid of their own heavy accumulations of coal. It is alleged that the Ruhr owners were greatly disappointed when a truce in the British controversy was brought about.

The object of the subsidy to the British mines avowedly is to enable the British coal mine owners to compete in foreign markets, and this possible competition with Germany, tending still further to reduce prices, provokes one labor newspaper to call for international action, possibly through the League of Nations, to delimit markets and to ration coal supplies and thus prevent ruinous competition.

There also is a call here for Government assistance financially to promote experiments on a large scale in the production of oil from coal as an offset to similar experiments in Germany.

DIES OF POLICE BULLET.

Second Alleged Thief, Shot After Hold-Up, Succumbs.

With the death at 5 o'clock yesterday morning in Harlem Hospital of George Muller, 22 years old, of 211 West 109th Street, the second fatality from shooting by policemen following the hold-up and robbery of a dice game at 4 West 125th Street on the morning of Aug. 6, was recorded.

Muller was shot by Patrolman Hugo Mayer of the East 126th Street Station. The police said he had been backing from the doorway of the building carrying a pistol when Mayer fired.

The other man shot and killed was James McCann, another alleged bandit, believed to have been implicated in the hold-up. He was shot by Patrolman Conklin of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station, a few minutes after the hold-up. At Eighty-second Street and Third Avenue the patrolman saw McCann walking with William Nagle, 32 years old, of 1,562 Second Avenue, and called to them to halt after they had been pointed out to him by two passers-by, who said the men had taken part in the hold-up. According to Conklin, Nagle attempted to draw a revolver, and the patrolman fired, dropping Nagle to the sidewalk. McCann started to run away, but was brought down by a bullet from Conklin's revolver.

Nagle is now in Lenox Hill Hospital.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 9.—In a South Baltimore theatre on Warner Street audiences have been thrilled twice daily as Susie Maturio, eighteen-year-old wife of Pedro Maturio, late of Oklahoma, posed with a penny between her teeth while her husband shot it away.

Last night Mrs Maturio appeared as usual in her Indian garb and placed the coin between her teeth. Her husband, dressed as an Indian chief, took position about 20 feet away and aimed a .22-caliber rifle. Both smiled as spectators became tense.

Mrs. Maturio signaled, the shot was fired; then Mrs. Maturio screamed. Half an hour later Mrs. Maturio was treated at the South Baltimore General Hospital for a slight wound on the upper lip.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 9.—A burglar who was attempting to saw through two-inch iron bars with a nail file escaped here as police arrived on the scene early today.

Word was received at police headquarters that a man was attempting to rob a store at 107 South Tennessee Avenue. Detectives who hastened to the spot found that the would-be thief had made shallow cuts in the bars protecting a window. The nail file lay near by. It was estimated that with such a tool it would have taken the burglar several hours to cut one bar.

OLDFIELD TO ROUSE DEMOCRATS IN WEST

PLANS TO VISIT 12 STATES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Representative William A. Oldfield, Chairman of the Democratic National Congressional Committee, which manages the campaigns of Democratic candidates for the House of Representatives, announced today that he would start on Aug. 15 on an extensive tour of the West with the object of rousing Democratic workers to organize for the Congressional elections of next year.

He said he had paved the way for his tour by communicating with Democratic National Committeemen, State Chairmen and other leading men of the party, and had been assured that he would have large and enthusiastic audiences in the States in which he is to deliver addresses.

Chairman Oldfield will visit a dozen States. His first stop will be at Omaha on Aug. 17, when he will address the Nebraska State organization of the Democratic Party. In addition to Nebraska, his speech-making itinerary covers Colorado, Utah, California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa and Ohio. He expects to be absent a month.

"Democratic leaders in all of these States have written me that the West is ripe for a great Democratic movement," Mr. Oldfield said today.

"They tell me that the Western farmers are disgusted with the Administration, with its protective tariff which protects only the rich, with its unfilled promises of agricultural and general prosperity, with its false claims of economy and its flat declaration to the farmers to work out their own salvation. A Democratic Congress would correct these evils. This is the fact I am going to drive home."

Mr. Oldfield also said that with the next Senate "virtually sure to pass into Democratic control" he was looking forward confidently to the first Democratic Congress since 1918. He said he was of the opinion that the great interest which is being shown at this early date before next year's elections by voters in doubtful States "is a sure sign that the Democrats will win in 1926."

Commenting upon recent statements of leading supporters of the Coolidge Administration that a vigorous campaign would be started at once to maintain Republican control of the next House and Senate, Mr. Oldfield said this was because the leaders were scared and realized that this "Administration and Republican doctrines are becoming more unpopular every day."

Growing sentiment, which he asserted existed among farmers against the Forney-McCumber tariff and his avowed dissatisfaction of labor officials with industrial conditions, he cited as evidences of a "great change in the political sentiment of the country."

MACMILLAN VISITS GREELY'S OLD CAMP

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—The value of the airplane in covering difficult terrain in the frozen north was again demonstrated today when the National Geographic Society was notified by Commander Donald B. MacMillan that he and Commander Richard E. Byrd had covered in two hours as much territory as could ordinarily be traversed with dog teams in fifteen days. MacMillan and Byrd, piloted by Lieutenants Schur and Reber, flew 120 miles westward from Etah, visiting the Greely camp of 1884 and going to the head of Froler Bay, ninety miles beyond, before returning to Etah. The message from MacMillan read:

"Commander Byrd and I left Etah last night (Saturday) at 4 o'clock in two planes piloted by Lieutenant A. N. Schur and Lieutenant E. E. Reber, for reconnoitring Ellesmere Island.

"Smith Sound was well covered with ice. We arrived at the Greely camp of 1884, where eighteen men died of starvation, in twenty minutes, and then reached the head of Froler Bay, ninety miles to the west, in one hour and twelve minutes. We found land at 3,000 feet, buried in low-lying clouds.

"We returned to Etah, with strong north winds, in one hour, having covered as much territory in two hours as generally covered with dogs in fifteen days. The United States navy planes worked well, with the exception of a few minor troubles. Weather conditions improving. MACMILLAN."

This message and an earlier one were relayed by Amateur Radio Operator Arthur A. Collins of Cedar Rapids, Iowa. The earlier message said:

"Pigeons were released for the first time late in the afternoon. Two females returned to sit on their eggs. This morning there were four of the birds in the cote."

by which the agent in the booth opens or closes the exit gates of the station. With the piece of cord he bound the change agent's hands behind his back.

The change bag meanwhile had been wrested from the change agent by the armed robber, who acted as change man while he quickly swept all the currency in sight into the bag already partly filled from the turnstiles. When the pair had cleaned out the booth, they poked their pistols into the ribs of Duncan, he said, and warned him they would kill him if he tried to give an alarm. Closing the door quietly behind them, the intruders disappeared.

Duncan said he did not wait to free himself. He used his head, when deprived of the use of his hands, and butted the telephone receiver off the hook. He then shouted into the transmitter loudly to be sure of making himself heard:

"Holdup, booth 4! Holdup, booth 4!"

He yelled repeatedly and his shouts were heard by other change agents all along the line whose booths were connected by telephone. One of the other agents called up the police and reported the hold up, and detectives hurried to the station. Duncan said he believed the two bandits had run up the stairs in the northwest corner of the station and jumped into a taxicab.

He said they were young men. One was about 21 and the other about 23 years old. Both were of medium height and of dark complexion, according to Duncan. An investigation showed that the change counter, a cash drawer and a safe in the booth had been cleaned out.

BRIDES CAN'T COOK, CONTEST DISCLOSES

COOKING CALLED A "GIFT"

Newlyweds Are Good Only at Salads and Don't Like the Kitchen, One Declares.

No bride cooked well enough to win a place as a semi-finalist in the home-cooking contest held by the United Restaurant Owners' Association, according to an announcement yesterday of the first results. Thousands of recipes were submitted for five different dishes. The dishes were the favorites named by restaurant patrons in a recent referendum. The restaurant owners, after discovering a preference by their patrons for American dishes, have set out to find the best American home-cooking recipes for those dishes.

Analysis of the recipes submitted and study of the contestants have disclosed some interesting facts, according to the United Restaurant Owners' Association whose announcement of the preliminary results among other things says:

"Can brides cook? Cap the modern generation compete with its mothers and grandmothers? Which borough submitted the largest number of successful recipes? Is cooking one of nature's gifts?"

After studying the recipes, of which a few score have been selected for the final contest, and after questioning the contestants, the United Restaurant Owners' Association announced the following results:

The past generation—the generation of mothers and grandmothers—submitted all of the best recipes. No one of the semi-finalists was born after 1900. None of the semi-finalists was a bride of a year or less. About 35 per cent., however, confessed that they learned to cook after they were married.

Husbands Are Their Critics.

All of these leaders are from the boroughs of Manhattan, Brooklyn and the Bronx. Sixty-one per cent. live in Manhattan, 19 per cent. in Brooklyn and 19 per cent. in the Bronx. Eighty-eight per cent. of these are married women and most of them confess that their criterion of good cooking is their husband's palate. Seventy-four per cent. of the semi-finalists were born in this country and 26 per cent. abroad. The 74 per cent. is divided equally between those born in New York City and its immediate environs and those born in other parts of the country. Most of the women said that they liked to cook. Most of them said that it was necessary to like to cook to be able to cook well. Opinion was divided as to whether cooking is a gift outright or a skill that any one might acquire by industrious application.

The majority of the women felt that the modern generation did not measure up to the past generation in cooking skill. "They are keen young people," one woman remarked, "but they aren't interested in cooking. It is too easy to go out and buy something to eat. They should be able to become excellent cooks—but they'd rather have a good time." Another confessed that "they are good at preparing salads and dainty dishes but they can't prepare substantial foods." Several women said they believed that the number of divorces would fall off rapidly if young women would devote more time to preparing their husbands' dinners. "A well-fed male is a happy and contented person and scarcely any trouble at all," was the frank diagnosis of one semi-finalist.

Filet of Sole a Favorite.

Manhattan showed the most eelectic taste of the three boroughs. Thirty per cent. of the best recipes from that borough were the filet of sole. Chicken fricassee was next with 25 per cent., corned beef and cabbage third with 21 per cent., vegetable dinner fourth with 14 per cent. and hash last with a scant 10 per cent.

Brooklyn and the Bronx were more positive in their tastes and both agreed on chicken fricassee. Fifty per cent. of the best recipes were for chicken fricassee in both boroughs. Brooklyn preferred corned beef and cabbage as its second choice, however and the Bronx showed more interest in hash, each giving approximately 35 per cent. of their attention to these two dishes.

The home-cooking recipe contest closed last Wednesday. The final winners will be selected by a committee of judges including Senator Royal S. Copeland, Florence Brobeck, Katherine A. Fisher and Winifred Stuart Gibbs.

LAKE SWALLOWED UP BY TENNESSEE CAVE

Water Teeming With Fish Pours Through a Break in the Roof of the Cavern.

Special to The New York Times.

MAYFIELD, Ky., Aug. 9.—Particulars have reached here from the Idaho Springs vicinity, across the Kentucky line in Tennessee, of the swallowing up of a small lake on the farm of C. P. Warfield by the collapse of the roof of a cave. The lake dropped into subterranean regions with a roar like that of a locomotive's passing, according to the story attributed to W. L. Warfield, who rushed to the spot and saw the water dropping into the cavern.

In place of the lake was left an insignificant pool. When first seen by Mr. Warfield the hole was about four feet in diameter, and the water rushed down in a torrent, carrying fish and turtles. The water plowed through its new channel under ground and found a new exit a few hundred yards from its former location. Mingling with the water from a spring, the lake fluid is asserted to have swelled a brook into a small river.

The lake, noted for its large supply of fish, was deep and clear and about an acre in extent. It is believed that under the farm there is a huge cavern, as it is reported that soon after the water disappeared from the lake, other caves opened up about the muddy bottom. The farm is near Duncan Cave, and in the region in Kentucky and Tennessee, under which are numerous underground chambers, including Sand Cave, where Floyd Collins was trapped and met death last February.

The greatest values in automobile history

IN THE SERIES OF CARS just presented, General Motors believes that Buick, Cadillac, Chevrolet, Oakland and Oldsmobile are offering the greatest values in the history of the industry.

Important improvements in chassis construction give greater simplicity and afford increased performance. Refinements in body designs add greatly to attractiveness and comfort.

Every change has been made with quality as the prime consideration. Quality is the first law of General Motors. Enormous sums have been invested in more intensive engineering, in labor-saving methods, in reconstruction—wherever a better result might be achieved.

Naturally, great economies are attainable in such an organization as General Motors. It enjoys every advantage of quantity production; it sells in every market of the world. General Motors is passing these economies on to the purchaser. This makes possible the extraordinary values now offered.

The public may depend upon these values. Every car is a car of quality.

BOY DIES UNDER CAR AS RESCUERS WORK

BABY HURT BY AUTOMOBILE

Tenement Dwellers Mob Grocer's Clerk When Machine Leaps Curb and Splinters Carriage.

A nine-year-old boy, Wadeslaw Kowalski, of 132 Steuben Street, Jersey City, was run over by a Newark street car at Grand and Washington Streets, Jersey City, yesterday afternoon and fatally injured. The boy was playing in the street and was caught by the car as it turned from Washington Street into Grand Street.

The dying boy was pinned under the forward truck and a fire company was called to extricate him. Powerful jacks, borrowed from a near-by garage, were placed under the car, and as they began to lift it Fire Captain Fox called to the still conscious boy:

"Take it easy, young man. We'll have you out of there in a jiffy."

"All right, mister, I won't cry," said the boy.

These were his last words. A moment later he fainted and he was dead before he could be placed in an ambulance. Father John Cotter was summoned from St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church, near the scene of the accident, and administered the last rites. The motorman was arrested on a technical charge of manslaughter.

William Brown, a grocer's clerk, of 438 West Fifty-eighth Street, was surrounded by a threatening mob of tenement dwellers yesterday evening after the touring car he had purchased a few weeks ago had leaped the curb, demolished a baby carriage and injured a 17-months-old boy. Policemen attracted by the shouts of the crowd ran up and rescued the young man as several men were pulling him from his machine and striking him. He was locked in the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station charged with reckless driving and third degree assault. Brown was so nervous at the police station that he could hardly give his pedigree.

Brown was driving in Ninth Avenue between Forty-ninth and Fiftieth Streets at 6 o'clock, when a boy darted across the street in front of him. He swerved to avoid striking the boy and his car ran into an elevated pillar. Brown was excited and in backing out lost control of his car and it lunged over the curb and across the sidewalk.

Mrs. Kate Andriachi was passing, wheeling her baby, Adrian. The runaway car grazed her and smashed the baby carriage to splinters. Mrs. Andriachi screamed and fainted. Bystanders picked the baby up from the débris and expected to find him crushed to death. He was only whimpering, however. The mother and child were taken in a taxicab to Polyclinic Hospital near by, where it was found that the baby's left arm probably was fractured, but he had no other injuries.

Meanwhile Brown was sitting helpless in his stalled automobile, while hundreds came pouring out of the tenements at the rumor that a motorist had killed a baby. The police rescued him and arrested him before the tenants had done him any harm.

Boy, 10 Years Old, Hurt.

Eugene Cole, 10 years old, of 838 Second Avenue, was struck by an automobile yesterday afternoon at Forty-fifth Street and Second Avenue and taken to Bellevue Hospital with a fractured skull. The physicians said his condition was serious. The operator of the car, Michael Dushane, of 18 Oliver Street, Cohoes, N. Y., was locked up in the East Fifty-first Street Station charged with driving an automobile with defective brakes.

James Curley of 237 East Forty-sixth Street drove his automobile into the rear end of a police automobile early yesterday morning and injured two policemen. He was arrested on a charge of reckless driving.

The accident occurred in front of 1,025 Second Avenue. The police car was overturned. In it were Patrolmen Louis Woelsel of 971 Madison Street, Brooklyn, and Michael Murray of 1,724 Madison Street, Brooklyn. Woelsel suffered cuts and bruises on his head and went home. Murray's feet were bruised, but he continued on duty.

Policeman Thomas Newton, 25 years old, of 118 East Third Street, Brooklyn, was seriously injured by an automobile last night while he was on traffic duty beneath the elevated structure at Ocean Parkway and Brighton Beach Avenue, Coney Island. Newton was knocked down by an automobile driven by Louis Spector, 34 years old, of 1,066 Flotbush Avenue, Brooklyn. He was taken in a taxicab to Coney Island Hospital suffering from a fractured right leg and lacerations around the right eye. Spector was arrested on an assault charge.

Two Hurt As Car Overturns.

William Ropperger, 17 years old of 278 Jefferson Street, and Harry Ivanhoff, 17, of 373 Suydam Street, both of Brooklyn, were injured yesterday when their automobile overturned while attempting to pass another automobile going in the same direction at the junction of the Old Country Road and the Jericho Turnpike. The other automobile did not stop. The youths were taken to the Nassau County Hospital in Mineola. Ivanhoff was attended for a fracture of the collarbone and went home. Ropperger remained there. His skull may be fractured.

The automobile in which Ropperger and Ivanhoff were riding was driven by Arthur Menzenger of 178 Jefferson Street, Brooklyn, who escaped injury.

Mrs. Anna Wallace, 45 years old, of 150 Yonkers Avenue, Yonkers, is in a critical condition in St. John's Hospital, Yonkers, from injuries received when a motorcycle with side car ran up on the sidewalk and knocked her down. The driver of the motorcycle, according to the police, was Dominick de Rito of 127 Vineyard Avenue, Yonkers. They allege he abandoned his machine and fled on foot and have sent out a general alarm for him.

Raymond McGuire and Awistle Little, both of Dover, N. J., were seriously injured yesterday in an automobile collision near Shaffer's Grill, Lake Hopatcong. Both men were badly cut about the head and body and were taken to the Dover General Hospital critically hurt.

4 HURT IN TROLLEY CRASH.

Motorman Who Had Fainted at His Post Is Arrested.

Two West New York trolley cars were in a rear-end collision at Washington Avenue and Eighth Street, Hoboken, late last night. Four persons were injured.

Dominick Drexler, 30 years old, of 625 Centre Street, North Bergen, was taken to St. Mary's Hspital with serious cuts on the head and body. The others injured were Mrs. Mary Blanck, 70 years old, of 735 Park Avenue, Hoboken; her daughter, Miss Mada Blanck, of the same address, and Mrs. Sophie Lindeman, 45 years old, of 827 Garden Street, Hoboken. All were passengers in the first car, the rear end of which was badly damaged.

The motorman of the second trolley, Charles Zimmerman, 22 years old, of 3,000 Bergenline Avenue, Union City, was arrested on a charge of atrocious assault and battery, preferred by Drexler. He admitted to police that he had suffered a fainting spell as his car approached Eighth Street, where the first car was stopped, and that everything had been black to him until the crash came. He was not injured.

CORNERED BY POLICE, SCHWARTZ ENDS LIFE

munds, a lifelong friend, and also an intimate of the man "Warren," of the strange actions of the new tenant.

After comparing notes and studying the pictures of Schwartz that appeared in newspapers, they determined that Warren and Schwartz were the same.

The matter preyed upon their minds, and at 8 o'clock this morning Edmunds informed Captain Clarence Lee of the Berkeley police. Lee, with Policeman Ralph Pigeon of Berkeley and Detectives Robert Goodwin, Julius Sternitzky and Policeman John McCumber of Oakland, hurried to the Nottingham Apartments.

All means of escape were blocked. Goodwin and Hayward then went to the front door of Schwartz's apartment.

"Harold, let me in; this is Hayward," said the apartment manager.

They heard Schwartz walking inside. But he had sensed that something was wrong in this early morning visit. He refused to reply.

Goodwin and Sternitzky then went to the rear door of the apartment and demanded entrance. They made known that they were police officers and then began crashing down the door.

The muffled report of the revolver was heard and, when the officers finally won admission, they found Schwartz breathing his last, lying on a sofa and bleeding from the wound where a bullet had been fired through his right eye.

He was rushed to the Oakland Emergency Hospital, but was dead on arrival.

Farewell Note Claims Self-Defense.

In a sealed envelope was his farewell letter addressed to "My dear wife and children," indicating that he had entertained small hope of escape. In this note he asserted that the slaying was in sudden self-defense; that a hobo wandered into the plant and fought with him when a demand for money and employment was rejected. In part the note reads:

"I am writing you without making any excuses, but one thing I will tell you, I am not guilty of the crime they accuse me of. Last Monday or Tuesday a man called at the factory for work. I was in the lab. He came straight in. We talked to each other for a while, when suddenly the man told me if I wouldn't give him work I would have to give him money.

"He attacked me. I gave him a blow on his head. He fell. I gave him another. I never thought for a moment to let it go, but I could not make up my mind to go to Bell (Schwartz's lawyer) and tell him.

"I decided to run away but made a dirty job of it. I put the man in the closet. I do not know the man, never looked how he was dressed, never touched him after that.

"The only thing I did was, I tried to burn him, to wipe out and go—go I do not know where.

"Can you imagine how I felt all the time, feeling I had to lose you and the dear boys? Oh, God, how I suffered!

"If I had not this damned suit on of Mrs. Ad (referring to Elizabeth Adams of Oakland, who had sued him for breach of promise), I would have gone through with that, but it was impossible.

"I did not plan before this happened. No, I was so glad to go on so nicely with my work and to have you and the boys with me, and then the end came of this beautiful dream.

"I went home to take all my photos and all I was in need of was to have a few words with you. I have kissed the boys good-bye but not you. So I kiss this in bidding you good-bye."

Contrary to the claims set up in this letter, the investigators now have a conclusive chain of evidence to show that Schwartz not only knew his victim, but had planned the crime long in advance with a view to sharing in $200,000 worth of insurance carried by him and had perpetrated the slaying in a cold-blooded, calculating manner.

The victim is now definitely established as Gilbert W. Barbe, a wandering missionary, a college graduate and a hobo of refinement and peace.

That Schwartz and Barbe were acquainted was discovered yesterday by a Contra Costa County Deputy Sheriff. In Los Angeles he found two men who knew both Schwartz and Barbe and knew that Schwartz on occasions had befriended the evangelist.

In reconstructing the motive and the crime, District Attorney A. B. Tinning and Sheriff R. R. Veale of Contra Costa County point out that the Pacific Cellulose Company, an institution for the advertised purpose of manufacturing artificial silk, from cellulose after a secret formula said to have been held by Schwartz, was a stock selling scheme.

For two years the factory had been preparing for operation. But no product had ever been turned out. Schwartz was being financially pressed. He carried heavy insurance, part of which named the company as a beneficiary and the rest was to go to Mrs. Schwartz.

Mrs. Schwartz Collapses at News.

OAKLAND, Cal., Aug. 9 (AP).—Mrs. Charles H. Schwartz collapsed when notified of her husband's suicide after being trapped by the police in an apartment here today. She was under medical attention tonight.

Schwartz, a native of Germany, was general manager of the chemical company at Walnut Creek, near Martinez, north of here. His home was near his laboratory.

On the night of July 30 he had been working in the laboratory and phoned his wife that he would be home soon. Twenty minutes later an explosion occurred.

Persons living near by rushed in and found a body they took to be that of the chemist. It was badly burned, the features charred beyond recognition. The authorities found that blows on the head had been struck before death. Experts learned that acid had been applied to the face.

The fingers had been cut off, apparently to prevent identification by fingerprints.

Several discrepancies between characteristics of the dead man and those of Schwartz were found. It soon became evident that an effort had been made to have the body conform to the peculiarities of Schwartz. A tooth corresponding to one missing in Schwartz' mouth had been chiseled from the corpse.

Victim's Body Identified.

The identification of the body as that of Gilbert D. Barbe came after the discovery of three religious books and part of a letter in the laboratory. Barbe traveled for a Pentacostal mission, had been a war veteran, a college student and a migratory laborer. He had been missing since late in July from the vicinity of Los Gatos, Cal., where he lived.

Cecil Barker, a Placerville, Cal., undertaker, identified the body as Barbe's. Information from Jersey Shore, Pa., indicated the Rev. John Barb there is the father of Gilbert Warren Barbe, who became estranged from the family fifteen years ago and changed his name slightly. Army records show Gilbert Barb enlisted and spent some time at Fort McDowell after the United States entered the World War.

Until the last Mrs. Schwartz, wife of the chemist who specialized in amateur criminology, said "at the proper time" she would produce "undisputable evidence in the form of physical peculiarities," which would "definitely establish the identity of the charred body" as that of her husband.

Search for Schwartz began when authorities were not satisfied with his wife's identification of the body found in the partly burned chemical plant. He was hunted on ocean steamers when it was found he had left a note to his wife advising her to go to England in the event of his death.

Schwartz's old-country name was said to be Leon Henry Schwartzhoff.

HER SCREAMS FOIL DRUG STORE HOLD-UP

MAN FLEES BEFORE NOISE

When Man Clerk Comes to Aid, Intruder Had Escaped in Auto—Too Dark to See License.

A woman's scream foiled a hold-up last night in a drug store at Washington Avenue and 164th Street, the Bronx, owned by Morris Ragelson. Shortly before 10 o'clock a young man dressed in a chauffeur's uniform entered the store and walked to a counter, behind which stood Miss Belle Wiener, a clerk. Something about the young man's bearing made her suspicious. As he approached she turned and walked toward the rear of the store.

"Wait a minute, Miss," she heard the young man call. She looked around and found herself facing a pistol. The chauffeur, who had been wearing gauntlets when he entered the store, had discarded the right one, in which he had evidently concealed the revolver. The sight of the gun so terrified Miss Wiener that she began shrieking and made no effort to stop. Morris Rosenblatt, another clerk, who was in a balcony, started down the stairs to her aid. The chauffeur, unable to quiet Miss Wiener, fled. When Rosenblatt reached the sidewalk he saw a handsome automobile speeding down the street, so far away that its number was not visible in the darkness.

CALLED CAR THIEVES' HEAD.

Special to The New York Times.

HARRISON, N. J., Aug. 9.—William Struble of 9 Ogden Avenue was arrested here tonight by Detectives Dennebaum and Byrnes of the Auto Squad of the Newark police, charged with violating the Dyer act—a Federal law which prohibits the transportation of stolen automobiles from one State to another.

In capturing him the Newark police believe that they have caught the head of a gang of automobile thieves which has been operating in New Jersey and Pennsylvania for a year. The gang has stolen between forty and fifty Ford cars, according to the police, and after rebuilding them and mutilating the engine numbers they were sold. Acting on information obtained from alleged members of the gang who were arrested in Trenton and Philadelphia several months ago, the Newark police have been looking for the man they described as "Phil Smith."

Detectives Dennebaum and Byrnes trailed one of the men, who had been arrested and was out on bail, to the home of Struble, where they discovered, they said, that he and "Phil Smith" were the same man. He is the son of the Assistant Superintendent of the Bureau of Street Cleaning in Newark. At Police Headquarters he denied any connection with the thefts. He will be arraigned today before United States Commissioner George Sommer.

SHOTS HALT STOLEN AUTO.

Policeman Arrests Two Men a Few Minutes After Theft Was Reported.

A few minutes after the theft of a taxicab had been reported to him yesterday afternoon, Patrolman Tunney of Motorcycle Corps 1 saw it speeding west on North Moore Street. He fired four shots and captured the men after a short chase. They described themselves as James Hughes, 19 years old, of 412 Canal Street, and Francis Gallagher, 18, of 52 Dominick Street. Charged with grand larceny, both were locked up at the Beach Street station.

Joseph Gleicher of 836 Montgomery Street, Brooklyn, the driver of the taxicab, told Tunney that he had left it five minutes at the corner of Varick and Dominick Streets, where it was stolen. A few minutes later, at the corner of Varick and North Moore Streets, Tunney sighted the taxi. He captured the alleged thieves at Hudson and Beach Streets.

JERSEY DEMOCRATS TO BACK A REPUBLICAN

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 9.—Charles I. Lafferty, Atlantic County Democratic leader, will support a Republican, Samuel P. Leeds, in the coming State Senatorial elections, according to an undenied report here. Mr. Leeds, who is a hotel owner and President of the Atlantic City Chamber of oCmmerce, will oppose the reelection of State Senator Emerson L. Richards, the Republican organization man. According to the report, the Democratic candidate will be withdrawn.

This means a bitter struggle and probably the climax of a long war between the hitherto victorious Republican organization and what has been regarded as the "reform element."

Mr. Lafferty, whose action is said to have the approval of Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, State Democratic leader, will neither confirm or deny the report, but unofficially every one in political circles here acknowledges its truth.

The present Judge of the Atlantic County Court of Common Pleas and the County Prosecutor, are, respectively, William H. Smathers and Louis Repetto, both Democrats. Senator Richards, it is said, has promised that, if he is elected, he will refuse to consent to the reappointment of either, and will insist that the Governor name other Democrats for these posts. Mr. Leeds, it is understood, has promised that he would not, if elected, oppose the renomination of these two men.

In order that Mr. Leeds may be sure of the full Democratic support, Robert L. Warke Jr., the Democratic candidate for the State Senate, will withdraw, it is said. He has already been named a special assistant prosecutor.

Isaac Nutter, negro Republican leader who has been bitterly opposing the organization and who polled 5,000 votes at the last election, has announced he will support Mr. Leeds.

HELD IN CLUB SHOOTING.

Wounded Man Asked About Ousting, Then Fired, Say Members.

With a bullet wound in the back of his head, Cornelius O'Keefe, 22 years old, of 609 Eleventh Avenue, is in Bellevue Hospital, where he was taken, charged with felonious assault and violation of the Sullivan law, early yesterday morning.

Patrolman George Ward of the West Forty-seventh Street station, was on post near Forty-third Street and Eleventh Avenue about midnight when he heard a half dozen shots in the vicinity of the Raleigh Club, a social organization at 558 Eleventh Avenue. As the patrolman ran toward the club he was met by O'Keefe, who collapsed in his arms. Ward said the prisoner had been carrying a revolver in his hand.

Members of the club told Ward, he said, that O'Keefe had been suspended from membership in the club a month ago for non-payment of dues. Shortly before midnight, they said, he entered and demanded to know the reason for his suspension. Without warning, the members said, according to the patrolman, O'Keefe drew a revolver, fired five shots and ran from the club. Several other shots were fired by some one, one of them striking O'Keefe as he ran south on the avenue.

GIRL HELD IN MURDER CASE.

Four Now Are Prisoners for Detective Heneberry's Death.

The number of prisoners in connection with the death of Detective Richard E. Heneberry of the truck squad, was raised to four yesterday morning, when Alma Johnson, 17 years old, and Michael Gudice, 27, both of 133 Cumberland Street, Brooklyn, were held without bail by Magistrate Jean Norris in Jefferson Market Court. They were held without bail for arraignment in Homicide Court.

Detective Heneberry died Saturday morning in Roosevelt Hospital from gunshot wounds received two days before at Thirty-fourth Street and Ninth Avenue in a gun battle with four men in a sedan whom he had attempted to stop and question. Gudice and the Johnson girl were arrested at their home late Saturday afternoon by Detective Louis Barnett of the Safe and Loft Squad. They made no statement in court.

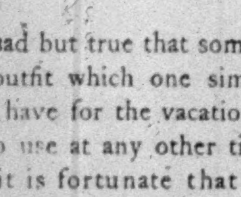
Brokaw

Fancy Suits are Reduced $5, $10, $15

MANY a man has been robbed of his vacation pleasure by watching a pair of white flannels growing less so from day to day, and wondering if, like the Lost Battalion they'll hold out for the full two weeks. And when you notice that the knickers which Everybody is wearing is of a cut quite different from yours—the inevitable conclusion is that you are Nobody...!

* * *

It's sad but true that some of the outfit which one simply must have for the vacation is of no use at any other time. But it is fortunate that the Brokaw Sale comes just at the vacation season—and enables you to buy the things you need at prices which are really most moderate.



SPEAKING of vacations, there's a certain knack in packing clothes which prevents their wrinkling in the trunk, and arriving at their destination looking as though they have been pressed with waffle-irons. It's a little secret in folding which our shipping department has known for many years; and although we don't guarantee the results for a very long trip, we believe that it's just about the best way of packing clothes.

It's very simple, and any Brokaw salesman will gladly show you how to do it.

By MORDAUNT HALL.

A Cowardly Husband.

THE HOME MAKER, with Alice Joyce, Clive Brook, Billy Kent Schaeffer, Maurice Murphy, Jacqueline Wells, Frank Newburg, George Fawcett, Margaret Campbell, Martha Mattox, Alfred Fisher, Alice Flower, Virginia Boardman, Elaine Ellis, Mary Gordon and Lloyd Whitlock, adapted from Dorothy Canfield's story, directed by King Baggot; overture, "My Hero;" Roger Dixon, tenor, "Pagliacci;" "The Garden of Enchantment," a musical novelty, with Mr. and Mrs. Paul Petching and Dolores Farris. At the Colony.

The tables are turned on the husband and wife in the film version of Dorothy Canfield's story, "The Home Maker," which is the high-light on the Colony program this week. Brighter and more imaginative direction and the exclusion of unnecessary details, some of which are repellent, would have added much to the worth of this vehicle; but to make this production really satisfactory the utterly impossible ending should also have been changed for the picture. As it stands one can't help thinking that three talented players have been wasted on this photoplay.

It is a shadow story which causes one to sigh frequently, not in sympathy with the film, but with one's self, or because one feels that one's intelligence is so often insulted. There are subtitles with artificial baby chatter and others in which the characters are credited with preposterous utterances. We would have thought that a man who had sense enough to read portions of Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress" to his children would have had enough persistence and imagination to earn his own living and take his hard knocks with courage and a smile. Lester Knapp, the father and husband, is a comparatively young man, and yet because he is discharged from his job he goes all to pieces, meditating over suicide. He finally injures himself so that he is confined to a wheel chair.

His action is only palliated by his hope that he would be killed, so that the $10,000 life insurance would go to his family. After the supposed accident the wife goes forth in search of work, and eventually succeeds in earning twice as much as her husband did when he was employed. Knapp satisfies himself by proving that he is a better guardian for the children than their mother.

In an early sequence Knapp is deeply disappointed when his rival is promoted to the office managership. The head of the concern invites Knapp into his private office and informs him that he is going to appoint the other man. This is in itself unusual and spiteful, as one would think that the employer would have contented himself by merely telling the rival of his promotion. Then the new manager is made to take his authority in a childish fashion as he announces to Knapp:

"I'm your boss from now on."

Mrs. Knapp is impersonated by Alice Joyce, who is out of her element in such a role. She is seen scrubbing a floor, apparently concentrating her elbow grease on a part of the boards about a foot long and six inches wide. They have a boy who has an unfortunate complaint, which is brought to the fore in a disturbing way, and another youngster who is bad-tempered and crafty. In an elementary fashion the director shows the thoughts of Mrs. Knapp one day when she can't find her child. Mr. Baggot flashes to an express train with the little boy standing in the middle of the tracks.

Clive Brook does handsomely by the character of Knapp, taking undue pains with his acting. Miss Joyce is far better suited to roles in which she is attractively gowned, as one can't imagine her as a struggling housewife. George Fawcett, that dependable actor, does his share of good work as the old doctor who makes a wonderful discovery and keeps the patient's secret.

It needed a man with Ernst Lubitsch's imagination to make a pleasing picture out of this story. Mr. Baggot has misconstrued that which is entertaining to the public, and he has emphasized things that could be taken for granted and skipped over details which might have made this picture much more interesting.

Barbed Wire and Bullets.

WILD HORSE MESA, with Jack Holt, Noah Beery, Billie Dove, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., George Magrill, George Irving, Edith Yorke, Bernard Seigle and Margaret Morris, adapted from a story by Zane Grey, directed by George B. Seitz; Ben Bernie and his orchestra in a novelty concert program; "The Tourist," a comedy, with Johnny Arthur. At the Rialto.

There must be hosts of people who find diversion in Western stories filled with shooting, slaughter and hard riding, for the producers would not turn out pictures of this type if they did not draw the crowds. It is, after all, a mere matter of taste, but we must confess that we found "Wild Horse Mesa," the picturization of one of Zane Grey's stories, quite dull. Upright heroes, good-looking girls with freshly trimmed Hollywood Boulevard bobs and sneering villains steeped in treachery make the screen world go round. And for this reason, perhaps, we have this production at the Rialto this week. It should not be confused with "Black Cyclone" or "Rex, the King of Wild Horses," as this current film depends more upon men and a girl than it does upon the animals, the wild horses being an incidental feature of the photoplay.

Barbed wire plays an important part in this narrative, and coils and coils of it are beheld in Lige Melberne's general store in a secluded Colorado valley. This barbed wire suggests a cruel method of capturing wild horses to Bent Manerube, who knows that Lige's business is in rather a hopeless state. It is Bent's idea to have the narrow end of a canyon fenced with the wire and then to stampede the horses into the trap. Lige thinks that it is an excellent way to recoup his financial losses.

After the yarn has run for a couple of chapters Chayne Weymer is introduced. He is the kind of sport who would not stoop to cruelty, his main ambition being to capture Panguitch, a fine stallion supposed to be the leader of the wild horses. Chayne is one of the cleverest horse-wranglers in that section of the country, and he frowns upon Bent's scheme, with the result that the latter is soundly thrashed by Chayne.

The high-light in this production is where Chayne heads off the herd of horses dashing toward the barbed wire bottle-neck of the canyon. No sooner has he succeeded in this startling and daring venture than he hears that the hundreds of horses have been swerved in the direction of a point ending in a dizzy precipice. His further courageous efforts are finally rewarded by seeing the stampeding animals turn in a safe direction. This sequence is quite exciting. There are scenes of the vast barren country and of the great herd of animals.

"If Benton's plan does not succeed father will be ruined."

Another runs:

"You must forgive me as I have never had the chance to meet a girl like you."

There are others in which an effort has been made to spell the words according to the pronunciation of the cowpuncher.

This story is in eight reels, which is another weakness. Mr. Holt, Mr. Beery and Billie Dove give competent performances. Douglas Fairbanks Jr. has a small part, which he fills in a praiseworthy way.

There are too many old tricks and too much forced villainy and love-making to stir up interest in this production, which for the most part is produced without much sense of humor.

Other Films.

"The Unholy Three," with Lon Chaney, Matt Moore and Mae Busch, is at the Capitol.

"Night Life in New York" is at the Broadway.

57 YOUNG WOMEN BACK FROM CONTEST TOUR

Among the cabin passengers who arrived yesterday from Bremen, Southampton, Cherbourg and Queenstown on the Republic of the United States Lines were the fifty-seven young American business women who won the trip abroad by helping to raise funds for the purchase of Thomas Jefferson's home at Monticello, near Charlottesville, Va.

Mrs. M. Andrees of Washington, D. C., who was in charge of the party, said they had spent three weeks abroad, chiefly in France, where they were entertained by the French Government officials and visited the American battlefields, in addition to seeing the sights in Paris and the palaces at Fontainebleau and Versailles.

On the voyage across, the young women were entertained at a special dinner in their honor by Captain A. B. Randall, master of the Republic, and later a fancy dress ball was held on the promenade deck, which was screened with canvas and illuminated with colored electric lights. The costume prize was won by Miss Leonore Cornwall of New York.

Miss Catherine J. Smith, Secretary to Park Commissioner E. T. O'Loughlin of Brooklyn, directed an entertainment she arranged for the benefit of the Seamen's Widows and Orphans Fund.

MEMORIAL TO A PATIENT.

Inmates at Montefiore Hospital Honor Max Messinger.

A memorial tablet erected to one of its patients by his fellow patients was unveiled yesterday in the Montefiore Hospital for Chronic Diseases, at Gun Hill Road and Bainbridge Avenue, the Bronx. Although tablets on hospital walls usually represent benefactions to the institution, this one is a tribute from the 600 patients who were cheered in his lifetime by Max Messinger.

Confined to his wheel chair for twelve years, Max Messinger was the good Samaritan of the hospital. His busy brain and fingers, the only parts of his body over which he had control, worked to create amusement for the other patients to whom he brought music, vaudeville, moving pictures, books, magazines and a social club, as well as a monthly paper, which he edited. By establishing contacts with performers and film companies, he was able to present a full performance each week to the hundreds who assembled on crutches and in wheel chairs for relaxation.

He received literature which he distributed to the others, and traveled about the wards, especially among the children. With a portable victrola perched on his wheel chair he played the records that friends had sent. For ten years he was the editor of the monthly paper, The Montefiore Echo, in which he encouraged the others to write.

On the walls, with memorials to such noted benefactors as Sir Moses Montefiore, Jacob H. Schiff, Professor Morris Loeb, has been placed a bronze plaque made possible by the small contributions of the patients, a simple expression of gratitude to Max Meninger.

ASK AMERICAN FILM CURB.

British Movie Men Want Long Advance Bookings Stopped.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—A suggestion that the British Government should take steps to make it impossible for British exhibitors to book American films a long way ahead, as is done at present, has been made to the President of the Board of Trade by members of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association, who waited on him.

It was represented that exhibitors were compelled to book American films twelve to eighteen months in advance and without the opportunity of seeing them. The possibility was discussed of the introduction of legislation to prevent the hiring of any film until passed by the censor and exhibited at a trade show.

A scheme for the establishment of a national film studio to be at the service of all British producers also was discussed.

WARNER BROTHERS BUY THE PICCADILLY

FOR INDEPENDENT FILMS

Purchasers to Remodel Interior of the House and Double the Size of the Orchestra.

Warner Brothers' Pictures, Inc., according to an announcement made yesterday at the company's offices, 1,600 Broadway, have purchased the Piccadilly Theatre, Fifty-second Street and Broadway. Although the exact price to be paid has not been settled, it is understood that it will be between $825,000 and $835,000. The deal was agreed upon late Saturday night between executives of Warner Brothers and Lee Ochs, President and managing director of the Piccadilly. Mr. Ochs will not retain his present position, but it is reported that he will serve Warner Brothers in connection with their other theatrical enterprises.

The Warner Brothers intend to enlarge the Piccadilly stage and remodel the interior of the house. They will also double the size of the orchestra.

The Piccadilly seats a little more than 1,200 and was opened about a year ago. From now on it will exhibit independent films.

The Warner Brothers are building a theatre in Hollywood to compete with Grauman's Egyptian Palace. They also have houses in the Middle West. Recently it was announced that they had purchased a theatre in the heart of Paris.

STORM STOPS CONCERT.

Rudolph Ganz attempted to give his farewell concert with the Philharmonic at the Stadium last evening, but the elements were against him. He managed to get through Beethoven's "Egmont" overture, but Brahms's Second Symphony was cut off at the first movement by one of New York's vivid thunderstorms.

The audience of four thousand hastily scaled the stone steps and took refuge under the colonnade, where they witnessed a brilliant display of lightning. The ushers, through megaphones, told the crowd that their tickets would be good for this evening, when Fritz Reiner will make his bow before the Stadium audience with Tchaikovsky's Fifth Symphony and Richard Strauss's "Don Juan."

PIRANDELLO TO TOUR.

Playwright to Give Works of Italian Dramatists in Central Europe.

ROME, Aug. 9 (AP).—Luigi Pirandello, the playwright, in an interview with L'Impero, says that hereafter he intends to spend five months each year in touring abroad in order to present not only the work of Italian dramatists but also that of playwrights whose plays are not produced in their own countries.

Pirandello said he would spend November and December of this year either in Spain or in the United States, returning to Rome in January. This Fall he will tour Central Europe, visiting Germany, Austria, Hungary, Czechoslovakia and perhaps Holland. He also will go to Copenhagen, where he has been invited to lecture.

This year Pirandello expects to put the finishing touches to three novels, one of which he has been working on for ten years. Besides this work, he is writing a play entitled "Those Pensioned by Memory."

Dorothy Donnelly Returns.

Dorothy Donnelly, the playwright who adapted "The Student Prince," returned yesterday from a four months' trip to Europe, which was spent in recuperating from an illness and looking for new plays. She brought back her musical comedy version of Booth Tarkington's novel "Seventeen" for the Shuberts, a comedy which she wrote in collaboration with Edward Sheldon, and a drama entitled "The Call of Life," written by the Austrian playwright, Arthur Schnitzel.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"It All Depends" will open at the Vanderbilt Theatre tonight.

Robert Milton will stage Marc Connelly's musical comedy, "How's the King?" in which Joe Cook will be starred. Rehearsals will begin today.

"Merry Merry," a musical comedy by Harlan Thompson and Harry Archer, authors of "Little Jesse James" and "My Girl," will open in Hartford on Aug. 31. The cast will include Marie Saxon, Joyce White, Lucila Mendez and Harry Puck.

"Love's Call," a play of Mexican setting by Joe Byron Totten, will be placed in rehearsal today with Galina Kopernak heading the cast. It will be presented by a new producing firm, Totten & Simmons.

"Ladies of the Evening," which reopens at the Lyceum a week from Monday night, will play an engagement of only three weeks before going on tour.

"Sky High" will begin its final two weeks at the Casino tonight.

"The Dagger," tried out about two months ago, will again be placed in rehearsal today. It is a melodrama by Marian Wightman, and will open at the Longacre Theatre the week of Sept. 7. The cast is headed by Ralph Morgan, Charles Richman, Sara Sothern, Emily Ann Wellman, John F. Hamilton, Saxon Kling, Isabel Leighton and Orlando Daly.

The cast of the musical version of "Captain Jinks," coming to the Martin Beck Theatre, will include Joe Brown, J. Harold Murray, Louise Brown, Sam Colt, Arthur West and Marion Sunshine.

A play entitled "oSuth Sea Love" is announced for production by F. Ralph Gervers.

"The Enchanted April," which comes to the Morosco on Aug. 24, will open in Stamford next Monday night.

BODY FOUND UNDER PIER.

Police hope to establish the identity of a man whose body was found floating in the East River under Pier 28, East River, foot of Catherine Street, yesterday afternoon, by the initials "E. D." tatooed on the left hand. The man was about 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighed about 175 pounds. He was about 55 years old, with sandy hair and mustache, and was dressed in a black mohair suit, blue shirt with white collar, black necktie and black shoes.

The body of Benjamin J. Sullivan, 15 years old, who was drowned Saturday night while swimming in the ocean off the foot of Forty-fourth Street, Edgemere, Queens, was recovered early yesterday. He lived at 2,195 Eighth Avenue, Manhattan.

The body found Saturday in the ocean off the foot of Beach 121st Street, Rockaway Beach, was identified at the morgue yesterday by Miss Mary Hexter as that of her brother, Joseph, cap manufacturer, with whom she lived at 65 Fort Washington Avenue, Manhattan. Hexter drowned on Aug. 5.

GIANTS BEAT REDS BUT LOSE FRISCH

Shortstop Dislocates Finger in Sixth Inning and Will Be Out for a Week.

RALLY IN EIGHTH WINS

By JAMES R. HARRISON.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 9.—There is no sunshine without its shadow. The Giants won a ball game today for the first time in a week, but they lost Frank Frisch, who dislocated, perhaps fractured, the third finger on his left hand and will be out probably for a week.

On the eve of the vital, not to say crucial, Pittsburgh series, this is a blow which cannot be softened by any known system of philosophy. While mingling freely with the Pirates the Giants will miss Mr. Frisch, to say the least. If there is one man whose smiling countenance is welcome on this ball club, it is the distinguished Fordham scholar.

Still, the Giants beat the Reds today, 5 to 4, and started the week in regal fashion. We have now had fire prevention week and apple week and every other sort of week, but the Giants intend to introduce a brand-new innovation in the shape of a victory week, with every day devoted to the work of snaring a ball game.

End Their Defeat String.

After losing six straight, it was refreshing to see our boys turn over a new leaf and strike out in the direction of a better life. The world was just about to crash down over their ears. Mr. McGraw sat in the dugout and dallied with the idea of doing something drastic and the athletes saw third place yawning like a horrible chasm.

But as somebody once remarked, it is darkest just before dawn, and on that theory the Giants stepped out and accumulated three winning runs in the eighth inning. Mr. Farrell, understudy to Frisch, started the rally with a double to centre and there was no stopping the New York landslide. For anybody else it would have been a single, but when Brother Farrell runs, he runs.

Frisch was hurt in the sixth inning, with the score tied at 2-all. Roush opened fire with a single to Kelly and took second when George threw the ball into the dugout. Schultz's single to left scored Roush.

Holke laid down a bunt which Terry tossed low to second. As Frisch reached for the ball Schultz tore into him and ripped the glove from his hand with the force of his slide. The ball went on to centre while Schultz sprinted for third.

Thinks His Finger Broken.

An examination by Dr. Walsh, club physician, revealed a dislocation, but Frisch himself is afraid that the finger is broken. The real truth will be determined in an X-ray examination to be made. The first joint has a big lump on the side. Frisch will be lucky if he plays again within a week.

Slightly less than five games behind the Pirates by winning, McGraw's minions went into the game fighting mad and determined to make somebody pay. The somebody was little Jakie May, the left-hander, who has been pitching great ball recently for Hendricks. McGraw sent his old reliable, Arthur Nehf, after the Redlegs. When you're down and out, call on Nehf.

The paid attendance at the Sunday final of a crowded series was 26,781, which means that close to 30,000 persons jammed into Redland Field. Several hundred fans sat on the grass in deep right, and all the temporary sections in left and right and in front of the grandstand were packed to the legal limit.

The screaming mob was treated to a surprise in the first inning when the Giants pulverized Mr. May for two runs on a walk to Southworth, Frisch's double and Meusel's single to right. But May promptly reformed and was a perfect puzzle.

Reds Tie the Count.

The Reds tied the score in the third as a result of a grotesque toss by Frisch.

With two out, Zitzmann singled and Pinelli doubled to left centre. Roush shot a grounder to Frisch, whose low throw pulled Terry off the bag. Zitzmann scored and Pinelli, by spry running, followed suit, catching Terry asleep.

Just before Frisch was injured in the sixth the Reds broke the tie, and again in the seventh they tallied once on Hargrave's double and Zitzmann's single.

Now you are up to the eighth. Southworth's bunt fell into Wingo's paws, but Farrell bounced a hit over second and kept on dashing around first. This daring sprint so amazed the veteran Roush that he threw badly to second. Farrell got credit for a two-bagger. Young walked and Meusel then doubled into the left-field crowd, scoring Farrell.

Hendricks almost yanked Mr. May at this point, but decided to let Jakie serve to the left-handed hitting Terry, who had fanned his first two times up. Bill bounded a hit over second, and thus went the ball game.

ROBINS LOSE EXHIBITION.

Succumb to Goodyear Rubber Company Nine by 5-4 in 10 Innings.

Special to The New York Times.

AKRON, Ohio, Aug. 9.—The baseball team representing the Goodyear Rubber Company, which a week ago forced the league-leading Pittsburgh Pirates to go into extra innings to win, not only went into extra innings with the Brooklyn Robins but beat them in ten frames by 5 to 4 here today.

It was the first exhibition game that the Robins lost to any team outside the realms of organized baseball in two seasons.

BRAVES ARE BEATEN TWICE BY THE CUBS

Lose First Game to Alexander, 8-1; Then Drop Second to Cooper by 13 to 3.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9 (AP).—Chicago was in a batting mood today and batted out a double victory over Boston by scores of 8 to 1 and 13 to 3. In the first game the Cubs had little difficulty bunching their hits off Jess Barnes, while Alexander never had to exert himself. In the second contest the Cubs jumped off to an early lead on Graham and continued their bombardment on three other Brave twirlers, while Cooper pitched effectively.

YANKS LOSE IN 12TH ON THURSTON'S HIT

White Sox Pitcher Also Makes Triple That Ties the Tally in Seventh Inning.

SHEELY UNTANGLES COUNT

By HARRY CROSS.

Edward Trowbridge Collins and his White Sox chastized the Yanks up at the Yankee Stadium yesterday in twelve innings by a calculus summary of 4 to 3. Something like 25,000 citizens and citizenesses, who did not fall for the lure of Coney Island and way stations, sat and enjoyed the fray.

Once again it was pitching which said the last word. Thurston was pitted against Urban Shocker, and if the truth must be known the Yanks outhit the Sox and liked it. The lads with the pale hose got eight hits and the Yanks' bats produced ten.

The pastime was gaily decorated with home runs. Gehrig and Meusel punched slaps over the hills, and for the Sox Earl Sheely lost all control over his inclinations and poked a homer into a far-away place.

Fox-trotting into the twelfth the two clubs were deadlocked at 3 to 3. Willie Kamm of the Coast, who is said to have cost Mr. Comiskey $100,000 in cold cash, pickled a single to left. Crouse followed this commendable example by socking a single to right, which naturally coaxed Kamm to third.

Kamm's Hit Settles.

Then who should come up but our old friend Thurston, who took the situation in his own hands and crashed a single to left which shoved Mr. Kamm over the platter with the joy unit.

Understand, the Yanks were not loafing. Take, for instance, the second inning. With one Yank demolished, Gehrig struck a blow for old Columbia and jarred a homer into the right field steerage. That was all well enough until the Sox's third. First Crouse went down fighting, Johnson to Gehrig, but Thurston, crafty fellow, waited and was rewarded with a ticket.

After Johnny Mostil had forced Thurston, young Mr. Davis waltzed up, poked a double to right and over the pan went Mostil as big as life and twice as natural.

That run, which tied the score, didn't embarrass the Yanks one bit. In their section of the same canto, with two down, Combs singled to right. Ernie Johnson's single sent him to second and none oter but Babe Ruth tickled a single to right, shoving Combs home with an honest-to-goodness tally. Ring the joy bells, the Yanks were in front!

Advance cautiously, if you please, to the seventh, in which an innocent bystander found the lads from the Windy City getting unduly ambitious. Harry Hooper, the veteran of many a baseball campaign, used his left-handed swing to good advantage and belted a double to left. Kamm, try as he would, did nothing better than force Hooper.

Helps Himself to a Triple.

Crouse forced Kamm and Thurston decided that he must help himself even if his clubmates were lax in their cooperation. The Sox deceiver hammered a tremendous rap to left centre for three pillows, encouraging Crouse over with the run which tied the arithmetic.

In the eighth, fellow Democrats and Republicans, with two Sox eliminated, Sheely of Texas kissed the leather with a healthy piece of ash and whanged a homer into the steerage seats in left.

Even that did not phase the Yanks. Came the ninth, dawn of a new day with its joys and sorrows. Bob Meusel, who calls home the Golden Gate, just struck a graceful, solid stroke for his side, and, using your eye, you could see the ball go soaring like a swallow into the left-field bleachers, tying the score.

Gehrig got a single and Dugan sacrificed him along a peg. Here was the chance for the Yanks to win the game, but no: Schang and Wanninger were easy outs and dropped the curtain on the inning.

The battle seethed along merrily until the twelfth, when the Sox hitsmiths got busy and Kamm, Crouse and Thurston won the game for the well known and estimable Windy City, hard by Lake Michigan.

BELFIELD PAIR WINS TITLE.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 9 (AP).—Walter Yearsley and Herman Dornheim of Belfield defeated E. M. (Buddy) Mann, Merion Cricket Club, and Harold Lane, Narberth Tennis Club, in the final doubles match of the Eastern States clay court tennis championship today. The scores were 6-4, 6-4, 6-1.

Pickups and Putouts

The Yanks lost another one at the Stadium yesterday. But do not think for a moment that they are worrying. They have lost before and are used to it.

In behalf of Joe Dugan, back at his regular station at third base, it should be mentioned that he did his part, his every move pointing to a Yank victory.

Eddie Collins, manager and second baseman of the Sox, smiles at the advancing years, and if there is a better or a more agile second sacker in baseball, bring him on.

Lou Gehrig, the Columbia scholar, imbibes baseball day by day. One can see him improve with every game. A pair of oxen couldn't drag him away from first base.

There was some stylish fielding in the twelfth by both sides. Take, for instance, the catches made by Hooper and Meusel. They were studded with priceless gems.

This is an off day for the Yanks and the Sox. The Yanks can worry about losing and the Sox can dream about where they might have been if they had started on their winning ways a little earlier.

Mr. Huggins, who bosses the Yanks, is nothing if not optimistic. Said Hug yesterday after the twelfth inning defeat: "Don't worry, boys, 1926 is another season."

And if you think that Colonel Jacob Ruppert, who admits ownership of a seventh place club, is worrying, let it be known that the only thing on his mind at this time is how he can make the Japanese maples at his place at Garrison, N. Y., grow faster.

McGraw Lets Hank Gowdy Go to Negotiate For Columbus Managership; Drops Walker

CINCINATI, Aug. 9.—Outfielder Frank Walker was released today on option to Indianapolis, and the veteran catcher, Hank Gowdy, received permission to negotiate for the managership of the Columbus club in the second of John McGraw's moves to clean house on the Giants.

Gowdy is still a member of the New York team, but it is almost a foregone conclusion that finis has been written across his major league career. He left for Chicago tonight to confer with President Bye of the Columbus club.

McGraw still considers the veteran sergeant useful, but he realizes that Hank's playing days are numbered and that this season would probably be his last. In an effort to lend a helping hand McGraw has arranged for Gowdy to enter negotiations for the managership in his home town.

In some quarters curiosity was expressed as to why Gowdy should leave the Giants now since he cannot become manager at Columbus until next Spring. The probable reason for this is that McGraw has another player coming from the minors in the near future, and wishes to make room for him.

Walker goes to Indianapolis as part payment for Pitcher Fred Fitzsimmons, who was purchased and reported to the Giants yesterday. Walker was once tried out by the Athletics and Tigers, but failed to make good. He drifted to Rocky Mount, N. C., where he was manager and owner of the club, and last Winter sold his own release to the Giants.

Being released under an optional agreement, he is subject to recall at the end of the season.

McGraw indicated that he has not finished his task of cleaning out the Giants. Other moves may be made before the end of the season, and it would not be surprising if during the Winter he lopped off several famous veterans of his four-time champions.

FOUR HOMERS HELP CARDS BEAT PHILS

Hornsby Gets Two, Bringing His Season's Total to 29, in 8-4 Victory for St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 9 (AP).—Four home runs helped the Cardinals defeat Philadelphia in the opening game of the series here today. The score was 8 to 4. Shinners, the first Cardinal to bat in the opening inning, hit into the right field bleachers for a home run. Hornsby also made a homer in the same inning and then raised his season's total to twenty-nine with a drive out of the park in the fifth. Blades hit for the circuit in the second.

Friberg was banished for arguing with Umpire McCormick, Fonseca moving to second and Hawks to first.

Miss Wainwright Establishes World Mark of 7:29 4-5 for 500 Yards.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 9.—Miss Helen Wainwright established a women's world's professional record for 500 yards free style swimming in the Hotel Wentworth pool here today. Her time for the distance was 7:29 4-5.

BUZZING SKEETERS STING STARS TWICE

(By The Associated Press).

Opportune hitting gave the Skeeters a double victory over Syracuse in Jersey City yesterday, 4 to 2 and 1 to 0, making it three games in a row.

In the opening game Hallahan pitched a strong game for the Stars, holding the Skeeters to seven hits and striking out eleven men, but the Skeeters got to him for four hits in a row in the second inning for three runs and never were headed.

In the second game Rube Zellars was invincible on the mound for Jersey City, holding the Stars runless and yielding only three scattered singles.

JOHNSON IS HIT FREELY

He Is Relieved in the Tenth Inning—Judge Gets Five Hits in Six Times Up.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9 (AP).—Cleveland defeated Washington, 7 to 6, today in the first game of a five-game series after twelve innings. Both Johnson and Smith were hit freely in the early innings but then settled down after the seventh and pitched shut-out ball until Johnson was relieved in the tenth inning. Judge got five hits out of six times at bat, and Sewell four out of five.

ARTHUR SPENCER WINS MILE MATCH CONTEST

Arthur Spencer, the American champion, defeated Caesar Moretti, champion of Italy, and Alfred Goullet, all-around star, in two straight heats of a one-mile match race at the New York Velodrome last night. Rain fell shortly after the amateur race was decided and the other events were called off. Spencer won the first heat of the match, with Moretti second and Goullet third, and won the second heat in the same manner. The half-mile amateur was captured by Jack Visco.

Orlando Piani defeated William Spencer in one heat of a mile match, while Freddie Spencer defeated Cecil Walker, also in one heat, of a two-mile paced match.

Jerry Nunziata, veteran Italian rider, took a bad tumble while pacing the second heat of the Spencer-Walker match. Nunziata's fork broke and he landed on his face and was knocked unconscious, but was revived soon by a doctor.

The summaries:

One-Mile Match Race (professional)—Caesar Moretti, Italy; Arthur Spencer, Newark; Alfred Goullet, Newark. Won by Spencer; Moretti, second; Goullet, third. First heat won by Spencer; Moretti, second; Goullet, third. Time—2:44 2-5. Last eighth mile, 0:12 1-5. Second heat won by Spencer; Moretti, second; Goullet, third. Time—2:31 3-5. FT. HAMILTON FOUR DEFEATS BAY RIDGE

McAuslin's Mount Falls on Him and Two Others Collide—Score Is 9 to 4.

The Fort Hamilton polo team, playing on its home field before a crowd of more than 5,000 persons, defeated the Bay Ridge horsemen yesterday, 9 goals to 4. In the course of the game Captain McAuslin of the visiting team fell with his mount, which rolled over him. He was uninjured, however, and continued in the game. At another time Captain St. John and Major Poole collided with each other, but neither one was hurt.

The contest was one of the fastest of the season and at the start both teams charged at a furious pace. Lieutenant Graw scored for Fort Hamilton, but before the period had ended Captain McAuslin had tied the count. Goals by Major Sands and Captain St. John put the home forces further ahead in the second period. Captain Neu tallied in the third, but Major Poole brought the Bay Ridge score up a point by tallying toward the close of the chukker.

Neither side crossed the goal line in the four period, but in the fifth Major Poole scored twice, while Lieutenant Graw kept the home forces ahead by getting one goal. With the count at 5 to 4 in their favor, the Fort Hamilton players opened the final session with a fast attack. They held Bay Ridge scoreless, while Major Sands tallied twice, Lieutenant Graw once, and Captain Neu once.

The line-up:

FT. HAMILTON (9).	BAY RIDGE (4).
No. 1—Lt. Graw.	No. 1—Erath.
No. 2—Major Sands.	No. 2—Dr. Barker.
No. 3—Capt. St. John.	No. 3—Capt. McAuslin
Back—Capt. Neu.	Back—Major Poole.

Goals—Fort Hamilton: Lieutenant Graw (3), Major Sands (3), Captain Neu (2), Captain St. John; Bay Ridge: Major Poole (3), Captain McAuslin.

Time of periods—Six of 7½ minutes each. Referee—Captain Tupper.

ALEXANDRIA, N. Y., Aug. 9.—The second match in the annual Thousand Islands invitation polo tournament was played this afternoon between the Wanderers (the second Montreal team) and Smithtown, L. I., at the polo field on Wellesley Island. Smithtown defeated Montreal by a score of 13 to 3.

The line-up:

SMITHTOWN (13).	WANDERERS (3).
1—H. C. Potter.	1—Blair Gordon.
2—Earl Potter.	2—H. C. MacDougall.
3—Robert Pinkerton.	3—Maj. H. B. MacDougall.
Back—George Kent.	Back—W. C. Pittfield.

LEG BROKEN, PLAYS FULL POLO GAME

THREE PARTIAL FRACTURES

No. 3 on Sun Eagles Four Contributes Three Goals to 10-4 Victory Over Green River.

EATENTOWN, N. J., Aug. 9.—Terrance Preece, 22 years old, defied his physician's verdict that he was "committing suicide" and played a full game of polo today with his left leg in splints from a triple incomplete fracture. He helped the Sun Eagles win with three goals in their 10 to 4 victory over the Green River four on the Sun Eagle field. Preece, the son of Godfrey Preece, trainer of polo ponies of Westbury, L. I., received his injury on Friday while playing with the Eagles against the Rumson Elephants when his horse rolled over on him in a spill. He had an X-ray taken of his shin bone on Saturday, which showed three partial fractures and his physician ordered him not to play. However, he insisted on taking his regular position at No. 3 and despite the injury played a brilliant game, as is attested by his contribution to the scoring. His brother, Stewart, was also on the team.

The match on Friday in which he was injured was for the Old Eatontown Cup and the Eagles won 10 to 6. The week before the Eagles defeated the Fort Hamilton team in another match for the cup, which they won 18 to 3, Preece making ten of the goals in that game.

In today's game the Eagles carried the attack all of the way. Although Preece's position was essentialy defensive he disregarded his splintered leg and plunged into the thick of the fray every time an opportunity offered, taking the ball the length of the field on one occasion.

He seemed none the worse for his exertions and said tonight that he was feeling fine.

SUN EAGLES (10).	GREEN RIVER (4).
No. 1—Max Phillips.	No. 1—Rob't Lehman.
No. 2—Stewart Preece.	No. 2—Bedell Albright.
No. 3—T. Preece.	No. 3—M. Erlanger.
Back—Paul Ladin.	Back—W. Seligman.

Goals—Sun Eagles: Phillips 3, Terrence Preece 3, Stewart Preece 2, Ladin 2. Green River: Lehman 2, Albright 1, Seligman 1. Eight chukkers of seven and one-half minutes each. Referee—Major A. H. Wilson of the United States Army international champions.

N. Y. A. C. NINE WINS EASILY.

Disposes of Englewood Field Club Team by Score of 10 to 4.

The Englewood Field Club nine was an easy victim of the New York Athletic Club yesterday afternoon at Travers Island. The score was 10 to 4 and reflects the course of the game. In the first three innings the New Yorkers accumulated seven runs off Pitcher Weiss and then they loafed along until the ninth, when they added three more.

Englewood got three of its runs in the second with the assistance of two errors by the N. Y. A. C., and not a few of the N. Y. A. C. tallies came by the same route, for the Englewood nine made eleven errors in all. New York's daring on bases also contributed to the one-sided score. The Athletic Club was credited with eleven stolen bases, of which Schaeffer made five. Hipple starred at bat, getting three hits in four times up.

The score by innings:

Englewood	0 3 0 0 0 0 0 0 1	4	11	11

Women's State Tennis Titles in Singles and Doubles Are Won by Miss Wills

MISS WILLS WINS, BUT LOSES A SET

Mrs. Mallory Takes Six Games in Row for First Set, 6-3, but Drops Next Two.

MISS BROWNE IS A VICTOR

By ALLISON DANZIG.

Special to The New York Times.

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 9.—Mrs. Molla Mallory, former national women's tennis champion, today staged the greatest fight she has made against Miss Helen Wills since she lost the title to her in 1923. Playing with all the vigor and speed of stroke that characterized her game when she was at the top, the New York woman took six games in a row to win the first set at 6—3, after dropping the first three, and extended Miss Wills in stirring rallies in the next two sets before yielding. Miss Wills won at 3—6, 6—2, 6—2 and became the New York State champion. A gallery of 2,000 spectators, one of the largest that ever attended a tennis match at the Westchester Biltmore Country Club, witnessed the final round.

Miss Wills also won the doubles title. Paired with Miss Mary K. Browne of Santa Monica, Cal., she defeated Miss Elizabeth Ryan and Mrs. May Sutton Bundy of California after another bitter struggle at 8—6, 5—7, 6—2. This morning the losing team eliminated Miss Eleanor Goss of New York and Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup of Wilmington, Del., in the semi-finals at 6—4, 4—6, 6—3.

Three exhibition matches added to the attractiveness of the day's program. Ray Casey and Clarence J. Griffin of California defeated Robert and Howard Kinsey, national doubles champions, 7—5, 7—5. Casey's service and Griffin's clever placement shots gave them the edge over the titleholders, who were not as steady as they usually are against the severe stroking of their opponents.

Borotra Beats Hunter.

Jean Borotra of the French Davis Cup team won a one-set exhibition from Francis T. Hunter at 8—6, and Miss Charlotte Hosmer and Gerald Stratford of California defeated Miss Marion Williams of California and Borotra in one set of mixed doubles at 8—6.

Mrs. Mallory's playing today was a revelation. On her last meeting with Miss Wills, at Seabright, the former champion was crushed at 6—1, 6—0, the match lasting twenty-six minutes. It took more than an hour for Miss Wills to gain the victory today. The champion, at least for the greater part of the first set, was not in the form that she showed on their former meeting. Her defeat at the hands of Miss Ryan at Seabright seems to have robbed her of some of her confidence, and there was not the smoothness and sureness to her stroking that one usually looks for.

In the first set the Berkeley girl was so taken back by the relentless power of Mrs. Mallory's driving attack that she softened her game and resorted to lobbing, finding it impossible to cope with her opponent's strokes. The change threw her off entirely, and in the last four games of the set she got only one point.

Mrs. Mallory was hitting with fury at this time, and it looked serious for Miss Wills. But if she was alarmed the champion failed to show it. Deliberately and without any trace of emotion Miss Wills set out in the second set to beat her opponent at her own game, to overcome her powerful drives with ground strokes of even more severity and depth.

The strain told on the New York woman, and gradually she was forced to give ground. Miss Wills's greater endurance told, and while Mrs. Mallory was losing length she continued to keep the ball close to the baseline with smashing strokes that barely skimmed the net. Never for a moment, however, could the champion afford to let down. Mrs. Mallory fought with such tenaciousness that generally it was only after the ball had crossed the net eight or ten times that Miss Wills was able to win the rally.

Mrs. Mallory Leads, but Loses.

Mrs. Mallory's failure to take advantage of substantial leads cost her a number of games. In the first set she led at 30—0 and had the advantage in the first game and in both the second and third games she was ahead at 40—15. She lost all three games. Then she went on to take six in succession, in only one of which Miss Wills had any chance to win. In the seventh game Mrs. Mallory stirred the gallery with four placements in succession.

In the first game of the second set the New York woman was broken through after leading at 40—15. Then she began to fall off in accuracy before the power and depth of Miss Wills's shots, which kept her on the run to the far corners of the court. In the final set Mrs. Mallory lost the second and sixth games after leading at 30—0 in each instance. In the seventh game she pulled up from 15—40 to deuce and then lost the game after eighteen rallies of the stubbornest character. In the final game she held a lead of 40—15 but again could not make the most of it. Miss Wills pounded her baseline and the New York woman, tired and arm-weary, fought bravely and with unflagging spirit but in vain.

RAIN HALTS TENNIS FINAL.

Special to The New York Times.

WESTFIELD, N. J., Aug. 9.—The final round of the Northern New Jersey doubles championship was brought to a halt in the fifth set by rain today on the courts of the Westfield Tennis Club. Leonard W. Knox and Carl N. Jolliff of the Montclair A. C., were leading at the time at 6—2, 3—6, 6—3, 0—6, 2—1 over Philip and Ludlow Vandeventer of Plainfield. The match will be replayed entirely on Aug. 22.

Holman Is Victor Over Tilden In Exhibition Match, 7-5, 9-7

DETROIT, Aug. 9 (AP).—Cranston Holman of Stanford University defeated William T. Tilden, national champion, in an exhibition match today at the Detroit Tennis Club, as a feature of the Western clay court tennis championship. Tilden suffered severely from a lame shoulder, losing in straight sets, 7—5, 9—7. Paired together, Tilden and Holman emerged victorious over Harvey Snodgrass and Walter Wesbrook of Los Angeles, winning two out of three sets, 3—6, 6—4, 8—6. Mrs. J. C. Johnson, Detroit, dethroned Miss Marion Leighton of Chicago as the women's Western clay court champion, defeating her in the final, 5—7, 7—5, 7—5.

JOHNSTON-RICHARDS MATCH CALLED OFF

Committee to Decide Today if They Will Have Another Davis Cup Trial Later.

The second Davis Cup trial match scheduled to have been played this afternoon between Vincent Richards and William Johnston was called off yesterday. It was decided by Holcombe Ward, Chairman of the Selection Committee, after consulting with other members of the committee, that it was inadvisable to have the players go through another match after Saturday's gruelling struggle in which Johnston defeated Richards in five sets after two hours and a half of play.

The two are so evenly matched that the committee believes a second meeting would probably result in the same sort of a struggle, to the physical detriment of both. It was deemed wiser to have them conserve their energies for the strenuous season's play ahead.

A meeting of the Selection Committee will be held this afternoon to determine whether any further matches between Richards and Johnston are advisable. At this meeting, also, the committee will probably select the women's international team to meet the English for the Wightman Cup on Friday and Saturday.

Louis B. Dailey Jr. of East Orange, N. J., one of the American players who competed at Wimbledon, will return to the United States today on the Leviathan. He will play in the national singles championships at Forest Hills, and probably also in the national doubles at Boston, beginning Aug. 24.

Rene Lacoste, Jacques Brugnon and Max Decugis of the French Davis Cup team will sail for this country on Aug. 12, according to a cable received by the United States Lawn Tennis Association. They will join Jean Borotra, who arrived here last week. It was thought that Henri Cochet was coming over, but Decugis, a former internationalist, has been named instead. France will meet the winner of the American zone ties at Forest Hills on Sept. 4, 5 and 7.

Harry Wolf, Lemoine Heuser, Gregory Mangin and Edward Jenkins, four of the leading junior tennis players in the metropolitan district, left for Chicago yesterday to play in the national junior championship. They will compete in both singles and doubles. Wolf will pair with Jenkins and Heuser will team with Mangin.

U. S. NAVAL OFFICERS BEAT BRITISH AT NET

Take Two Out of Three Tennis Matches at Bar Harbor in Mount Desert Cup Play.

BAR HARBOR, Me., Aug. 9 (AP).—The fourth international maritime tennis tournament was won at the swimming club in Bar Harbor today by the American team of naval officers, who defeated the British team, two matches out of three.

Commander Thomas Usher, R. N., won a match for the rBitish by defeating Ensign R. P. Roberts, U. S. N., 6—0, 6—2. Lieut. Commander E. R. McClung, U. S. N., defeated Lieutenant W. Ruskill, R. N., 6—4, 9—7. Lieutenant R. S. Ranschausen and Lieutenant J. P. Curtis, U. S. N., won the doubles match by defeating Lieutenant J. P. Ingpen and Surgeon Lieutenant R. W. Higgins, R. N., 6—3, 6—2.

The team matches are played for the Mount Desert Trophy, which must be won seven times for permanent possession. The British team won it for the first time last year.

Review—THE WEEK IN SPORTS—Outlook

TURF

To Saratoga Springs in the not distant future may return much of the glory and glamor of the olden days. That is the hope and really the expectation of those who have at heart the best interests of the beautiful resort in the foothills of the Adirondacks, together with those whose thoroughbred ties take them each summer to the Spa for the month of August.

It will not, of course, be a revival of the days when the dinner hour saw only evening clothes on west of Broadway, nor yet a return to the times when the winding horn heralded the approach of four-in-hands tooled by the leaders of the world of sport. Those days have passed with the passing of the blooded horse on the streets. For the future almost all will depend upon the development of the State-owned springs, which are declared to hold every beneficient property of the famous spots of the Continent. Wisely exploited to attain international fame, Saratoga Springs appears certain to become a national institution.

With every advance the sportsmen are ready to keep pace. It is no secret that plans already are on foot for the re-establishment of polo as a complement of racing. Saratoga has enough polo-playing visitors today to run a tournament. A fortnight of championship play may be arranged in the future. Polo would fit in nicely with the scheme of things in August life at Saratoga. Racing is over before six o'clock, the best hour of the day for the galloping game. An hour of polo would still permit dinner before the yearling sales at 8:30 o'clock. There might even be a slight readjustment of the time schedule, although racing waits each day on the arrival of visitors from out of town.

Not a little dissatisfaction has been expressed by horsemen this season over the working of the claiming rule, more especially as to its effect on two-year-old racing. Yet as a result of all of the discussion not one constructive suggestion has yet reached the governing body of thoroughbred sport in New York State. It took years to revise the old selling race conditions and the present code was evolved only after the most mature deliberation by the keenest minds in racing. It is difficult to realize that the present code has been in effect only two years, a very short time for a thorough trial. The Jockey Club of today, while adhering closely to the traditions of that body and retaining much of its conservatism, is for the most part made up of breeders and owners living entirely in the present and keenly alive to the needs of racing. It is an organization whose leading spirits are sensitive to criticism and are eagerly awaiting constructive suggestions for the betterment of racing. Men whose lives are bound up in the breeding and racing of horses are not likely to go far wrong in the framing of regulations for the conduct of the sport. Much of the present dissatifaction over two-year-old racing conditions can be met by racing secretaries. There is practically no limit to the changes which are possible in making up the overnight book of a meeting to care for every type and class of juveniles. It would appear to be a matter of selection rather than legislation.

Erich Hagenlacher, the German 18.2 balkline champion, has established himself as a dangerous contender for the world's 18.2 balkline title. His decisive victory over Willie Hoppe, former champion, in a 2,400 point match last week, showed that Hagenlacher has the competitive heart, the apparent lack of which in the past seemed to have been his greatest weakness. Billiardists never questioned his ability with the cue but in the past he has fallen down badly under the strain of a big match. Hagenlacher apparently has arrived. Seemingly hopelessly beaten going into the final two blocks, trailing by 1,436 to 1,800, Hagenlacher rose to the occasion by making the necessary 964 points in nine innings for the marvelous average of 107. His grand average was sixty-three and the final score was 2,400 to 1,999. Hagenlacher punctuated his brilliant effort with an unfinished run of 358, represented by an unfinished 58 at the close of the seventh block, and the necessary 300 in the eighth and deciding block.

Hoppe proved that he had lost none of his balkline skill, despite the fact that he had been devoting so much time to three-cushions, as he had a grand average of better than 52 for his total. After the match Hoppe admitted that Hagenlacher was a much improved player and one who will bear watching in future title contests. Hagenlacher displayed uncanny skill at the nursing style of play as well as with the massé. His stance at the table is awkward, lacking the artistic poise of a Hoppe or a Schaefer, but he has the ability to make points, which, after all, decide title matches. Critics believe the fact that Hagenlacher won and Hoppe lost was not so important, but the real result was the improved Hagenlacher morale.

YACHTING

The yacht racing season reaches a high peak of general interest this week with the beginning of the New York Yacht Club's annual cruise. A great and diversified squadron will await the arrival of former Commodore J. P. Morgan's Corsair, which will be the flagship of Commodore George Nichols, which will arrive in New London Harbor late Thursday afternoon formally to organize the fleet. Many new vessels, as well as older craft of notable achievements, will salute the flagship. It is expected to be the finest cruise in years and the big fleet that takes part in the racing runs will be an indication that yacht racing is decidedly on the upward trend these days.

Speaking reminiscently, how many yachtsmen who will take part in the coming cruise remember the fateful cruise of 1914, begun on July 31, the day of the World War's outbreak? It was a great squadron that started on that cruise, the first racing run being from Glen Cove to Smithtown Bay with a special race for the cup yachts, Resolute and Vanitie, as the star attraction. It was a drifting match. All day the racing yachts drifted eastward on the glassy Sound and Europe drifted into war.

Moored one mile off the inlet at Stony Brook the committee tug Moran had a long wait for the racing squadron, as did the newspaper men covering the cruise. Early in the evening somebody came offshore and told Chairman Parsons that the Stock Exchange had been closed that day, and other exciting news. The finish was by moonlight, Resolute and Vanitie crossing the line serenely, white shadows in the night.

When they were all moored the old anchorage off Stony Brook was a peaceful, lovely picture. The riding lights of a hundred ships were reflected in the placid waters, but worry was in the hearts of the yachtsmen. Fortunes were falling like men before machine-gun fire but the night was beautiful.

Also reminiscently it is pleasant to look back on the excellent performances of former Commodore Ralph Ellis during the recent Larchmont Race Week. Racing his sloop Ellen in the difficult and keen S Class, Commodore Ellis won two races and was well up in every one of the contests of the series. This was great work for a helmsman who has been racing on Long Island Sound for more than forty years. Veteran of many and m any a hard race, Commodore Ellis's racing skill does not seem to abate with the years and neither does his enthusiasm for the game. Which is also agreeable to contemplate.

SWIMMING

Last Winter when it became known that an American girl proposed to attempt the grueling twenty-mile swim across the English Channel this Summer there were many, and among them some natatorial authorities of note, who openly expressed the belief that it was beyond the physical resources of any woman to accomplish the great feat.

Recent events abroad, however, afford convincing evidence that the pessimistic opinion was based on an inclination to underestmate the powers of endurance of the fair sex and was unwarranted. Two striking exploits accomplished recently bear telling testimony to woman's potentialities in the field of long distance swimming. In a Channel trial Mlle. Jeanne Sion of France swam continuously for thirteen and a half hours, and although it is open to question that she came within 1¼ miles of completing the arduous course, as claimed in some of the dispatches, there is no doubt that she covered more than three-quarters of the distance between the shores of France and England. In the twenty-six-mile race from Corbeil to Paris, Miss Lillian Harrison of Argentina kept going for 14 hours 37 minutes in water said to have been as cold as that of the Channel at this time of the year.

It has been proved, therefore, that there are women able to last from 13½ to 14½ hours under Channel conditions, and while Mlle. Sion and Miss Harrison are not fast swimmers, even for long distance swimmers, so that no performance of either can be deemed representative, their performances demonstrate the possibility of the development of a woman swimmer combining the necessary speed and stamina to span the Channel.

Miss Gertrude Ederle of the Women's Swimming Association, for instance, is almost twice as fast as the French and Argentine mermaids, and it is universally accepted by swimming experts that she will make the Channel swim in less than fourteen hours if the weather is favorable and she does not break down.

Whatever the results in the coming attempts of Miss Ederle, Miss Harrison and the other naiads now awaiting their chance to undertake the notable test, attempts in which luck in the way of conditions will play a leading rôle, it may be confidently expected that the crossing of the Channel will be effected by woman sooner or later. We know that members of the sex can develop the required speed and endurance. It is merely a case now of the right mermaid finding the Channel in the right mood when she braves its fickle waters.

TENNIS

The Davis Cup trials and the East-West matches held at the West Side Tennis Club last week have ushered in a period of tennis for New York that, in richness and abundance, is without parallel. Until late in September the world's greatest players will hold the stage of the tennis world within the stadium at Forest Hills in national and international competition. Never before has New York been favored as it is this year with so many attractive features on the tennis calendar.

On Friday and Saturday England's ablest women players will engage the best of the United States in the third of the international matches for the Wightman Cup. Miss Wills and Miss McKane will renew their rivalry; Miss Evelyn Colyer will display the graceful, agile game that has made her famous; Miss Joan Fry will show the tennis that has made her the 19-year-old wonder of England; Mrs. Lambert Chambers will revive memories of her matches with May Sutton at Wimbledon in 1905, 1906 and 1907. There will be much good tennis.

A week from today the same players and a host of others, including Miss Elizabeth Ryan, who defeated Miss Wills at Seabright, and Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, the May Sutton of Wimbledon, will start in the national championship. What tennis fan is there who would not thrill at the prospect of a match between Mrs. Bundy and Mrs. Chambers, twenty years after they met across the net in England for the first time?

From Forest Hills the tennis scene will shift for a period to Boston. Then on Sept. 4 France will meet the winner of the American zone ties in the interzone match at the West Side Club. The challenge round will be staged at Philadelphia the following week, and on Sept. 14 the world's leading men players will gather here for the national championship. France, Spain, Australia, Japan, Canada and possibly England will be represented in the tournament. There is no official world's championship, but certainly the player who emerges victor over the field that will enter the all-comers will be recognized as having established his right to a world's title. Forest Hills has indeed become the Wimbledon of America.

BASEBALL

That element of uncertainty which makes it possible for baseball fans to sustain interest through six months of continuous competition has developed into a condition of foggy doubt. At this moment the citizen who can pick the winner of the flag pursuits in the National and American Leagues is a soothsayer, or whatever you call those sophists who always know more about everything than any one else.

Between Pittsburgh and the Giants in the National and the Athletics and Washington in the American League the situation is, to reduce it to cool mathematical terms, six of one and half a dozen of the other.

The baseball season has almost two more months to go and in both leagues the players on the leading clubs have already reached a state of nervous anticipation, where they jump in alarm if they hear a pin drop. The club which maintains that commendable asset known as poise is likely to be on top at the wire. And that goes for both leagues.

There is plenty of time left for over-anxiety and over effort. There is no danger now in either league of over-confidence. That time is past. In the National League the spontaneous speed and aggressiveness of the Pirates may overcome the reserved steadiness and experience of the veteran McGraw. And so in the American League, where the buoyant enthusiasm of Connie Mack's youngsters may blaze triumphant over the calm reserve and resource of the Senators.

Of the four clubs now fighting for the two pennants the Giants and Washington have proved their reserved power. They have been through the fire and tumult of tense, nerve-racking strife and might well be expected to handle themselves with greater balance than their more youthful adversaries.

As a matter of fact, the two races have acquired considerable more uncertainty than the fans bargained for early in the season. Those who have gone so far as to make a wager on the possibilities of where these clubs will finish early in October have hesitated of late and questioned their earlier calculations. Not that they are getting cold feet. Say not so. The real sportsmen's appetite is whetted by closeness of competition. After listening to the flood of arguments which are breaking lose over the dykes of conversation every day, the innocent by-stander cannot help but chirp, "Yes, I know, but who is going to win?"

GOLF

To the host of friends he already has, J. J. Lannin, former owner of the Boston Red Sox, but now proprietor of one of the country's greatest golf plants, added a substantial list last week by the princely manner in which he acquitted himself as host to the public links golfers. Never before in the history of this unique and growing tourney have the participants been so royally "put up" as they were by this modest, unassuming man who has ministered so well to the needs of linksmen who are unable to belong to the private clubs around the metropolitan district. Not only did he house and feed the visitors, but he gave them free rein of his courses, contributed many prizes and actually supervised the tourney in order to make certain that his ideas of hospitality were carried out to the last letter. If the contestants could vote on the proposition it is not at all unlikely that Salisbury would be chosen annually as the site for the public links championship and "J. J." made host in perpetuity.

It's a great plant this one that Mr Lannin has built on Salisbury Plains—an inland golf empire. Four splendid links and a fifth under construction, together with a beautiful clubhouse, constitute the layout. Seven years ago he started with one. Where the city has to a large measure failed to supply facilities for those who cannot afford to join the private clubs, he has stepped in to provide courses where the cost is so law that anyone desiring to play golf may do so. It is his ambition, so he stated at a dinner given in honor of the players, sometime to reach a point where even those who cannot afford to pay the present nominal greens fee will be able to play free of charge.

Except for the final round, when both McAuliffe and Serrick, the winner and runner-up for the 1925 title, showed the effect of their strenuous work to reach the top, the play was of a calibre that was surprisingly good. Generally speaking, the golf displayed by the qualifiers in the championship flight was as good as that which is seen at a national amateur championship, proving that the public links movement is one that is bringing to the foreground a crop of stars that but for this tournament would never be known except in their local districts. For McAuliffe, the successor of Joe Coble, the victory was especially sweet because two years ago, in this same tourney at Washington, he won the qualifying medal, won his first two matches, one of which went nineteen holes and another twenty; won his third on the eighteenth green and then lost a nineteen hole match to J. S. Witham of New York in the semi-final round. He is generally sound, a trifle inclined to wildness, but a fine recoverer, and possessed of a splendid disposition.

How important the public links tournament has come to be throughout the country is best shown by the fact that more than 500,000 words were sent out by telegraph during the five days of play.

LONG ISLAND CASTERS LIFT OCEAN CITY CUP

Record Average of 398 Feet 10 2-5 Inches by Five-Man Team Conquers Jersey Anglers.

After nine years of effort the Long Island Casting Club succeeded Saturday in lifting the Ocean City Cup for fly-casting, according to the official scores made public yesterday. The Long Island team registered a distance of 9,971 feet 8 inches, an average of 398 feet 10 2-5 inches, which is the highest average score made in any casting event on record. The winning quintet was composed of Fred C. Berger, John Shaw, George W. Robinson, Charles W. Boyette and Dr. William F. Casper.

Seven teams competed for the cup, which hitherto has been won by one or the other of the Jersey angling clubs. The event was held on the grounds of the Asbury Park Fishing and Gunning Club and was one of the keenest competitions of the kind that has been held. The Asbury Park Gun Club, which won the cup last year, was eliminated almost at the start.

Then one after another fell until the Long Islanders encountered the Anglers' Club of Ocean City. For four frames the teams of the two clubs cast perfectly, but in the fifth the Ocean City anglers broke, while the Long Island club continued its pace of perfection.

The Ocean City Cup was first offered ten years ago. It is competed for annually by teams of five men, each of whom makes five casts.

MAJOR WINS TENNIS TITLE.

Beats Onda in Five Sets for Fairfield County Championship.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., Aug. 9.—In a stirring five-set match Cedric A. Major of the West Side Tennis Club, New York, today defeated S. Onda of New York for the tennis singles championship of Fairfield County, Conn., 1—6, 4—6, 6—4, 6—2, 6—1.

The final was fought out for the most part in the back court, being marked by deep driving and hard hitting. Onda in the first two sets made some wonderful recoveries on apparent kills by Major. In the third set he tired and Major put on more pressure.

ILLINOIS ATHLETES WIN IN COPENHAGEN MEET

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Aug. 9 (AP).—The American athletes, members of the Illinois Athletic Club, Harold Osborn, P. W. Jones, H. H. Schwarze, George T. Stevenson, Ray Dodge and H. T. Evans Jr., were easy winners in all the events in which they competed today, except the pole vault, in which Jones finished second, and the weight-throwing contest, in which Schwarze was fifth.

Burkard Gets Hole-in-One.

Andrew N. Burkard Jr., playing with Chauncey Baker against H. V. Cornelius and W. S. Vanderhover over the Wheatley Hills Country Club course yesterday, made a hole-in-one, accomplishing the feat with a mashie on the eighth hole. Thed istance is 167 yards. This is the first made over the course this season.

SOCCER HARMONY AGAIN THREATENED

COMMITTEE IS APPOINTED

It Will Confer With U. S. Association Regarding the Concession—Schedule Is Adopted.

Although harmony has been re-established between the United States Football Association and the American Soccer League, which is now affiliated with the former on the same basis as the various State associations, a stumbling-block has developed which may possibly interfere with the participation of clubs of this league in the annual cup competition of the United States Football Association, which was one of the main objects for which the union was brought about.

Delegates representing the twelve clubs holding franchises in the American Soccer League spent all of yesterday morning and afternoon at their meeting at the Hotel Astor and fully one-third of the time was given over to a discussion of the question whether or not the league teams should enter the cup tie and pay 15 per cent. of the gross receipts to the national body as provided for at the last meeting of the U. S. F. A.

The vote that was finally taken showed that the delegates favored participation on the basis of 15 per cent. only on the net receipts. A committee, consisting of Fred J. Smith, President of the league; Nathan Agar and Thomas Bagnall, was appointed to confer on the subject with the Cup Committee of the United States Football Association. All the clubs agreed to enter if the concession is granted; if not, it may be left to the individual choice of these clubs.

Most of the rest of the time was taken up with the arrangement of the annual schedule of inter-city week-end matches, which will open on Sept. 12. Dates were fixed up to and including Election Day. There will again be twelve clubs, including the Shawsheen Football Club of Shawsheen, Mass., winner of the U. S. F. A. Cup. The Philadelphia and Fleisher Yarns teams have amalgamated and will play as Philadelphia. The competition for the American League trophy will not be started until April.

The official schedule, each game to be played on the grounds of the club named first in each pairing, follows:

SEPTEMBER.

BINZEN LOSES IN DOUBLES.

F. Osgood and Fowler Beat Star and Bassford at Briarcliff.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIARCLIFF MANOR, N. Y., Aug. 9.—Elliott H. Binzen and Henry H. Bassford were defeated by Franklin P. Osgood and Arthur Fowler in an exhibition tennis doubles match at Briarcliff Lodge today at 9—7, 9—11, 6—3. The match was one of the closest played here this season and was marked by numerous deuce games.

In the first and second sets the two teams fought on such even terms that the outcome was always in doubt. Binzen and Bassford weakened in the final chapter and got only three games. Binzen's twist service and forehand featured the play.

WOMAN SWIMMER RETIRES.

Miss James, Holder of British Records, Becomes Professional.

LONDON, Aug. 9 (AP).—Following the example of several former American amateur women swimmers, Miss Hilda James, noted British aquatic star, who competed in a number of races in the United States in 1922, has retired from the ranks of the amateurs to become a professional instructor. She is to preside over the pool in a new transatlantic lineer.

Miss James carries into retirement eight British amateur swimming records, from 150 yards to a mile. She has been prominent in aquatic sports for several years and was a member of the British team at the Antwerp Olympic Games in 1920.

SPENCE GETS A TIE IN MILE SWIM RACE

Sissler Crosses Line With Him in Alamac Cup Race in Lake Hopatcong Carnival.

LAKE HOPATCONG, N. J., Aug. 9.—Two New York stars, Walter Spence of the Brooklyn Central Y. M. C. A., and George Sissler of the Boys' Club, swam a dead heat in the mile race for the Alamac Cup in the Styx River Swimming Club's carnival here today. They got away together and fought hard for the lead over the full distance, first one and then the other gaining a slight advantage, but when near the end they were on even terms and flashed over the line together. Each will hold the cup for six months.

Four men took part in the event, but shortly after the start it was evident that Spence and Sissler were the only ones in it so far as winning was concerned.

The 200-yard swim for women was won by Miss Genevieve Lord of the Women's Swimming Association of New York. Miss Irene Moore of the Yonkers quatic Club tried to make a race of it, but the New York woman was too fast and easily captured the event.

QUEENSBORO SHOW IS OFF.

Unable to Replace Solomon, Ill, Club Cancels Bouts Tonight.

The boxing show scheduled for tonight at the Queensboro Athletic Club in Long Island City has been canceled. It was announced officially yesterday by Matchmaker Tom McArdle that King Solomon, who was slated to meet Jack Renault in the feature bout, had reported ill and would be unable to compete. Late Saturday it was learned that Solomon was not in the best of condition, but the club officials withheld their announcement until yesterday afternoon.

Matchmaker McArdle said that as he was unable to get a substitute capable of giving Renault a fight he was forced to cancel the entire program.

U. S. SWIM MARK SET BY MISS GERAGHTY

MISS RIGGIN BADLY BEATEN

DETROIT, Aug. 9 (AP).—The third American outdoor swimming record for women was broken today by Miss Agnes Geraghty, New York, who swam the 220-yard breaststroke in 3 minutes 32 seconds to win the title for that event in the National A. A. U. swimming championships for women that ended today. Her time was 4 2-5 seconds better than her own mark, made last year in the National A. A. U. meet at Pittman, N. J. Miss Carin Nillson, New York, was second; Miss Frances Beebe, Chicago, third, and Janet Cotton, Detroit, fourth.

By winning the plain high platform diving championship today, Miss Caroline Smith, Chicago, upset previous calculations that had given first place to Miss Aileen Riggin, New York. The latter was beaten badly, finishing fourth. Miss Helen Meany, New York, was second, and Miss Evelyn Fehr, Detroit, third.

Miss Ethel McGary, New York, won her second National A. A. U. title today by winning the half-mile free style in 13 minutes 6 seconds, finishing ahead of Miss Virginia Whitenack, New York, and Miss Margaret Ravfore, Philadelphia, who staged a sensational race for second place honors with Miss Whitenack, Miss Florence Roga, Homestead, Pa., was fourth.

VEGA LEADS STAR BOATS.

Sterling's Sloop Wins Bayside Race, With Maia III Second.

Sterling's Vega led the Star class boats in the elimination races, which were held by the Bayside Y. C. yesterday afternoon. The race was sailed over a triangular course of six miles, with a strong southeasterly wind blowing. Twelve boats started in the contest and all but one finished. Vega covered the course in one hour 40 minutes and 43 seconds. She was followed across the finish line 44 seconds later by Linkfield's Maia III, with Jessup's Windward third.

Miss Wall and Corkran Bow to Miss Collett and Sweetser

COLLETT-SWEETSER ARE VICTORS, 1 UP

TRAIL PART OF THE TIME

Recover Lead on the Thirteenth Hole and Win the Fourteenth and Sixteenth.

FAIRFIELD, Conn., Aug. 9.—Miss Glenna Collett, former national champion, and Jesse W. Sweetser, metropolitan champion, defeated Miss Bernice Wall, Wisconsin State woman champion, and D. Clark Corkran of Philadelphia 1 up in the 18-hole final for the Gold Golf Ball Trophy this afternoon over the links of the Fairfield Country Club, Sasco Hill, Fairfield.

The Collett-Sweester combination, after halving the first hole, won the next two in one under par, giving them a lead of two up, but this lead was short-lived, as the Miss Wall-Corkran team won the fourth and fifth holes in one under par, making the match even. The next two holes were halved in fives.

Corkran and Miss Wall won the next two holes in par, giving them a lead of 2 up at the turn, which they held until the thirteenth hole, which their opponents won with a birdie. They also lost the fourteenth after Miss Wall's second shot was on the green twenty feet from the hole.

Sweetser laid a shot from the bunker dead to the hole, winning with a par 4, his opponents taking three putts, thereby squaring the match. They halved the fifteenth at par 4s, but Sweetser and Miss Collett gained their lead due to a stymie which Miss Wall was unable to pass. The seventeenth was halved in par figures.

Sweetser's tee shot on the eighteenth was fifteen feet from the cup, while Corkran's was in the trap to the left of the green. Miss Wall's wonderful recovery just missed by inches for a 2 and the hole was halved at 3.

A gallery of more than 500 followed the match. It is the second time in succession that Miss Collett and Sweetser have won.

HARMON WINS GOLF PRIZE.

Turnesa Victor in Play-Off for Second in Sunningdale Pro Play.

Tom Harmon, Hudson River professional, was the winner all the way in the invitation tournament for pros held yesterday on the links of the Sunningdale Country Club. Harmon's 70 won for him the first prize of $200. Joe Turnesa of Fairview and George Thompson of Scarsdale tied for second place with 75 each. They played it off over ten holes and Turnesa was the winner, taking the second prize of $100, while Thompson took third money, $50.

Harmon had five birdies on his card, two going out and three coming in. Only twice was he over par, but at the short eighth he took 5 to hole out.

SHADE OUTPOINTS SCHOELL

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Aug. 9 (AP).—Dave Shade of Concord, Cal., outstanding challenger for the welterweight title, took a ten-round decision last night over Frankie Schoell of Buffalo, N. Y. The bout was held in the ball park here. The decision was never in doubt. Schoell's only chance seemed to be to put over a knockout.

Throughout the battle Shade was on the aggressive. He rushed Schoell from rope to rope, swinging terrific rights and lefts, many of which landed solidly. Several times Schoell was in distress. He was floored in the first round by a hard hook to the jaw. He got up without waiting for a count. In the final round the Buffalo welter sank to his knees momentarily under a hot barrage from Shade. The last time Shade and Schoell met the bout was called a draw.

In the semi-final between Frankie Farren, San Francisco, and Lou Paluso of Salt Lake City, lightweights, the referee declared the bout a draw. The decision was unpopular. The crowd booed for several minutes. The general opinion was that Paluso outpunched Farren by a wide margin.

Hoag Reaches Illinois in 5,000-Mile Trip In Boat From Coast to Gold Cup Race Here

According to word received yesterday at the local Gold Cup Committee headquarters in the Hotel Belmont, John Edwin Hoag of Los Angeles and two companions, who are making a 5,000-mile transcontinental trip by boat, have reached La Salle, Ill. The object of their voyage is to reach Manhasset Bay in time for the Gold Cup Regatta, which begins Aug. 27. With only 1,000 miles of the trip to cover they are expected to reach their destination in time for the big speed-boat classic.

Accompanied by Frank S. Wilton and Val Woodbury, Hoag left Astoria, Ore., at the mouth of the Columbia River, in an eighteen-foot boat equipped with outboard motors. Their plan was to cross the continent by navigating the Columbia and Snake Rivers to their headwaters in Idaho and Montana; to portage over to the headwaters of the Missouri; descend that stream to the Mississippi; enter the Illinois at its juncture with the Mississippi; proceed up the Illinois River, through the canal system to Chicago, then by way of the Great Lakes, New York barge canal and Hudson River to New York.

The water pathfinders left Astoria late in May and the Gold Cup Committee members believe they have covered the most difficult part of their journey. If they complete the voyage it will be the first time such a thing has been accomplished.

MACFARLANE WINS WITH FARRELL'S AID

Latter's Brilliant Golf Helps Defeat Stait and Clarke on New London Links.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Aug. 9.—Willie Macfarlane, American open champion, and Johnny Farrell, Quaker Ridge star, proved too much for Jack Stait, Hartford Golf Club professional, and H. Budd Clarke, Shennecossett Country Club professional, in an exhibition match played yesterday morning and afternoon on the Shennecossett links, winning the thirty-six holes 8 up and 7 to go.

A steady rain fell throughout the morning but did not have any noticeable effect on the quality of the golf displayed to the big gallery that followed the players. There was no rain in the afternoon and the gallery was still larger and the play, if anything, was more brilliant.

Stait and Clarke showed to particular advantage while it was raining the hardest, being 1 up at the turn on the morning round. After that point Macfarlane and Farrell braced and took the lead, coming in 2 up and never being threatened for the rest of the day.

Johnny Farrell did not get into his stride until on the way in on the morning round. After that he covered himself with glory, bagging a number of birdies. He got the first of these on the fourteenth when, after a 75-yard approach, he shot to within 4 feet of the hole and sank his putt for a birdie 3, squaring the match. On the next hole he sunk a 25-foot putt for a birdie 2, putting his side 1 up.

In the afternoon round Farrell added a number of birdies to his bag, sinking a long putt on the third for a birdie 3 and winning the sixth hole with a 2. Macfarlane shared the applause when in the ninth hole he made a splendid drive, got on the green in two, and sank his putt for a birdie 3, putting him and Farrell 6 up on Stait and Clarke at the turn.

JACK KEARNS DUE HERE ON THURSDAY

Delayed by Postponement of Walker Bout—Rickard Still at Saratoga—Other News.

Jack Kearns, who was scheduled to arrive here yesterday for a conference with Paddy Mullins, the manager of Harry Wills, has been forced to change his plans and will not reach New York until Thursday. Kearns, who now is directing Mickey Walker, the welterweight champion, was delayed, as the bout between Walker and Billy Wells scheduled to be fought in Chicago last Friday night was postponed on account of rain and was to be held this evening. Yesterday the bout was canceled. Kearns, it was learned, will leave Chicago on Wednesday. He stated a few days ago that while here he will endeavor to settle his differences with the State Athletic Commission, and also take a hand in the Dempsey situation.

Tex Rickard is still in Saratoga. So are Billy Gibson and Gene Tunney. While no announcements were made at the Madison Square Garden offices yesterday, it was reported that Tex would have an important statement to give the newspapers upon his return from the Spa. As it is unlikely that Dempsey will be seen in action here this season, Rickard now is anxious to put on a battle between Tunney and Wills. Developments are expected as a result of the conference now going on at Saratoga.

Sammy Mandell of Rockford, Ill. and Solly Seeman of New York have been matched to meet in one of the three ten-round star bouts at the benefit boxing show for the Jewish Centre of Coney Island, which will be staged at the Coney Island Stadium on the night of Aug. 25. Tex Rickard is arranging the program for the benefit. Rickard, it was stated by his representative here yesterday, hopes to clinch the remainder of the card before the end of the week. It also was announced that the price of tickets will range from $2 to $5, and that in the event of a capacity house more than $20,000 will go to the Jewish Centre.

The semi-monthly amateur boxing show under the auspices of the Crescent Athletic Club will be held at the Bay Ridge club house, Eighty-fifth Street and Shore Road, Brooklyn, tomorrow night. George F. Brynes is Chairman of the boxing committee. Among those who are scheduled to compete are Moses Tucker and George Stewart of the Salem Crescent A. C.; Joe Littman, Ninety-second Street Y. M. C. A.; M. Duberstein, Trinity Club; Phil Guaddy, Seward Gym; John Erickson, St. Lucy's C. C.; M. Siardella, Staten Island A. A.; Sydney Reisler, Glencoe A. C., and A. Morgan, the Metropolitan 112-pound champion.

MISS BROWN WINS SPEEDBOAT CLASSIC

ENEMO 7 SECONDS ASTERN

Winner Covers 15-Mile Course in Fast Time of 26 Minutes and 37 Seconds.

In one of the most thrilling motor boat races ever witnessed in this part of the country, Miss Brown, the trim little craft owned by L. C. Brown of the Ottawa Power Boat Association, won the final and deciding heat of the international speed boat races of 151-class hydroplanes, which were concluded yesterday afternoon on the Jamaica Bay course near Meadowmere Park. Enemo, the speedster owned by Joseph Clayton of the Broad Channel Yacht Club, which had won out in the second heat of the feature event, was beaten in the final by a matter of seconds.

In addition to winning the world's championship for boats of the 151 hydroplane class, Miss Brown's owner gained possession of that coveted prize, the Rudder International Trophy. This race between the Canadian and American speed boats was sanctioned by the Mississippi Valley Power Boat Association and was held under the auspices of the Bay Head Yacht Club.

Miss Brown 7 Seconds Ahead.

Miss Brown, piloted by L. C. Brown, covered the fifteen-mile course of the final heat in the fast time of 26 minutes and 37 seconds. She was followed across the finish line 7 seconds later by Enemo. In the opinion of all the experts at the race, there was never an event so closely contested. It was a neck and neck affair from the start to the finish. The chief factor in the victory of Miss Brown was the superior helmsmanship of her owner and pilot, L. C. Brown. Mr. Brown drove with his head rather than with his hands. Although the Canadian boat got off to a bad start, clever manoeuvring by Brown brought his boat into the lead. Miss Meadowmere, owned by Frank Ripp of the Bay Head Yacht Club, was the third to cross the finish line in this event.

The second heat of the international feature was won by Enemo after a close race. Clayton covered the course with Enemo in 27 minutes and 8 seconds, Miss Brown crossing the line 6 seconds later. Miss Meadowmere, in taking third honors, traveled the distance in 34 minutes and 35 seconds. C. S. Hadley of the Broad Channel Yacht Club had bad luck with his Hadleyplane in yesterday's races. While endeavoring to make the lower turn in the second heat, his boat struck a rowboat. Two men in the latter craft were injured, one severely enough to be taken to the hospital. In the final heat of the classic, the Hadleyplane developed engine trouble and was unable to finish the contest.

Buddah First by Fraction.

Another exciting race was witnessed in the race for 340-class boats, when the Belle Harbor Yacht Club entry, Hellfire, owned by F. A. Kissner, was beaten out by one-fifth of a second by Buddah, owned by George Hazen of the Broad Channel Yacht Club. The latter speed demon covered the five-mile course in 10 minutes and 29 seconds. J. F. Priest's Fralabi was third in the event. It was a gruelling race throughout. The five-mile free for all was won by Black Beauty, owned by A. E. Brunner of the Broad Channel Yacht Club.

Forty Topeka Caddies Strike For 50 Per Cent. Rise in Pay

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 9 (AP).—The forty caddies of the Country Club here went on a strike yesterday, demanding a 50 per cent. increase in wages. Decision of the Country Club members to build a $5,000 swimming pool caused the walkout, declared Paul Whitlow, 14-year-old leader of the strikers. "If those guys can spend that much money for a fancy swimming hole, they can afford to pay more to us fellers, who have to swim in the creek," Paul explained. The strikers picketed the links and the golfers had to "carry their own."

WELLS-WALKER FIGHT OFF.

British Champion Leaves Chicago Suddenly on Eve of Match.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9 (AP).—The ten-round no-decision boxing match between Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion, and Bermondsey Billy Wells, British champion, set for tomorrow night at East Chicago, Ind., was called off tonight when it was learned that Wells had departed for New York.

Charles Harvey, Wells's manager, received no advance information of Wells's intention. The British boxer checked out at his hotel last night and took a train for the East.

BERMUDA TRIUMPHS BY CRICKET RALLY

1,500 WATCH TEAMS BATTLE

Cutting down the deficit of ten runs shown by the totals of the first innings on Saturday and adding sixteen besides, the Bermuda team of cricketers won the intercolonial match from Barbados, on the grand total for the two days' play of 209 to 193, in the presence of 1,500 people at New York Oval yesterday afternoon. It was the first time that a Barbados team had tasted defeat in the history of New York cricket.

The losers, who started yesterday with a lead of 97 to 87, did practically as well as before in compiling 96. The victors, on the other hand, improved greatly in batting and put together 122. After Barbados had been dismissed a second time Ross Robinson and K. Butterfield opened the batting for Bermuda and scored 79 between them before they were separated, leaving little doubt as to the issue. The most sensational batting of the match was that of E. Lashley of Barbados, who scored 24 off four hits over the boundaries for six runs each. E. Holder, with six wickets for 33 runs, made the best bowling average for Barbados.

POLITE WARRIORS.

Warlike adjectives have been exhausted in describing the fierce battle which the Democratic bosses of the five boroughs of Greater New York were about to begin with each other. The fighting was to be without quarter given. The survivors of the stricken field, if, indeed, any left it alive, would bear with them to the grave the marks of the terrible combat through which they had gone. But at the very beginning of the merciless and bloody fray what do we behold? Why, the ferocious leaders pausing to indulge in flourishes of courtesy to each other unequaled since Fontenoy. Boss McCooey of Brooklyn has given orders that every Democratic club house in Kings County shall be thrown open to Senator Walker when he crosses the bridge to beard Mayor Hylan in his own beloved Bushwick. A similar hospitality to the Mayor himself the Manhattan Democrats are expected to offer. Queens, Richmond and the Bronx will scarcely consent to be outdone in politeness of this kind.

This is certainly magnificent, but is it war? Will the Mayor, resolved as he is to fight to the death, think that his Brooklyn backer is showing the stern joy which warriors ought to feel? There is hardly parity of treatment in allowing Senator Walker a free field in Brooklyn in return for permitting Mr. Hylan to speak where he will in Manhattan. On balance the votes gained or lost in this way would be heavily against the Mayor. He can hardly expect to budge the Tammany following. But in Brooklyn there are many former Hylanites who could be persuaded to go over to the enemy. It is to be feared, therefore, that the excessive politeness with which the Democratic bosses start off their desperate strife will not make the Mayor any more polite than his wont.

Another mark of distinguished consideration which the Democratic leaders are showing each other relates to their several county tickets. Here there is to be a policy of hands off and deep respect for local sovereignty. Olvany will not meddle with McCooey's nominations for borough and county offices, nor will McCooey seek to thrust a Jack Horner thumb into the Democratic pie of New York County. It is beautiful thus to see political brethren dwelling in harmony, even at a distance, but does this portend that awful war to the knife which they were going to wage upon each other, without rest or respite? If this whole Democratic Armageddon had been craftily planned so as to turn it into a sham battle, it could hardly have been begun in a manner different from what we are witnessing. Appearances may be deceitful, but it is certain that all this preliminary fraternizing must be galling to the man in the City Hall who is bent on absolutely annihilating every wicked interest that is not found on his side.

A NEW DAY FOR CHINA.

The diplomatic formalities in Washington on Aug. 5 attending the "deposit" of the ratifications of the Nine Power Treaties signed at the Washington Conference, serve to fix that date as one of the most important in the history of our relations with China. The association of John Hay's name with the policy of the "Open Door" has led some to think that this doctrine was neither discovered nor promulgated until he became Secretary of State. To him rightly belongs much of the credit for forcing its recognition. But he neither was nor claimed to be the "inventor" of the policy. It goes back, as a matter of fact, to America's earliest contacts with China, and has its foundations in our country's belief that there should be equality of commercial opportunity for all nations abroad. The United States never sought, as did Britain and the other nations, to establish "spheres of interest" in China from which other nations should be excluded either tacitly or avowedly. Ever since our first treaty with China, in 1844, it has been the hope of the American Government to open up China to all alike. Although this policy was prompted largely by the desire of American traders to extend their markets, it coincided with the best interests of China, having as its ultimate object to free her from the control of separate foreign nations.

At the Washington Conference the United States did everything possible to further this principle and to relieve China of the danger of being again harshly pressed by any nation seeking selfish concessions or special privileges. It would be idle to pretend that in so doing it freed China from foreign dominion. "Spheres of influence" still exist, in fact if not in legal form, and will but gradually be relinquished. Yet the formal acceptance of the principles embodied in the Nine Power Treaty should make it difficult in the future for any nation having ulterior designs on Chinese sovereignty to carry them out. Nations have been known to violate treaties. Having accepted the principles adopted at the Washington Conference, however, any nation henceforth returning to the old policy of force in China is likely to find world opinion against it.

The whole represents in effect a distinct victory for the United States. The Nine Power Treaty, though couched in general terms, is categorical on the point that the nations agree to respect the sovereignty, the independence and the territorial and administrative integrity of China, and that they will refrain from taking advantage of conditions in China in order to seek special rights or privileges to the prejudice of other nations. Russia, to be sure, was not a signatory to this agreement, and at present shows signs of trying to do what the other nations have promised not to do. None of the nine Powers, however, is willing to see her violate these principles, and should she seriously attempt to do so, all would undoubtedly oppose her. These principles in no way work against Russia. Their chief value lies in the fact that they militate against special privilege. Now that the Nine Power Treaty is at last in effect, it is incumbent on the nations concerned to use it as the starting point from which to proceed with whatever joint activity they deem necessary in order to help China out of her present troubles.

FREIGHT PLANS FOR THE PORT.

The project which the engineers of the Port Authority have been studying for the relief of freight congestion on Manhattan Island, and which is made public today in the form adopted, is confessedly not an entire solution of the problem. For that a larger plan would be necessary. It would involve the construction of tunnels under the river, through which freight could be carried by electric power from the railway terminals to and from centres of distribution and of assembling in this city. But the high cost of such an undertaking seems at present prohibitive. Meanwhile, a compromise scheme of relief is proposed by the Port Authority. To the nine universal freight stations which it would build on this island in convenient zones, most of the freight would be brought in trucks from the railway terminal. Perishable fruit and vegetables and meats would still be transported in carload lots on floats across the river, but nearly all the rest it is proposed to bring over on trucks. This would be only following out and enlarging a method which the railways themselves have already partially employed. The report of the Port Authority does not explain how the added fleets of trucks are to be got over the ferries or through the vehicular tunnels without great delays and congestion of traffic. Possibly the largest bulk of the freight could be hauled in this way at night when the crowding is less extreme.

That the Port Authority is proceeding on the right principle, there appears to be little doubt. The freight is to be carefully sorted before it leaves the terminal, deliveries are to be made at points most for the convenience of consignees; and at the same points out-going freight will be received to be sent to any designated railway line. No one denies that the present system is confused, unnecessarily expensive and very clumsy. If the plan of the Port Authority were to be carried out, it seems clear that many of the existing obstacles would be removed. The estimate is that a saving of freight charges to the amount of $12,000,000 a year would result, while there would be for the railroads a reduction in the cost of their freight business of as much as $2,000,000 annually. Not the least important consideration is that more than forty Manhattan piers, now used by the railways as freight stations, could be released for the more direct purposes of river traffic.

The plan of the Port Authority deserves, as it will no doubt receive, the closest examination. If the promise of relief and saving which it holds out can be kept, the city will have another proof of the wisdom of those public officials and private citizens of New York and New Jersey who have been endeavoring together to work out a comprehensive plan for the development and better utilization of the Port of New York.

FRANCE IN SYRIA.

Paris declines to see any connection between the situation in Morocco and the upflare of hostilities with the Druse tribesmen in Southern Syria. There is this much justification for the French view that the Druses are a problem long antedating the Riffs. The shocking massacres of 1860, perpetrated by the Druses on their Maronite neighbors, became a matter of concern for the Powers, and to a French army was assigned the task of intervening for the protection of the Christians of the Lebanon. By that event was confirmed the special position of France in Syria dating back to Napoleon. Nor is it certain that the Druse uprising, marked by the capture of the ancient Sidon and the destruction of two French columns, is directly the result of a general Moslem effervescence stimulated by Abd-el-Krim's victories in North Africa. The Druses are sectarian Mohammedans and as such probably more inclined to hate their own heterodox co-religionists than the suzerain and infidel Feringhi.

Arab complicity in French troubles, however, is not excluded. In 1860 an investigation revealed that the hereditary enmity between Druses and Maronites had been exploited by the Turkish and Arab population of Damascus embittered by memories of the French wars in Algeria against the celebrated Abd-el-Kader. For him we may substitute Abd-el-Krim today. Arab sentiment in Asia Minor is hot against the new mandatories, both Great Britain in Palestine and France in Syria, and may be counted upon to utilize every opportunity for embarrassing the new masters who have taken the place of the Turks. We may see in Syria repercussions from Palestine and from the Riff, reinforcing local discontent against a mandatory which a few years ago expelled an Arab king from Damascus. This sentiment was manifested in the attempt upon Lord Balfour's life at Damascus some months ago.

The threat in Syria confronts M. Painleve with new perplexities but may serve to strengthen his hand in respect to the Riff problem. The French Government must be empowered either to wage war to the finish against Abd-el-Krim or else be given a free hand in making peace. Prolongation of the Riff struggle means the possibility of trouble elsewhere. The immediate anxiety has been for North Africa; actually the first effects have occurred in Asia Minor. But this only adds to the chances of the infection spreading from either wing of the Moslem line to the centre in Tunis and Algeria.

FRESH-AIR CHARITIES.

Excellent Summer reading is Part II of the Seventy-second Annual Report of the Children's Aid Society, just published. It is not to be found in the lists of books put forth by the publishing houses, but the true stories which it contains in brief and often crude relation would have wider reading if written as fiction. As it is, one can have for the asking this addition to one's evanescent Summer collection. It can be read in a half hour, but it will tell how one can give a whole Summer's happiness to children or how one can help to give whole lives of usefulness to some who have been unfortunate in their choice of parents. There's a young fellow out in Texas, for example, for whom this society found foster parents, who is now a member of the House of Representatives of that State and has been solicited to "run for the State Senate" but is not eligible to do so because he is not old enough. There's another, a young man in the Northwest, who has a farm of 160 acres (besides a rented one of 320 acres) and "four fine boys," and who is incidentally town marshal and has once in a while "to arrest a bootlegger." There are girls also, growing into useful and beautiful womanhood, as one in Arkansas, who is, in the judgment of her adopted parents, "the finest girl in the whole town." This little volume has a number of such biographies written either by the children themselves or by those who have taken them into their distant homes, most of them on farms in the West.

Yet while the placing out of children in good family homes has been the chief work of this society, organized by that great friend of children, Charles L. Brace, and carried on under the direction of his son, it was also a pioneer in fresh-air work. This report tells of the beginning of that movement:

> The story of that first fresh-air work in the Summer of 1873 reads like a modern folk-tale, for it recounts how the people as a whole were moved, not just a few far-seeing men and women here and there. New York as a city became alive to the sufferings of its children, was touched by their helplessness and gave of themselves with their alms. Day by day the progress of the venture was recorded in The New York Times, and contributions were received at The Times office. As the idea spread and took hold of the imaginations of men and women the fund grew. But more than that, people came forward with emotion and offered themselves with their purses. It was this gift of the giver with his gift that made the project succeed, turned it from an experiment into an achievement. Because the city took to heart the unhappiness of little children crowded in the reeking heat of the tenements, no Summer has since gone by without thousands of New York girls and boys catching their first sight of green fields or feeling the bracing wind come in from the sea.

There are many agencies, public and private, that are now carrying on this splendid life-giving and life-saving work Summer after Summer, but New York City has special reason to be grateful to the Children's Aid Society, which has for fifty years been active in providing places in the fresh air, first of all for mothers sick in body and soul and their babies in need of sunshine, and then for small boys in camps and for little girls in Summer homes. The most recent addition has been a Convalescent Home for boys between the ages of ten and sixteen. Commissioner Coler has congratulated this society, "which has always co-"operated so well with all public wel-"fare movements," upon taking the initiative in this special provision, as it has done so often in the past in meeting the needs of the unfortunate children in this great community. It deserves all that it asks. Its President is William Church Osborn. The address is the United Charities Building.

TWO GREAT GEORGIANS.

Peaceful, if deceptively peaceful to the outlander mind, are the present politics of Georgia, so often disturbed, even in the brand-recent past, by whirling personalities and tongues of flame. In this Era of Good Feeling in General Oglethorpe's settlement, it is a pleasure—why be mealy-mouthed about it?—it is a public merit and service to introduce and recommend to a discriminating public the two Georgians who best deserve of their State. We ought to be absolutely just, "play no favorites"; and yet can we help admitting our peculiar joy in Plain Gertie? She comes to us, recommended by a thousand graces and good deeds, from The Cordele Dispatch. Look at her and love her:

> Plain Gertie, a four-year-old Jersey cow owned by Pebble Hill Plantation of Thomasville, is now at the head of her age class in the 305-day test in Georgia. * * * In the 305-day test Plain Gertie produced 12,778 pounds of milk containing 546.8 pounds of butter fat, the equivalent of 643 pounds of butter.

> Florham's Favorite Queen in 365 days produced 12,959.7 pounds of milk containing 713.6 pounds of butter fat, the equivalent of 839 pounds of butter. This record places her at the head of all the Guernsey breed in production in Georgia.

We haven't the scientific competence, if in the dog-days we could have the desire, to weigh the comparative merits of gas and milk as motors of civilization and benefactors of the body politic. We can't be sure, in consequence, whether we or anybody else would be justified in assuming that Plain Gertie and Florham's Favorite Queen, those rival and unrivaled goddesses of production, not unworthy of the ballot, have or have not contributed more to the well-being of Georgia than all its delegation in Congress—except, of course, our friend and the friend of prohibition and every good cause, the Hon. William David Upshaw.

THE WAGE AND THE MAN.

When certain employers in France began paying higher wages for the same work to men who are married, and still higher wages in proportion to the number of children, there were those who denounced the innovation as uneconomic and utopian. According to the doctrine of the "classic" economists, it was. But in a few years it has extended to 10,000 establishments employing a million men. It has spread to 280,000 men in Belgium. Now it is seriously proposed in the collieries of New South Wales. Yet, it is the employers and not the wage earners who urge it. The motive is in a measure economic. In some cases it may resemble that of Henry Ford when he fixed a minimum wage of $5 a day in order to reduce the expensive "labor turnover" without abandoning the rigors of quantity production. Also, it appears that a force of husbands and fathers averages higher in good workmen. Even economically, regard for human nature pays.

In the once water-tight compartment of economics, the individual "economic man" was be all and end all. Only let him alone and he would produce the maximum of wealth—the maximum of happiness. John Ruskin saw the fallacy, though not very clearly. He called Adam Smith "the half-bred and half-witted "Scotchman who taught the deliberate "blasphemy: 'Thou shalt hate the "'Lord thy God, damn His laws and "'covet thy neighbor's goods.'" Of course he had not read the admirable Adam, but he had sensed the blunder of laissez-faire and had arrived at a highly significant definition of the wealth of a nation. That consists, not primarily in its material riches, but in the character and ability of its citizens—"the possession of the valuable by the valiant." If its men decay, the utmost resources of farm and forest and factory can only speed its ruin. Ruskin's saying is the manifesto of sociology—of its right to invade economics, to control it and administer its laws.

The principle now meets little opposition. Its application is difficult. In our income tax we cheerfully grant exemptions for wife and children—but only, it would seem, because that is agreeable to the majority. If the spirit of Ruskin is to prevail, the exemption should be proportioned to the "valiancy" of the child—being sharply increased, let us say, as he shows ability to do well in college and master a profession. Would a majority favor that? The declaration of the Clayton act that labor is not a commodity may as yet mean little in law; but it is thoroughly Ruskinian in its exaltation of the man above material things. How soon will labor, thus humanized, have a humanely reasonable regard for the livelihood of its fellow-men—as, for example, in a coal strike?

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Temperance Had Its Reward.

Somebody who may or may not be a prohibitionist or a would-be amender of the Volstead act has dug up out of a dusty corner in some library a copy of a quaintly named magazine, The American Museum and Repository, issued in July, 1788. The number is devoted largely to a long "official account" of the "Grand Federal Procession" in Philadelphia on the fourth of that month and not a little of the account consists of exultations over the fact that at a big "collation," served that evening, the 17,000 partakers drank nothing stronger than beer and cider, or "cyder," as it then was spelled.

The editor of the magazine evidently was a bitter foe of strong drink, especially the then cheap and conveniently accessible rum, but he seems to have had no objections at all to the gentler liquids mentioned. At all events, he was delighted at the result of the rules laid down by the managers of the affair.

Certainly the result of the mitigated abstinence was good, for The Museum and Repository declares with great satisfaction, first, that among the celebrators there was no intoxication and no quarreling, and then, in careful accuracy, that "there were two or three persons intoxicated and several quarrels on the green." Added, however, was the statement that there is reason to believe that such little drunkenness and fighting as marred the feast was "occasioned by spirituous liquors which were clandestinely carried out and drunk by some disorderly people contrary to the orders of the day."

It is to be regretted that the names of those who gave the orders are not stated, but, listed as subscribers to the magazine, is almost everybody eminent at that time, beginning with George Washington. From him a letter in almost lyrical praise of the new literary venture had been received and is proudly printed.

He Really Doesn't Need It.

Certain excellently intentioned persons are raising a fund of $5,000 to be given to John T. Scopes, hero of the recent trial at Dayton, to be used by him in taking a three years' post-graduate course at some university. Money is coming in and presumably the amount desired can be raised easily enough, but if young Scopes is really as wise as his conduct during and since the trial has indicated, he gently will tell his too kind friends that he does not need help of this kind.

If he has a desire to round out his education by several more years of study he can do it, just as many another young man no richer and less famous than he has done, without dependence on anything except what he can earn or borrow. There are scholarships available for such as he in most institutions of learning. He would find no difficulty in getting one of them. Its acceptance would involve nothing of humiliation and none of the obligations and restraints, vague but real, which would rest upon him as the recipient of a fund raised by a committee of admirers of his opinions. Suppose he modifies those opinions? Would he give back the money?

After he got his scholarship he still would have to meet living expenses. That he can do as thousands of other ambitious young men by doing the sort of work college students can find, or, still better, he can borrow from some personal friend enough to carry him through, to be paid back with interest later. He has the known character to make the raising of such a loan easy, for him, and it usually is the best way in such cases.

A Defense Not Adequate.

Commissioner Enright's defense of the giving of "P. D." signs as ornaments for the automobiles of a favored few is not good logic—his conclusion does not follow from his premises. He has had no difficulty in gathering from the list of those to whom these signs were accorded names in considerable numbers of more or less eminent New Yorkers credited by their fellow-citizens with good repute. No doubt, too, many of these men have been able to render, and have rendered, to the police force services of value and deserving of gratitude. Their ability to help the force, however, conferred on them a privilege the exercise of which was its own and sufficient reward, and it did not create the slightest basis for adding special right.

The Commissioner says that none of his "peerage" has been reported to him as breaking the laws. Presumably he is right, and for two reasons—first, that the breaking would have to be rather serious to be reported at all, and, second, that the minor laws and ordinances are abrogated for them, and that is all they want. There are other recognitions for benefactions to the policemen than the creation of a class empowered to take highway advantages not accorded to other people.

A Simple Remedy Is Ignored.

As a reason for not paying their clerks better salaries, the Parisian bankers say that in France the handling of checks is such a complicated matter, involving so many counter-checks and recordings, that the clerks must be far more numerous than in countries where the handling of checks is done in a simpler way. And as the clerks must be numerous, an increase in their pay, even though small, would aggregate a sum that would eat an intolerably large hole in banking profits that at best are not too large.

The bankers seem not even to have considered the simplification of their methods, with consequent freedom to cut down overhead by discharging a lot of their clerks and to pay the remainder better. Yet that might have suggested itself to them, for France has no unemployment problems at present, but rather a scarcity of labor and the necessity to import it.

Nowhere except in the United States is the use of checks in place of cash encouraged and made easy. Elsewhere, and even in England, precautions against evils that to us seem imaginary or negligible are taken, and the result is that few except professional financiers and really rich folk utilize a convenience almost generally understood and enjoyed over here.

WHY WATER MAINS BURST.

And What Was Done in Rochester to Insure Safety.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

An aqueous volcano in the streets of New York is not a pleasant thing to encounter or even to read about. And it occurs too frequently. Listen to a story of something better:

When the City of Rochester constructed its water-works the cast-iron mains were made, under contract, in another State. And when they were ready for shipment a man was sent thither to inspect them before they should be accepted. Equipped with a strength-testing hydraulic apparatus, he appeared at the foundry.

The first pipe to which he applied the test burst at once. "Oh, of course," said the contractors, "we always expect that in a thousand castings there may be an imperfect one somewhere." "Just so! But let me try another." The second went the way of the first. The contractors looked grave and declared they never had known such an accident before. "Probably the rest are all right; you don't need to try any more," said one, while he put his hand into his breast pocket as if to draw out something. "Yes, probably they are; but it is best to prove it." And the third pipe followed suit.

Then came attempts at cajolery and hints at bribery, followed by more than attempts at profanity. But my old schoolmate, Joseph McMaster, was the most matter-of-fact man I ever have known. Nobody could buy him or scare him. He was not one to put his hand to the plow and look back. He plowed his way through the entire consignment and smashed every pipe. The explanation had been evident to him when he saw the fragments of the first pipe. All had shown the required thickness at the visible ends. But in the central portion they were not more than half as thick. While the outside was a straight cylinder, the space inside was shaped like a barrel, bulging at the waist. This saved the contractors many tons of metal.

I believe there never has been an aqueous volcano in the streets of Rochester, and for its exemption the city owes a grateful remembrance to McMaster, who did his duty, his whole duty and nothing but his duty.

By the way, he was a graduate of Rochester University, where he took prizes in mathematics and oratory. Now let us cancel one of those sneers at college graduates. He belonged to the same Greek-letter fraternity as the Dawes brothers.

Amagansett, L. I., Aug. 5, 1925.

Mr. Brooks's Prediction on Davis.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In The New York Times July 31 you indicated that in my published election forecast the election of Mr. Davis was predicted, and reference is made to a statement issued on Aug. 3, 1924. This forecast was based on the birth data furnished me by Mr. Davis's secretary as April 13, 1873. From this data I forecast Mr. Davis's nomination in The New York Times of June 27, 1924. After the article of Aug. 3, 1924, was published, Mr. Davis sent me a letter dated Aug. 8, 1924, and advised me that an error had been made in the previous birth date, and that he was born April 12 instead of the 13th, and this made such a marked difference in the horoscope that it became necessary to make another forecast, which was published Aug. 31, 1924, with the following conclusion:

"All these conditions are very favorable to Mr. Davis's success in the race for the White House, but there are other planetary aspects which make such an outcome doubtful. The position of the malefic Mars and Uranus may prove the deathblow to what otherwise might have been a very successful political venture"; which, when taken in the consideration of the stated conclusion about Mr. Coolidge, i. e., "his natal and progressed charts, his nomination at a favorable Jupiter hour, together with the fact that we find the benefic Venus in the ascendant Nov. 4, is favorable to him. He will have the love and esteem of the people"—all of which certainly make it plain beyond any question that I did not predict the election of Mr. Davis after I had been advised of the error in the birth date furnished me.

Mr. Schepp Flooded With Letters.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

More than 60,000 letters have been received as a result of the press announcements of the projected benevolent work contemplated by Mr. Schepp.

He thanks those who have sent in suggestions and deeply regrets his inability to make personal answers to all the appeals, and begs that no further correspondence be sent. As soon as his health will permit, and a committee appointed for the purpose has made decisions on suggestions for philanthropic work, an announcement will be made.

Spare the Rod and Spoil the Child.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The proverb "Spare the rod and spoil the child" was coined by Samuel Butler of Worcester, England, and is to be found in his "Hudibras," Part II, Canto 1, line 843, as follows:

Love is a boy, by poets styled,
Then spare the rod and hate the child.

THE NECKLACE.

I wore it, beautiful and bright,
On many a day, on many a night,
And always knew myself bedight;

In churches, palaces, in stores;
Walking in woods on ferny floors;
By fires and wave-bewildered shores.

The string was frayed, I knew, for long.
I patched it up, I thought it strong;
But oh, I fingered it too long.

It broke; but this I have to tell—
It chose its moment-of-breaking well
And no one noticed when it fell.

Spatter, it lay, my beauty bright.
I picked it up. I strung it right,
I have it tied together tight.
I stop. I feel my beads, in fright.

DOROTHY LEONARD.

THE DUTCH AND TOLERANCE

To the Editor of The New York Times:

New York has become the greatest city in the world, not alone because of a favorable geographical location but because, from the time its site was marked by a few scattered huts to this of its imperial grandeur, it has been representative of a spirit of cosmopolitanism which has attracted to it imaginative and adventuring pioneers from all lands. It, therefore, displeases me to find, in a recent letter to The Times, the negro plot of the eighteenth century used for unfavorable contrasting of the Dutch-English colony with the narrow bigotry of the much more parochial New England. From the beginning the Dutch impress of liberalism, brought from a country whose views were, for that time, less intolerant than those of any other, has dominated the policy of the city through all its kaleidoscopic changes of government and population. This is seen today in the response of its varied population and diverse beliefs to the appeal for the work of art on Morningside Heights, though its control will be in the hands of a particular sect.

It was no less apparent when the Jesuit priest, lately beatified, Père Jogues, wrote:

"Orders are to admit none but Calvinists. But this is not observed, for there are, beside Calvinists, in the colony Catholics, English Puritans, Lutherans, Anabaptists, &c. * * * The English prefer to hold lands under the Dutch, who ask nothing from them."

Later, when this zealous missionary was captured by the Mohawks, the Dutch sought to ransom him. Afterward his escape was effected and through the constant friendship of the Calvinist minister and the Colonial Government he was enabled to see France once more before the final journey which ended in his death; nor did the Dutch cease their kindnesses with this instance, but both Fathers Bressani and Poncet met with similar treatment.

It is true that there was some mild persecution of Quakers and Lutherans by that choleric swashbuckler Stuyvesant, but complaints directed by the citizens of the colony to the States General and to his employers, the Dutch West India Company, resulted in its cessation. But the negro plot was not of a kind with any of the religious insanities which disgraced some of the other colonies, and is very unfairly used as a means of comparison. One of the perennial wars with Spain was on, and there had been an unjust enslavement of some Spanish negroes who had been brought in. Rumors were about that there was a conspiracy of these, in conjunction with the Spanish fleet, to burn and capture the town, and that the negroes and a few whites had held secret meetings.

Some fires of doubtful origin broke out in unusual places, and the people went into panic, committed unjustified acts and lost their heads generally, but the matter was in no remotest way rooted in religious intolerance.

Doubtless the New Englander should be praised for singleness and strength of conviction, and perhaps the drastic methods of hanging and burning as a means of gathering all into "one fold under one shepherd" may have merit, but it has not hitherto worked. It may be that from the wonderful alloy of peoples who compose what is still New Amsterdam in essence there will emerge some historian of vision who will reveal to us what a remarkable and undying influence Dutch liberalism, law and methods of thought had and have in the shaping of the destiny of the Republic, through the development of this great metropolitan centre, often guided in the past and still in our own day by such virile blood as flowed in the veins of Roosevelt.

PUNISHMENT FOR CRIME.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Criminal law and the procedure under it doubtless need a thorough overhauling, and the commission to be appointed by Governor Smith can accomplish much good by recommending the repeal of bad laws and the enactment of good ones.

There is one phase of the law, however, which should receive the attention of the Legislature at its next session. Under the present law the punishment for robbery in the first degree by a person who is in possession of a dangerous weapon at the time the crime is committed is twenty years in prison.

To a criminal of this type the fear of conviction is almost nil, because he knows from experience that through maudlin sympathizers, parole boards, pardoning power and provisions for lessening the time of his sentence he can well afford to take the chance of arrest. With a revolver in his hand he can secure in a few minutes large sums of money from his victims; and why should he worry even at the prospect of twenty years' confinement?

There is only one fear that can be put in the heart of such a criminal, and that is the fear that if caught and convicted he and his accomplices will be permanently removed as a menace to society and kept for the rest of their lives at hard labor for the benefit of the community.

My suggestion is, therefore, that the law be amended as quickly as possible to provide that any person (and his accomplices) convicted of robbery in the first degree while in possession of a dangerous weapon be punished by imprisonment for life, and that there shall not be vested in any one the power to pardon or reduce the sentence except in cases where it is subsequently proved that the convicted person did not commit the crime with which he was charged. The possession of a dangerous weapon when a crime is committed imports a design to kill, and no such person should be permitted to have a second opportunity to prey upon the public.

The Sullivan law has failed to prevent criminals from getting weapons for use in their trade. No regulation as to the manufacture and sale of firearms, or of their distribution, can be expected to materially alter the situation as it exists today. The criminal seeks no license and never has any difficulty in obtaining dangerous weapons. The only practical remedy for the outrageous prevalence of crimes of violence is to gather in the criminals as rapidly as possible and place them permanently where they cannot pursue their vocation.

PRAISES LEAGUE AID IN WAR ON DISEASE

FAVORS GRADING OF PORTS

Says Plan for Allowing Certified Ships to Land Anywhere Would Be of Commercial Value.

The International Health Organization of the League of Nations has been of great value to international business by aiding in the suppression of diseases which would shake the entire commercial structure of the world if they became prevalent, according to Professor Charles Hodges of New York University in an article in the World Health Number of the League of Nations News.

"Public Health is the physical foundation of world-wide commercial intercourse," writes Professor Hodges. "Disease is a costly direct and indirect burden upon international trade, finance and industry. It can close markets, blockade sources of supply and change trade routes, with all the economic stagnation the situation implies. The health work of the League of Nations is in line with the more scientific control of international factors bearing upon present-day business.

"The United States is not more than thirty days from bubonic plague, cholera, yellow fever and the other endemic diseases of the world's cesspools. Commerce itself would languish while our prosperity—indeed our necessities in the way of raw products for our world-dependent industries—would disappear if anything like the old medieval sweep of disease ravaged our great work of nations as it shook Europe in the Middle Ages.

"Every ship operator fears what lies behind the yellow flag of quarantine; and merchants, bankers, and manufacturers understand how important it is that we should guard our health at our gates to world intercourse. But so long as vast parts of the earth remained outside the march of progress it had to be a national affair with narrow horizons of watchfulness. The very centres of disease lay outside the Western world, and, seemingly, of our interest. Yet with the changes in our own sanitary outlook, we began to consider the health of our neighbors.

"For instance, to build the Panama Canal, it was necessary for the United States to conquer the yellow fever of the equator. But upon cleaning up Panama we faced the danger of disease along the west coast of South America that would have made the canal a focal point for the distribution of epidemics unless these neighboring republics were cleaned up in an extension of American sanitation. Similarly, in Africa and the Far East tropical medicine began its cleansing activities in the battle to prevent breeding and diffusion of disease. It was essentially a business proposition forced upon the world for its own protection."

After praising the League's efforts to eliminate red tape surrounding public health activities, Professor Hodges says:

"In particular there has been attempted the first steps toward grading ports from a sanitary viewpoint to permit a vessel possessing a clean bill of health from a duly certified port to touch ports in other countries without further inspection, provided no infected place had been entered en route. The realization of this plan means that business would save time, money and uncertainty in the daily work of bringing market in touch with market."

APPROVES SEAMEN'S PLAN.

The Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York has approved the building plans of the Seamen's Church Institute, 25 South Street, it was announced yesterday by Walter Wood Parsons, Vice Chairman of the Building Committee of the institute. The letter of indorsement, Mr. Parsons said, urges "all ship owners, shippers, transportation interests, and all classes of business men interested in the well-being of the Port of New York to support the plans of the institute for enlarging its facilities for carrying on its comprehensive and beneficent work."

Mr. Parsons also announced the following special gifts to the building fund: John E. Berwin, $2,500; Mrs. George S. Allan, $1,000; Miss A. R. Nash and Miss Mary L. Swift, $150; Byron S. Adams, Mrs. Harriet U. Allyn, A. C. Andrews, W. L. Andrews, Mrs. H. K. Appleton, W. A. Augur, Miss Bertha G. Brooks, Mr. and Mrs. Archibald D. Davis, Mrs. J. S. Dyett, Mrs. Bruce Ford, Mrs. J. H. Hall Jr., Albert S. Heywood, Mrs. Carrie O. Meacham, Mrs. W. E. McCord, W. A. McLaren, Alfred A. Pavenstedt, Miss Caroline A. Platt, W. H. Pouch and "a friend," $100 each.

AIR PROGRESS IN GERMANY.

Engineer Says Nation Has Leaped Ahead, Due to Private Initiative.

Air navigation has made more progress in Germany than in any other country because the field is being developed by private capital and initiative, according to William Knight, consulting engineer for Aircraft Construction and formerly technical representative in Europe of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics. Mr. Knight made public yesterday figures showing Germany's progress in air navigation.

He pointed out that the Germans were operating 13,220 miles of the world's total of 19,830 commercial air routes in 1924. He said that a single air navigation company's figures showed the number of kilometers covered in 1923 was 536,455, and in 1924 1,875,371, with probably 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 total flights in the current year. As far as subsidies are concerned, Germany, according to Mr. Knight, spends much less for air navigation than either France or England. The Government of Germany does not try to dominate the development of type, design and route, according to Mr. Knight.

TOKIO FLIERS IN IRKUTSK.

May Reach Moscow Friday Despite Mishap to One of Two Planes.

MOSCOW, Aug. 9 (AP).—The two Japanese airplanes which are on the way to Moscow from Tokio arrived at Irkutsk, near Lake Baikal today, and are expected to reach the Soviet capital about the middle of the month.

One of the planes was forced down near Verkhne-Udinsk because of minor damage to one of the motors. The Soviet authorities gave all possible assistance in making the repairs.

The Moscow officials and the Volunteer Aerial Society are preparing to give the Japanese pilots a warm welcome. Great importance is attached to the expedition as a means for consolidating economic and cultural relations between Soviet Russia and Japan.

VIE FOR GOLD AND SILVER GOLF BALLS

WIN THE G. KANE PRIZES

Mrs. Stuart Duncan and Her Son Dyson Victors at Country Club—Mrs. Boardman a Hostess.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 9.—With seven players tied with a net score of 35 for the best net of the season on Ocean Links, T. Suffern Tailer's course at Newport, Robert Goelet late on Saturday afternoon, playing exceptional golf, turned in a card of 33 net and therefore now leads the field for the best net score and the silver golf ball.

The lead for the gold ball for the best gross score still remains in the hands of Richard Van N. Gambrill with 35, but Robert Walton Goelet recently made two rounds at 36 and there are two 37s and two 38s on the list. One of the latter has just been made by Tommy Tailer, the thirteen-year-old son of Mr. Tailer, who clipped a stroke from his old record going out and equalled his previous 39 coming in. In the eighteen holes he made six of the holes in three, playing at the time with W. G. Ladd and George McDonald.

The prizes offered by Grenville Kane for a week-end mixed foursome on the links of the Newport Country Club were won by Mrs. Stuart Duncan and her son, Dyson Duncan, with a gross of 78 and net of 51.

The others competing were Mr. and Mrs. Victor Sorchan, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Whitman, Mrs. J. L. Redmond and Kenneth Shaw Safe, Miss Edith Taylor and Cyril B. Judge, Miss Mary Nicholson and F. G. Havemeyer, Miss Anne B. Auchincloss and Richard Gambrill, Mrs. J. Lenox Banks Jr., and Henry C. Drayton, Mrs. Harry S. Black and W. S. Van Rensselaer, Henry O. Havemeyer and Miss Florence Havemeyer, Mrs. Winthrop Boardman and Julian Sloan, Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Livermore, Mrs. Williams Burden and J. Gordon Douglas Jr., Miss Carlotta Havemeyer and Daniel A. Menocal, Miss Anna Sands and William Goadby Loew, Miss Florence Loew and A. G. Wellman, Mrs. Herbert Shipman and Milton Holden, Mrs. Vincent Astor and Luther Hull, Mrs. Dahlgren Emmett and Richard B. Corbin, Miss Helen Michell and Colonel Gilbert Hamilton, Mrs. King Carley and Joseph Harriman Jr., Mrs. A. G. Duval and Grenville Kane, Mrs. G. Filley and Condé Nast.

The ladies' match play tournament at the Country Club is down to the final, Mrs. Boardman having defeated Miss Florence Havemeyer 3 and 1 in one semi-final and Miss Carlotta Havemeyer defeated Mrs. Victor Sorchan one up in the other.

The match play tournament for the President's cup has also been reduced to the semi-finals, A. G. Wellman having defeated Joseph Harriman Jr., one up and Mr. Wellman will meet the winner of the I. Townsend Burden and A. A. Gammell match in the final.

Miss Mary Pope has registered at the Country Club for the season.

Prince Serge Romanosky, who is to give a recital at the Embassy Club this afternoon, is a guest of Mrs. Richard T. Wilson and he was a visitor at the Casino yesterday, as were P. and F. Livermore, guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin.

Mrs. U. P. Hedrick and Mrs. F. W. Herendeen of Geneva, N. Y., and Mrs. F. B. Hutchinson and Miss Mabel Hutchinson of New Bedford have arrived at the La Forge for the remainder of the month.

Mrs. Winthrop Boardman was a dinner hostess last evening.

E. Ward Olney of Convent, N. J., was a week-end visitor in Newport.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Barker of Omaha are guests at the New Cliffs.

All of the boxes in the grand stand for the coming annual invitation tennis tournament at the Newport Casino have long since been sold and five of the six additional lawn stands have also been taken by Mr. and Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin, Mrs. James B. Haggin, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Vallance, Mr. and Mrs. J. Theus Munds and Eugene S. Newbold, the latter a Summer resident at Jamestown.

Mrs. George Chanler gave a largely attended tea at Jamestown yesterday afternoon.

MME. SEMBRICH HOSTESS.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKE GEORGE, N. Y., Aug. 9.—At her beautiful home, Bayview, at Bolton Landing on Lake George, Mme. Marcella Sembrich this afternoon gave a musicale and tea to inaugurate a very attractive studio she has just completed on her estate in the woods on the lake shore.

A large number of her friends and neighbors were present. The musical program was rendered by two of Mme. Sembrich's pupils, Miss Marie Edelle of New York City and Miss Maude Alin of Los Angeles, Cal. Both of the young ladies are winners of Juilliard scholarships. Miss Evelyn Smith was at the piano.

WED BY PEACE JUSTICE.

Ellis Propp Marries Ethel Walsh, Former Dancer, at 2 A. M.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Aug. 9.—Ellis Propp, 31 years old, a merchandise broker of New York, and Miss Ethel Walsh, 34, a former dancer in the "Follies," were married at the Pickwick Arms Hotel here at 2 o'clock this morning by Justice of the Peace William S. M. Fiske, whom they had roused from bed. Today they sent telegrams to their families and left for Southampton, where they will spend a three weeks' honeymoon.

The couple had obtained a marriage license here on Aug. 3 and had intended to be married in October. Last night they motored here from New York to a dinner dance at the Pickwick Arms and decided in the course of the evening to have the ceremony performed at once.

Nadler—Forman.

The marriage of Vera Forman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Forman of 1,571 Forty-sixth Street, Brooklyn, to Jesse Nadler, son of Mrs. Hannah Nadler of 1,822 Sixty-first Street, Brooklyn, took place at the bride's home yesterday. Rabbi Max Reichler officiated. After a honeymoon in Canada Mr. and Mrs. Nadler will make their home in Brooklyn.

SOCIAL NOTES

New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Cameron Church Jr., who were married last month at Newport, have gone to Atlantic City to pass a week at the Ritz-Carlton. Mrs. Church was Miss Muriel Vanderbilt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt.

Porter Jr., and their daughters, the Misses Louise H., Joyce and Beatrice Porter, have left for an extensive tour of the Canadian Northwest and the Pacific Coast. Among the places they will visit are Jasper Park and Lake Louise. They plan to return late next month.

Miss Virginia L. Gamble, who has been passing several days at the Ambassador, has returned to Cloverfields, Huntington, L. I. Mrs. Harold O. Barker has returned to her Summer home at East Hampton, L. I., after a short stay at the Ambassador.

Major John B. Corbly, U. S. A., and Mrs. Corbly of Washington are at the Astor for a short stay before sailing for San Francisco by way of Panama.

Italian night will be celebrated at the Sands Point Casino, Port Washington, on Wednesday. A feature of the evening will be an Italian dinner.

Southampton.

Following the successful dog show Saturday afternoon, many of the winning and less fortunate exhibitors dined at the Shinnecock Club, where every table was reserved for the subscription dinner-dance, one of a series that is being given on Saturday nights.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent S. Mulford entertained a company of sixteen at the Shinnecock Club Saturday night.

Ex-Justice and Mrs. Morgan J. O'Brien entertained at luncheon at the Meadow Club Saturday, their guests being Mr. and Mrs. George Leary and Mr. and Mrs. Haley Fiske. Mrs. Leary won all the principal honors with her Irish terriers at the dog show, her exhibits sweeping the boards in their respective classes.

Mr. and Mrs. Leary have as their week-end guest Miss Anna Leary, niece of the late Countess Leary. Miss Leary exhibited Pomeranians at the dog show.

Harrison Ball, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Arthur Ball of Water Mill, was the winner of the bi-weekly Mecox Bay sailing regatta Saturday afternoon, sailing his sloop Scandals to victory over a fleet of eight sloops and catboats. Henry Hotchkiss, in his catboat Onward, was second, while third place went to E. P. Morse, sailing his catboat Wanda. This is young Ball's second victory. The course is three times the bay, a distance of seven miles.

Mrs. Edith Ripley Kennedy of Mendham, N. J., landscape artist, was a recent guest of Mrs. John E. Berwind at Bridgehampton. Mrs. Kennedy gave an informal talk before the Bridgehampton Village League on village planning.

There will be two flower shows this week. The East Hampton Garden Club will give its annual exhibition in Clinton Hall on Tuesday afternoon, and the Bridgehampton flower show will be given Friday afternoon and evening in the Community House in that village. An exhibit of old china will be a feature of the Bridgehampton show. Mrs. Daniel F. Downs is head of the show committee.

Art exhibitions will vie with tennis as leaders in public interest in Southampton this week. Miss Agnes Pelton will show a number of her recent portraits and her Hawaiian landscape and flower studies in the Parrish Building, from Tuesday to Saturday, inclusive. Richard Newton Jr. is showing some of his latest work at Suval's.

RUSSIAN ARCHBISHOP ON TRIAL AT MINSK

Melchisidek, With Several Priests and Laymen, Accused of Anti-Soviet Activities.

MINSK, Russia, Aug. 9 (AP).—Archbishop Melchisidek and several clergymen and Orthodox laymen and two women were brought to trial today before the Supreme Court. They are charged with counter-revolutionary activities against the Soviet régime and with obstructing the authorities in the confiscation of Church treasures in 1921.

The prosecution alleges that Metropolitan Melchisidek, while formally obeying the Soviet laws, was clandestinely carrying on counter-revolutionary propaganda by calling upon the Orthodox faithful, members of his congregation, to offer passive resistance to the authorities. He is also held responsible for the hiding of valuable articles belonging to his church in order to save them from confiscation. These articles, it is declared, were found in 1923 by agents of the Secret Political Police.

The trial is attracting the general attention of the Russian ecclesiastical authorities and the Moscow Holy Synod is sending a special representative here to watch the case.

RED TUMULT IN REICHSTAG.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 9.—With the Government's tax program safely written on the statute books, the parliamentary battle over the new German tariff began in the Reichstag yesterday. In accordance with what has virtually become an established custom in that Assembly, the debate was ushered in amid scenes of scandalous turbulence staged by the Communist deputies. These excitable gentry not only stigmatized Chancellor Luther, when he mounted the rostrum to outline the Cabinet's tariff, as "tax robber," "head bandit of the capitalists," but massed themselves immediately before the speakers' tribunes and by continuous yelling accompanied by shaking of fists made his words inaudible even to the stenographer. Their fury, which was finally quelled through the Reichstag President's threats once more to bring in the police and eject the racket makers, was caused by a majority rule limiting each political faction to four hours of oratory on the tariff.

"This is done so the people can be plundered without interference," a Communist speaker shouted.

The Socialists also strongly objected to the gag rule, which their leader Breitscheid qualified as "strangulation."

The tumult was deafening as the Chancellor started to speak and for fully five minutes the Reichstag sounded like a loud speaker broadcasting the ravings of a maniac. Order was restored only to be torn asunder again soon afterward at Dr. Luther's remark that the population to live must have opportunity for work. Red deputies burst into wild cheers and bitter invectives, sprang from their bench and made as if to storm the tribune. But again the menace of police intervention thundered at them by President Lobe brought them reluctantly to their senses.

ORATORY GONE, SAYS YEATS

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—"The day of oratory is past, not only in Ireland but everywhere in the modern world," said the Irish poet, W. B. Yeats, at Dublin last night.

The occasion of his statement that speeches are not whaat they were even in the land of the blarney stone was a meeting at Abbey Theatre, when Mr. Yeats publicly thanked the Irish Government for endowing the new theatre. Mr. Yeats said Abbey Theatre must teach clarity of expression in view of the decline of oratory.

WILL INVESTIGATE ALIEN PROPERTY DEAL

Sargent Is Said to Have Coolidge Order for Inquiry Into Case of American Metals Corporation.

Special to The New York Times.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 9.—It was reported here tonight that President Coolidge had ordered Attorney General Sargent to make an investigation into the affairs of the Alien Custodian office in connection with the restoration of the American Metal Corporation to its owners.

According to reports which could not be confirmed tonight, the President made the decision when Mr. Sargent conferred with him on Friday.

Developments in regard to the seizure and return of the property of the American Metals Corporation have received a good deal of publicity during the past few years, and they were the subject of part of the investigation before the Special Senate Committee, which went into the administration of the affairs of the Department of Justice under Harry M. Daugherty.

In 1917 A. Mitchell Palmer, Alien Property Custodian in the Wilson Administration, decided that 49 per cent. of the company's stock was enemy-owned. The property was seized and sold, and the proceeds of the sale, which totaled more than $6,000,000, were placed in the United States Treasury pending final disposition of the case.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler sought to show before the Senate Committee that this money was turned back in 1921 to a group of Swiss claimants while Mr. Daugherty was Attorney General and Thomas W. Miller was Alien Property Custodian, although the Swiss group was in the control of German citizens. He also sought to show that Jesse Smith, a close friend of Mr. Daugherty, had tried to influence decisions of Mr. Miller and that in more than one case large fees had been paid to political leaders by claimants.

It was also brought out at the inquiry that two assistants had carried on the negotiations for the return of the property to the alleged Swiss claimants with the approval of Mr. Miller and Acting Attorney General Guy D. Goff.

CHANNEL SWIM OFF AGAIN.

BOULOGNE, France, Aug. 9 (AP).—Lillian Harrison, the Argentine girl swimmer, postponed tonight taking the water for her fourth attempt to swim the English Channel until tomorrow night.

It had been intended that Miss Harrison should start for Dover during the night, and the postponement was made at the last minute in obedience to a demand of her father. The swimmer and her trainer and several newspaper correspondents, photographers and moving picture men went on board the tug which was to accompany Miss Harrison early this evening. The tug was getting up steam to leave for Cape Griz-Nez when the swimmer's father arrived and called off the swim.

"Weather conditions no doubt are good, but they are not good enough," said the father. "We are not going to be pushed into the water by anybody. We are here to swim the Channel and not to provide copy for the newspapers and pictures for the movies. There have been three unsuccessful attempts to cross to Dover, and it's getting to be a joke. There's going to be one more try, win or lose, when conditions are perfect, and that is to be the end of it, so far as we're concerned."

The announcement of Mr. Harrison came as a shock to thousands of spectators gathered at the Boulogne breakwater, and there was considerable adverse criticism of the decision.

"Never again will the little Miss from Argentina enjoy such perfect weather," said Jean Sion, the French girl, who recently all but got across the turbulent stretch of water from Cape Gris-Nez to the Dover cliffs. "If anybody could swim the Channel, this is the night for the feat."

Among other persons who were aboard the tug which was to accompany Miss Harrison was Gertrude Ederle, the American girl, who plans to make her trial for Channel honors Aug. 17; Miss Veit of the American Women's Swimming Association; the Egyptian swimmer Hemly, and several officers from the Argentine warship Présidente Sarmiento.

CONSTANCE M'CALL ENGAGED TO WED

MOTHER ANNOUNCES TROTH

Mrs. Edward Everett McCall of 321 West Eighty-sixth Street and East Hampton, L. I., has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Constance McCall to H. H. Ramsay of 17 East Fifty-sixth Street, formerly of Los Angeles, Cal. The engagement was announced from East Hampton, where Miss McCall and her mother are passing the Summer.

Miss McCall is the daughter of the late Justice of the Supreme Court Everett McCall of this city, who in 1913 was Democratic nominee for Mayor. She is a granddaughter of the late John A. McCall, who for many years was President of the New York Life Insurance Company. Her uncle, Darwin P. Kingsley of 50 East Sixty-eighth Street, is now head of that corporation. Mrs. Kingsley was formerly Miss Josephine I. McCall, a daughter of the late Mr. McCall.

Mrs. William Raywood Maloney of 119 East Seventy-eighth Street, who was Miss Ella Gaynor McCall before her marriage in 1915, is a sister of Miss McCall. Mr. Maloney is an Assistant District Attorney. Miss McCall served as a bridesmaid at the wedding of her cousin, Miss Polly McCall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. McCall, to Walter Watson Stokes Jr., which took place in St. Bartholomew's Church on June 22.

Mr. Ramsay, who was graduated from Yale Sheffield in 1908, is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William E. Ramsay of Los Angeles. He is now in business in this city and makes his home at the St. Anthony Club.

The wedding will take place on Sept. 12, in East Hampton.

CONSIDERS IRAQ MANDATE.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—The statement that Great Britain will be prepared to extend her mandate over Iraq to comply with recommendations of the League of Nations Commission on the Mosul Boundary, is made by the diplomatic correspondent of the Daily Telegraph. The commission stated that inhabitants of Mosul would prefer Turkish to Iraq control unless Great Britain were prepared to extend her mandate over Iraq for twenty-two years.

The British Government does not believe the League of Nations Council will be satisfied with the commission's main recommendations, which are strongly criticized here, but even if these were accepted by the Council the British Government would be prepared to extend the period of her mandate over and co-operation with Iraq which, it is argued, would involve Britain only in the general supervision over the Iraq administration.

If the Government takes this step, however, it is certain to be violently criticized by the section of British opinion which has opposed expenditures in Mesopotamia.

TO MOVE BRITISH WAR DEAD

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—Much concern and a good deal of indignation has been caused in Great Britain by news that the French local authorities have ordered the removal of six British war cemeteries from Fauquissart, near Laventie. There are nine British cemeteries in this area and the French local authorities decided they must be reduced to three. This course, adopted, it is declared, for sanitary reasons, will involve the removal of 5,000 bodies.

Efforts were made by the British and French Governments to dissuade the Municipal Council from adhering to the decision and the matter was carried to the highest authority in France, but it was found impossible to override the local officials under the terms on which the cemetery sites were acquired.

It is possible that the precedent set by Fauquissart may be followed by other communes in which British cemeteries are situated and the incident has caused much uneasiness among relatives of dead soldiers.

LEO MARX BURIED.

Many Organizations Represented at Funeral of Auctioneer.

Leo Marx, President of the appraising and auctioneering firm of Samuel Marx, Inc., who died a few days ago at Schroon Lake, N. Y., was buried yesterday in New Mount Carmel Cemetery. The burial was preceded by funeral services held in the chapel at 140 East Fifty-seventh Street and conducted by Rabbi Goldstein of the West Eighty-eighth Street Synagogue. Then followed a Masonic ritual by Ionic Lodge, F. and A. M., which in turn was succeeded by still a third service conducted by the members of the Samuel Tichner Society.

Among the organizations represented at the funeral were the Owasco Democratic Club of Harlem, the Grand Street Boys, the United Auctioneers' Association of New York City, the National Democratic Club, the New York Lodge of Elks No. 1, the Grove Club, the Marx Fraternity, the Progressive Society of Far Rockaway and several other civic societies from the latter community, in which Mr. Marx lived.

Mr. Marx was a brother of the late Samuel Marx, founder of the firm which bears his name and for many years Democratic leader of the Thirty-first Assembly District, Harlem, and at the time of his death two years ago Congressman-elect.

UNCLE OF J. J. DAVIS DIES.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—The visit of James J. Davis, United States Secretary of Labor, to his native town of Tredegar, South Wales, today was marred by the death of his aged uncle, Walter Nicolls, to whom Mr. Davis was greatly attached. His arrival was just in time, as his uncle died this morning, at the age of 84.

Today Mr. Davis attended the service at the Siloh Baptist Church, to which he went as a boy.

The American Order of the Moose, of which Mr. Davis is a leading official, has bought the cottage in which he was born.

SAYS IRISH POVERTY IS DUE TO IDLE LAND

Savannah Merchant Declares Not Enough Crops Exist to Support People 30 Days.

McANENY BACK FROM TOUR

John N. Willys, Also on the Adriatic, Optimistic Over Export Trade in Automobiles.

There is no famine in Ireland and will be more as long as imports keep up, according to William Belford, a Savannah merchant, who returned yesterday on the White Star liner Adriatic from his third tour of that country since the end of the war. The land is not cultivated as it was years ago, and there are not enough crops to support the inhabitants for thirty days, he said.

"I have traveled from the Giants Causeway in the North to Blarney Castle in the South and have never seen conditions so bad as they are in Ireland today. The land is lying fallow and half the grazing lands have no cattle on them," Mr. Belford said. "The young men won't till the land and the priests told me they have lost control over them since the Free State has been established.

"Sometimes I came across a farm with a quarter of an acre planted with potatoes but it was not sufficient to feed the family for the year. The prices of corn, potatoes, pigs and poultry were never so good as they are today in the Irish market, but the people don't raise them to sell. The older people told me they would sooner have the old conditions back again, because when they lived under the Union Jack they received assistance from the Government, which sent its inspectors to the farming districts and advanced money to buy seed. The taxes, too, were far less, the people told me, and they added that the President and officers of the Free State were paid high salaries and took no interest in what became of their people."

No Ill Felling Over Religion.

Mr. Belford said there was no more ill feeling over the difference in the religion of the people in the North and the South of Ireland, and they were all getting on well together. "Ireland could be one of the most prosperous little countries in the world today if the young men in the South would till the ground," Mr. Belford continued. "The masses in the North are working and their section of the country is prosperous."

Another passenger on the Adriatic was George McAneny, Chairman of the New York State Transit Commission, who returned from a vacation in England, France and Switzerland, accompanied by his wife and their two sons. Mr. McAneny declined to comment upon politics or the transit situation. He said he would have something to say after he had been to his office. Immigration Commissioner Henry H. Curran met him.

Mr. McAneny said he had visited Geneva and spent a day at the headquarters of the League of Nations and was much impressed with what the Americans were doing there in spite of the fact that the United States is not a member.

Willys Optimistic Over Exports.

John N. Willys, President of the Willys-Overland Company, returned accompanied by Sir William Letts, managing director of the Willys-Overland-Crossley, Ltd., of Manchester, who has come to visit automobile plants in the Middle West.

Mr. Willys was optimistic about automobile exports and said the number of motor cars in England is increasing 25,000 per week. He regretted that American manufacturers were offering the same type of car in England and on the Continent as they were selling here, apparently oblivious of the high cost of gasoline abroad. He added that his company's exports were 75 per cent ahead of 1924. Sir William Letts was recently elected President of the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders in Great Britain.

The engineers on the Adriatic said they had a number of firemen and coal trimmers on board who had been living on the dole in Liverpool for twelve months. Six of these men, who were described as wastrels, could do about as much work as one first-class Liverpool fireman, the engineers said.

SITUATION IMPROVES IN IRISH FAMINE AREA

DUBLIN, Aug. 9 (AP).—Replying today to a suggestion that an appeal be made for funds to relieve the alleged famine conditions in Clonmel, where on Saturday it was stated a terrible state of affairs existed, the Mayor of Clonmel said the situation had improved and was fairly satisfactory, and that every effort was being made to relieve the distress growing out of the unemployment crisis.

The statement on Saturday that two children had died of starvation in Clonmel has not yet been verified. The conditions in the Tipperary town were declared today to show no exceptional gravity, but the existence of acute poverty there and in several other Irish towns, due to unemployment, was admitted.

At the Irish Labor Congress today, speakers put the maximum estimate for unemployment in Northeast Ulster at 60,000 and in the Free State at 100,000, or slightly higher proportionally than the official figures for unemployment in England.

Unemployment, in proportion to population, is highest in Belfast owing to a simultaneous slump in the two chief industries,—shipbuilding and linen.

The Labor Congress, at which representatives from all parts of Ireland were in attendance, passed a resolution calling upon the two Irish Governments to enact legislation in order to provide work under trade union conditions for all workers.

The resolution also provided for the initiation of a movement for bringing pressure on the authorities. The mover of it said if the workers were driven to physical force they could not be blamed.

Labor is equally dissatisfied with the handling of the unemployment problem both by the Dail Eireann and the Northern Government. The situation in South Ireland now is that nothing but insurance benefits are available for the unemployed, who thus are thrown upon the ordinary poor laws for relief. The labor organizations claim that the State should continue to provide means for maintaining unemployed workers.

CAPT. C. A. LYERLY DIES.

Financier and Pioneer Citizen of Chattanooga Was 78 Years Old.

Special to The New York Times.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Aug. 9.—Captain Charles A. Lyerly, aged 78, one of Chattanooga's leading financiers and pioneer citizens, died at 4 o'clock this morning at the home of his granddaughter, Mrs. Gloria Lamb Green, on Missionary Ridge. Captain Lyerly had been in failing health for about three years, but refused to retire from business, having appeared at the First National Bank, of which he was President, a week ago. He took a sudden turn for the worse Saturday, going into a state of coma from which he never revived.

All members of the immediate family in the city were at his bedside when he died.

J. P. Moormann Dies in Rome.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Aug. 9.—Word from Rome, Italy, of the death of Joseph P. Moormann, 62 years old, founder of the Moormann-Otten Company, came as a surprise yesterday to his sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Schuermann, with whom he made his home at 2,858 Montana Avenue, Westwood, and his business associates.

When Mr. Moormann left Cincinnati in March he was accompanied by Henry Dreses and Charles Krumpelbeck, but several weeks ago they decided to see another part of Europe while Mr. Moorman visited Rome. Mr. Moormann founded the company with which he was connected in 1890. He was born in Cincinnati. The body will be brought here.

James J. Mapes Dies in Paris.

James J. Mapes, son of Victor Mapes of New York, author of "The Boomerang" and other plays, died yesterday in Paris of double pneumonia, according to cablegrams received yesterday by friends. He had been traveling in Europe with his father and mother preparatory to entering Oxford in the Fall, where he was to spend a year.

He graduated from Harvard with this year's class. In college he was prominent as a golf and hockey player. During the four years of study he lived at 53 Chestnut Street, Boston, where his parents had moved from New York in order to be with him. They sailed on the France July 11.

The Rev. James F. Ahern.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 9 (AP).—The Rev. James F. Ahern, 51 years old, rector of St. Michael's Cathedral and for twenty-five years a priest of the Catholic Diocese of Springfield, died at the Mercy Hospital Saturday night.

Father Ahern was ordained at Rome in 1900. He was sent to the Springfield Diocese and made chaplain of the House of the Good Shepherd. In 1902, transferred as assistant pastor at the Holy Family Church, leaving there the next year to become Chancellor of the Cathedral and Secretary to Bishop Beaven. In 1917 he was raised to the rectorship of the Cathedral.

Robert Emmett Burke Found Dead.

Robert Emmett Burke, formerly a prosperous hat manufacturer in Orange, N. J., but more recently a farm laborer, was found dead last night on Essex Avenue, Orange. He was face downward and had only 30 cents and a pair of glasses in his pockets. An autopsy performed by Dr. William Birne, Deputy County Physician, showed that death had been due to heart disease. Burke, who was 65 years old, was well known in Orange as was the story of his financial reverses.

Isaac Tabian Dies of Injury.

PATERSON, N. J., Aug. 9 (AP).—Isaac Tabian, 40, silk manufacturer, who was struck by a Susquehanna train at Broadway Crossing last Wednesday, died tonight at the General Hospital. He suffered a fracture of the skull. Tabian, carrying an umbrella in a storm, failed to notice the approach of the train.

SONS OF ITALY HOLD RIVAL CONVENTION

JUSTICE COTILLO ASSAILED

Special to The New York Times.

SCHENECTADY, Aug. 8.—John J. Freschi, former Justice of the Court of Special Sessions of New York City, was elected Grand Master of the Order of the Sons of Italy of New York State at the convention of the order here this morning. Following his election Judge Freschi took occasion to declare that the convention has the authorization of the national lodge and that the convention held in New York which elected Representative LaGuardia Grand Master represents merely a radical group within the order.

"One hundred and eighty-four delegates, representing the vast majority of the lodges in the State," Judge Freschi said, "are attending this convention, and we have received pledges of support from other lodges all over the country and in Canada. We are loyal American citizens and not supporters of Fascismo or un-Americanisms of any sort, as has been charged by some attending the New York meeting."

After the election the following resolution, adopted yesterday, was made public:

"This legally constituted grand convention of the Order of the Sons of Italy of the State of New York, consisting of the majority of the delegates of the State of New York, in assembly convened, taking cognizance of the notices in the daily press of the reports of the meeting held in New York City, presided over by Judge Salvatore Cotillo, respecting the split which has occurred in this organization and the alleged reason therefor.

Protest Rival Meeting

"Resolves to register a public protest against the group of the members of the Sons of Italy now meeting in New York City, and purporting to exercise the power of this grand convention without right in law or in fact, who have seceded from this order and who have given out statement for publication in the journals of New York assigning an alleged reason for such secession;

"And we further resolve to denounce the attempt on the part of certain radical elements in the order with which Cotillo is allied and who are now the dominating force of the New York City meeting, and without which Cotillo could not hold power, to make it appear to the public that this convention and hundreds of delegates here representing various lodges throughout the State of New York, are not thoroughly American;

"(1). Further, we resolve that we bring to the attention of the people of this great State and country, that the Cotillo radical group headed by Giovannitti and Antonini, well known radicals, refused to salute the American flag at the recent national convention in Providence, R. I., and objected to the sending of greetings to the Chief Magistrate of this nation, for which offenses they were ejected from the national convention and subjected to charges looking to expulsion, which were withdrawn upon the prayer of Judge Cotillo, who agreed to cease his activities toward secession, which he was promoting at the instance of such radical group, and to obey all its laws in the future.

"(2). That the same radical group, with the approval of Judge Cotillo, caused the elimination of the oath and pledge of loyalty and allegiance to the Constitution of this Republic in direct violation of the general laws of the Order of the Sons of Italy and possibly of this State and nation.

Calls It a Radical Group.

"(3). That the same radical group, which has always attempted to bring about the disintegration of nations and to impair the friendly and peaceful relations now and formerly existing between the United States and the Kingdom of Italy, are now desirous of bringing about a rupture between an allied nation of the United Staes in the late war and this beloved country of ours.

"(4). That such group has sent to the people of Italy instead of its recognized governmental authorities a greeting, while on the other hand they pretend to condemn the politics of that country and people.

"(5). We condemn most emphatically the course of conduct on the part of Supreme Court Justice Cotillo and the administration of the order in associating his work in this order with the radical group which seeks to undermine our laws and government, and more especially because we firmly believe that it is the duty of a Justice of the Supreme Court of the State not only to uphold the Constitution of this country, but also by his example to show respect for our institutions and to inspire love for our American traditions.

"Now, therefore, let it be recorded also that we, having opened this grand State convention with the singing of the National Anthem, the saluting of the flag of America and having pledged once more our allegiance to and devotion for the people and institutions for which it stands, we denounce the vile and unjustified attack on our Americanism as manifested by those acts of ours; and we challenge the delegates headed by Justice Cotillo and his fellow officers of the New York meeting to perform the same acts of loyalty and allegiance to the American Republic."

FIVE BITTEN BY SMALL DOG.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J., Aug. 9.—A small poodle bit five persons here today. The dog, whose owner could not be found, was shot by policemen. Its head will be send to the Willard Parker Hospital laboratories in New York today to be examined for rabies.

Joseph Pritchard, 30 years old, of 74 Roland Avenue, was bitten first and then in quick succession the dog attacked and bit Anthony Moschello of 150 Roland Avenue, Joseph Preston, 7 years old, of 238 Waverly Street; Katherine Kranz, 2 years old, of 215 Academy Street, and Allen Andrews, 2 years old, of 72 Roland Avenue.

After a chase of several blocks by motorcycle policemen the dog was cornered and shot. Health Officer Joseph Preston, uncle of one of the children who was bitten, ordered that all those attacked receive the Pasteur treatment and started a search for dogs that might have been bitten by the poodle.

Charged With Snatching Purse.

The alleged theft of a purse containing ten cents, a thimble, and a paper of needles led to the arrest yesterday of Morris Kronenfeld, a clothing worker, of 2,129 Union Street, Brooklyn. He was held in $1,000 bail by Magistrate Jean Norris in Jefferson Market Court, for examination next Thursday, on a charge of petty larceny. A detective said he saw Kronenfeld take the purse from a handbag carried by Mary Hertz, 19, of 319 East Houston Street, as she started to board a surface car at Greenwich Avenue and Christopher Street Saturday.

WARNS NEGRO LABOR ON 'RED' CONGRESS

CHARGES REBELLION TALK

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, in warning negro members of trade unions tonight not to attend the American Negro Labor Congress called by the Communists to meet in Chicago on Oct. 25, characterized Communism in America as "comparable to the boll weevil in the cotton fields."

"Although there can not be more than a few hundred Communists in the country," said Mr. Green, "they give an impression, because of their noise-making propaganda, that there are millions."

Samuel Gompers, who preceded Mr. Green as President of the Federation, was one of the bitterest foes of the Communist movement and repeatedly warned the workers of the country against giving sympathetic support to the Communists. The outspoken manner in which Mr. Green endorsed the policy of Mr. Gompers attracted much interest.

Mr. Green told the negro workers that the Communists were attempting to stir up race hatred by promising them that all social, political and economic discrimination would be ended by the establishment of a Soviet Republic in America.

Cites Phrases Stirring Race Feeling.

In his statement Mr. Green said:

"During the past few days, I have received a number of letters and telegrams asking if the American Federation of Labor approves of the American Negro Labor Congress called by the Workers' (Communist) Party to meet in Chicago Oct. 25.

"The American Federation of Labor has not and will not approve of such a congress. It will not be held to benefit the negro but to instill into the lives of that race the most pernicious doctrine—race hatred.

"Glittering phrases are used to stir the colored men, one of them being: 'Negroes did not come into the world with saddles on their backs nor the whites with spurs on their heels.'

"The negroes are led to believe that the dark races of the world are in rebellion against the whites and that all they need to do is to form an American Labor Congress and 'all social, political and economic discrimination' will be wiped out.

"The originators of the Congress have headquarters in Chicago. They conduct a number of Communist organizations with interlocking directories that work under the direction of Moscow.

Sees Deceit in Union Appeal.

"Communism in America is comparable to the boll-weevil in the cotton fields. Both are importations and equally injurious.

"While the convention to be held is called the American Negro Labor Congress, behind the purpose of its originators is to mislead the colored men into believing that all their grievances will be remedied by overturning the Government of the United States and establishing a soviet republic—otherwise, the dictatorship of the proletariat. Race hatred will be encouraged to bring about this end.

"A number of unions composed of colored men have been deceived into sending delegates. They have been led to believe they will attend a convention of union negroes.

"The fact is that the convention was called by men who are not members of trade unions or if they are they do not attend the unions of which they are members. The organized labor movement is expelling Communists as rapidly as they are found out.

"Although there can not be more than a few hundred Communists in the country, they give an impression, because of their noise-making propaganda, that there are millions.

"I wish to warn all negro members of trade unions that they are being led into a trap that will eventually be their undoing."

FOREST FIRE TRAPS TWO IN MINE TUNNEL

Men Working 1,000 Feet Underground Near Wallace Narrowly Escape Suffocation.

WALLACE, Idaho, Aug. 9 (AP).—Vic Peller and Frank Carlson, both of Wallace, narrowly escaped death by suffocation when a forest blaze at Lake Gulch, two miles west of here, set fire to a portal of the mine tunnel in which they were working yesterday. The heat was so intense that it was more than an hour before fire fighters were able to enter the mine to rescue the men, who were working a thousand feet under ground.

Fire, which threatened the two small towns of Taft and Saltz, Mont., Friday, went beyond the control of nearly 250 fire fighters last night and great danger to the towns still exists. The Chicago Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad has 200 men guarding its power lines near Taft.

Forty men asleep in a fire fighting camp at the head of Pine Creek were forced to flee when the flames destroyed the camp. Fires in the North Fork country were being held on the outskirts of a big white pine belt, reports indicated.

AID WOMAN HELD AS SLAYER

Cape May Women Raising Fund to Defend Mrs. Mary Mattia.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 9.—Women's organizations in Cape May County are making strenuous efforts in behalf of Mrs. Mary Mattia, 22 years old, who is in jail at Sea Isle City with her 3 months old daughter awaiting trial next month on charges of murdering her husband's stepfather, Noel Pappalardo, former Justice of the Peace of Sea Isle City, on July 3.

Mrs. Mattia asserts Pappalardo accused her of misconduct and then tried to attack her. She says she shot him to defend herself. A committee has been formed to raise money for her counsel fee, and benefit dances and other affairs are planned.

Mrs. Mattia is not confined in a cell, but has a large room on the top floor of the jail. Her husband calls on her frequently.

Niagara River Swim Barred.

Special to The New York Times.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Aug. 9.—Niagara's Sunday crowd was disappointed today that René Jacquiers did not swim the Niagara River below the falls. The authorities of the State Reservation on the New York side and of Victoria Park on the Canadian side would not allow him to enter the river from their property as they are opposed to all stunts at Niagara.

IN THE WOMEN'S FASHION SALONS

is used for the smartest of afternoon frocks

$55

Four new frocks that have all the charm and feeling of the Fall mode have just arrived.

One frock stresses all its interest in the back with a circular cape collar and circular panels on the skirt. Another simulates the two-piece mode. Another is a coat frock. And the fourth model is exquisite in its graceful circular fullness at the sides. All have long, close-fitting sleeves and delightful little details.

Sizes 36 to 44. Second Floor, Old Building

Philippine Nightgowns and Envelope Chemises

Remarkable at $1.95

"Only the trained eye can tell the difference between them and French lingerie," we've often been told by women who buy them.

So we took this importer's clearaway in order to give admirers of Philippine handiwork the benefit of this unusual price.

Exquisite in detail of embroidered sprays, punch-work motifs and seams run by deft brown hands. The nightgowns have round or square necks, and are sleeved or sleeveless. They are cut unusually full. The envelope chemises are both in the built-up or strap styles, and a French inverted pleat in the back provides comfortable width. The Lingerie Shop, Third Floor, Old Building.

IN THE WOMEN'S AND MISSES' SPORTS SHOP

The Two-piece Frock is expressed in eight charming versions in Balbriggan

at $10 to $47.50

Every fashion cable that came to the Wanamaker Salons last week from the couturiers spoke with enthusiasm of the two-piece mode. The chic and comfort of the two-piece frocks are enjoyed by the smart women of both continents who wear it from early morning to the informal tea hour.

Renee's two-piece frock with the inimitable chic of her rows of buttons; Molyneux's interpretation of this mode with an adorable pleated skirt. Talbot's frock especially designed for the active sports woman; and variations of the two-piece frock as it was introduced to the world by Chanel. These are all here in sizes 14 to 18—36 to 40. First Floor, Old Building

Making $200,000 of Oriental Rugs at a Fourth and More Reduction

We have never done this before. But the tremendous response to the August Furniture Sale shows that there is a great demand for home things at this time. So, to render a still greater service, we include our entire stock of Oriental rugs in this August Sale.

It is generally known that the Wanamaker collection of Oriental rugs is one of the few great stocks in America. Last year we sent three of our experts into the markets of the East. Only last week our New York chief returned from his foreign buying trip of this year.

We buy always in the lowest market.

To the Wanamaker August Furniture Sale

So reports the Director of the Budget Service. People in New York and vicinity bring in their blue prints and floor plans. They learn what furniture will fit their homes and meet their individual needs. Then they buy it at 10 to 50 per cent. saving. And spread their payments over the months if their budget, which we help to arrange, is sound. No wonder the sale is exceeding in volume as well as in character and service any that has gone before. Every part of the sale—bedroom, dining-room, living-room, small furniture, Belmaison reproduction furniture, bedding—shows large increases in volume.

RUSSO-BRITISH WAR PREDICTED BY VALYI

EAST DEMANDING EQUALITY

Distrusts West Selling Whisky and Opium and Failing to Aid In Economic Problems.

HENCE THE TREND TO REDS

British Empire Might Survive by Following Our Method With China, He Asserts.

Special to The New York Times.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 9.—Felix Valyi of Paris, editor of the Revue Internationale Politique, who is attending the Institute of Politics, predicted in an interview today that war between England and Russia was inevitable within the next generation unless England abandoned her whisky and opium trade in the Orient and turned to cultivating spiritual relations with Asia.

Such a war, he said, might mean the downfall of the British Empire. He asserted that the East distrusted the League of Nations as a mere instrument of the European powers, and that it was drifting towards Bolshevism because of the offer of social equality made by Soviet Russia to Oriental nations.

"The tremendous upheaval in the East from Morocco to Mongolia, which constitutes one immense movement directed by the same spirit of nationalism, cannot be treated by the usual methods of European Colonial powers," he said.

"The European races, which were seen at their worst during the great war, lost their prestige in the East; there is no chance for them to solve by brute force the economic and social problems which confront them in Western Asia and North Africa. Governments and empires are shaken to their foundations, and the West stands perplexed in face of these prodigious phenomena of universal dissolution and social and economic disintegration.

"The problem is of great moral significance. As long as Europe refuses to grant to Asia and to the Moslem world the legitimate rights of man on the basis of moral equality, there is no hope to fight Bolshevism in the East with any chance of success. The policy of plunder and partition applied on the Asiatic continent and in North Africa by all European powers during the nineteenth century resulted in a state of things which hinders the free evolution of mankind.

"The question today is whether there still remains a sufficient number of intelligent Europeans capable of realizing that Islam and Asia are demanding insistently to be allowed on equal terms to join the movement of modern ideas, and that it behooves us to promote this reintegration of Oriental peoples into the family of nations by cooperating with them intellectually, scientifically and economically. By admitting Japan to the League of Nations we have but taken the first step in a development which must inevitably lead to a revision of all our views concerning the value of non-Christian civilization.

Europe Respects Angora's Power.

"The movements in Asia and in North Africa are fundamentally movements for education and progress, in spite of all mistakes of their inexperienced leaders. In the case of Turkey, as well as in the case of China and India, we are not concerned primarily with anti-European fanatics or aggressive Pan-Islamism or Pan-Orientalism, but with a spiritual movement based upon a national sentiment bred under the influence of Western teaching. The profound sense of the movement, which produced Mustapha Kemal in the Moslem world and Gandhi in India, has not yet been understood by Europe.

"The conqueror of Angora, unlike the Hindu sage, is far from being spurned by Europe. In spite of the fact that their aims are the same and that they differ only in the methods they adopt, Gandhi, albeit he is opposed to violent methods, was cast into prison for a few articles, while Mustapha Kemal, owing to the fact that he had recourse to the very strategical and technical methods which Gandhi despises, dictated his terms like a master. Nevertheless, their desires for national and human dignity appear to me identical.

"The one who fought Europe with European weapons was right in the eyes of Europe; while Gandhi, who loyally helped England through the war and enabled her to mobilize Indian troops against Turkey in 1915, was sent to prison like a common felon. The system, which, thanks to a strange irony of history, led to this result, proves that there is something rotten in the relations of Asia and Europe.

A Clash of Moral Viewpoints.

"Religious and social prejudices poison the air between the Orient and the Occident. The habit so common to the average Englishman of regarding a man of the race of Buddha or Confucius, however cultivated he may be, as unworthy of a white man, although the latter may be a booby, has done more harm than all the economic methods by means of which Europe has placed its foot upon the neck of Oriental peoples.

"The moral problem which dominates the relations of the white race with Asia is at the root of all Eastern questions. The incapacity of the average European, especially of the average Englishman, to understand the fundamental problem of East and West is indeed a strange tragedy. In 1918 the victories of the great colonial powers left the West everywhere unchallengeable in arms and bankrupt in ideas. To rejuvenate our moral relations with the Orient we should change our ideas for new ones, instead of combating with brute force the powerful movement of ideas which is shaking the continent of Asia and the Moslem world.

"The real issue at stake is whether the best minds of the Orient will cooperate with the best minds of the Occident to save human civilization or whether they will help Russian Bolshevism to destroy Europe.

"The problem of the psychological transformation of the Eastern soul dominates all international affairs; I see no sign that British or French statesmanship understands it. And it is evident that Soviet Russia, having offered the principle of social equality to all Oriental nations, will profit by the mistakes of the colonial powers.

"The only means to react efficiently against Bolshevism in Asia is to start a new policy of cooperation on the line advocated by the United States toward China. If the British Empire would agree to follow the example of the United States, not only in China but with special regard to all Moslem nations who want their independence, it might survive the tremendous world crisis which endangers British supremacy in the East.

"Instead of introducing opium and whisky in Asia, England should give more attention to the spiritual aspect of her relations with the Eastern world. Otherwise, in the inevitable war which is coming between England and Russia within the next generation, for their conflicting ideals of economic and social life cannot be solved by peaceful means, the British Empire might succumb to the hatred of Asia.

"The League of Nations itself is accused in the whole Eastern world of being merely an instrument of her most powerful European members; no Oriental nation has any confidence in its impartiality when fundamental questions of world equilibrium arise between the colonial powers and the rest of the world."

Sir Robert Borden to Speak.

Dr. Harry A. Garfield, President of Williams College and Chairman of the Institute, announced today that Sir Robert Borden, former Premier of Canada, would address the open conference on "The British Commonwealth of Nations," presided over by Lionel Curtis on Aug. 17.

Sir Robert Borden has long been prominent in Canadian affairs. In 1901 he was elected leader of the Conservative Party in the Canadian House of Commons. He was Premier from 1911 to 1920. In 1915 he was summoned to attend a meeting of the British Cabinet, being the first overseas Minister to receive such a request.

Sir Robert was the Canadian representative in the Imperial War Cabinet and the Imperial War Conference in 1917 and 1918. He headed the Canadian delegation to the Paris Peace Conference in 1919. Since 1924 he has been Chancellor of Queen's University, Kingston, Ontario.

Turkey to Issue New Stamps Designed by Turkish Artists

ANGORA, Aug. 9 (AP).—Work will soon be begun on the new Republican postage stamps of Turkey, which an English firm is to manufacture. It is planned to make the new stamps an artistic contribution to philately. The designs will show a portrait of the present President of the Republic, Ghazy Kemal Pasha; a view of the valley of Kizil Irmak and pictures of the old Fortress of Angora, the famous white wolf of Turkey and different historic events of the country.

The new issue of stamps will be solely designed by Turkish artists. Foreign artists and designers are strictly excluded from the competition.

GENEVA INSTITUTE BEGINS SECOND SEASON

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Aug. 9.—The Institute of International Relations, which was founded by Americans and Britishers to furnish students of international politics a place and an opportunity to come together in Europe to discuss current international problems, opened its second season here today with a reception at the Secretariat of the League of Nations by Sir Eric Drummond. The Institute this year is attended by 300 students, half Americans and half Britishers. Among the Americans is a party of seventy-five professors and ministers organized by Sherwood Eddy of New York.

The course of the Institute, which is to last one week, was formally opened at 8 P. M., but this afternoon all the students were entertained by Mrs. Stanley McCormick of Chicago at her home, the Chateau Prangin on Lake Leman. The first lecture was delivered this evening at the League Secretariat by Frederick Whelan of the League of Nations Union of England Society, who spoke on "Recent Progress in the Organization of a World Society."

This year's program, according to Dr. Manley O. Hudson of Harvard, who is a member of the committee and one of the principal organizers of the Institute, is superior to that of last year and sets a standard which the Institute will make every effort to maintain in future years.

Among the American lecturers are Dr. Hudson, Professor James Shotwell, Huntington Gilchrist of the Mandate Section of the League; Theodore Marburg, former United States Minister to Belgium; Dr. J. B. Boudreau, of the Health Section of the League; Professor Parker Thomas Moon, Columbia University, and Professor Herbert Feis, University of Cincinnati.

On the American Committee of the Institute are Michael Francis Doyle of Philadelphia, Charles Bauer of New York, Mrs. W. S. Rice of Albany, Paige Monteagle of San Francisco, Mrs. Stanley McCormick of Chicago, and Dr. Hudson. The committee has established an office in Geneva under the direction of Thomas Chamberlain, a New York attorney and author of "Why We Fought." Eugene Montgomery will show American visitors to Geneva about the Secretariat of the League and the International Labor Bureau and explain to them the work of both institutions. This office, which is receiving an average of 125 American visitors a day, will function until Oct. 1.

PYROMANIAC HUNTED FOR TENEMENT FIRES

Four fires within four hours in the old five-story brick tenement house at 301 West 127th Street yesterday afternoon put the police and officials of the Fire Marshal's office on the hunt for a pyromaniac. Detectives investigating the fires said they were unmistakably incendiary. The outbreaks yesterday followed a small blaze, quickly extinguished, in a hallway Saturday afternoon.

The first three fires yesterday were in newspapers in hallways, and were extinguished with little damage by tenants and the janitor. The last blaze, at 5:30 P. M., was among newspapers in the airshaft in the centre of the building, and necessitated a fire alarm. Battalion Chief Horrigan arrived with the apparatus and after the flames were extinguished notified the police.

The first floor of the building is occupied by a store. Twelve families, most of them having several children, occupy the upper floors. The police said the building was owned by Oscar Dyke of 220 West Forty-second Street.

REPORT BIG OFFER FOR OCEAN FRONT

Owners of Long Beach Property Say They Declined $50,000,000 for Five-Mile Strip.

ANNOUNCE BUILDING PLANS

Special to The New York Times.

LONG BEACH, L. I., Aug. 9.—With real estate prices soaring in the boom here, it was announced today through the secretary of ex-Mayor William H. Reynolds that Mr. Reynolds and his two partners, Charles B. Shaffer, oil operator of Chicago, and Elmer E. Smathers, local dealer, had refused an offer of $50,000,000 from a group of capitalists for the entire area they own east of the Lido golf course. The property takes in five miles of ocean front.

Mr. Shaffer came here to confer with his partners on the offer, and the refusal, it was reported, was decided on after a meeting today. The identity of the members of the group making the offer was not revealed, but it was said that August Heckscher was one of them.

The owners of the property announced that under no conditions will they sell any land east of the golf course for several years. They said they had already disposed of a large part of their holdings within the city limits, and that their present plans include the erection of a four-story California mission hotel just west of the Lido Country Club, near the city line, at a cost of $1,500,000, and the extension of the boardwalk to that point. It was said that contracts had been let for the erection of the hotel and that the work of extending the boardwalk would begin tomorrow.

According to their announcement, Mr. Reynolds and his associates, in retaining the property east of the golf course, have in mind a residential development plan which they intend to carry out themselves.

The reported offer of $50,000,000 for their ocean front property was considered high by some dealers here, who pointed out that the land consists for the most part of sand dunes and long waste stretches. Others said that the several development plans here would bring vast changes and result in greatly increased values.

Few Large Deals Reported.

Another project resulting from the land boom was announced today. The syndicate which bought 40 by 250 feet on the boardwalk early in the week said it would erect large baths on the site at a cost of $1,000,000. The plans include swimming pools, a roof garden, Turkish and Russian baths and other features.

There was a general slacking up in trading today among the majority of dealers on Park Street and Park Place. Prices, however, remained unchanged. Few large sales were reported.

The unlicensed brokers who were present during the first of last week when street trading was prevalent were not in evidence. Mayor Dalton's warning to them at a meeting of real estate men at the City Hall on Friday, and the action of the police yesterday in driving twenty-one of them out of town, proved effective. The police continue to exercise supervision to see that the Mayor's orders are obeyed.

Trading at Island Park, adjoining here, was active today. William Austin Jr., real estate dealer there, reported deals involving $1,500,000 for the day. Another deal recorded there was the sale of the Island Park Casino for $60,000. This was reported to have been resold to N. J. Schimmer of New York for $110,000. Charles Levine, New York operator, reported purchasing the entire block bounded by York Avenue and Long Beach Bay, for $50,000. Associated Enterprises, Inc., of Long Beach, bought bungalow plots on Nassau Boulevard and Lorraine Road for $35,000.

Many Bungalow Lots Sold.

Eight other bungalow plots, Mr. Austin said, had been bought at $1,000 each and sold later for a total of $50,000. Nine lots on the Long Beach Road, bought at $750, each, were sold for $27,000, he said. Sam Rapport of the Bronx was reported to have bought several plots for apartment houses for $80,000.

The Everlee Corporation of Richmond Hill, it is said, purchased a block on Nassau Boulevard and Marie Boulevard for $38,000.

Lynbrook real estate men reported active trading among local residents. Sales were conducted for the most part on the "curb." Sunday brought an unusually large crowd, resulting in traffic congestion and delays.

The real estate boom at the Rockaways continued yesterday in the process of simmering down to an ordinary active real estate market. It was a comparatively quiet day, with the total turnover by all the brokers estimated at a trifle under $2,000,000. The day's activities were in contrast to those of a week ago, when feverish trading and speculation among large street crowds first brought the attention of the general public to the boom.

The police continued their practice of preventing street bargaining by keeping the crowds moving. They also were on the watch for any person attempting to do business without a license.

Few large transactions were reported. Mann & Schnall announced that their total business for the day amounted to $200,000, while at the real estate office of Assemblyman William F. Brunner it was said that deals involving $100,000 had been made.

Isaac Zarret of Edgemere, who recently took over the O'Donahue Park site on the ocean front, announced that the plans for a syndicate which was arranging for the purchase of a large part of the property had been completed. Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield is a member of the syndicate. Mr. Zarret said it was planned to build five high-class apartment houses and sell the remaining property for private dwellings. The sale agreements, he said, would call for the construction of brick houses only.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Aug. 9.—The land boom in Nassau County is being reflected in the activities of the Corporation Bureau of the Secretary of State's office, which is issuing many charters for real estate corporations. During July, according to figures compiled for Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, Secretary of State, thirty-three such corporations were formed to do business in Nassau County.

ROTHAFEL'S SON WINS BET.

Boy Staked $10 That He Could Find Work—He Got the Job.

S. L. Rothafel, former director of the Capitol Theatre, lost a wager of $10 last week to his son Arthur, 16 years old, who staked that amount on his ability to get a job. Mr. Rothafel said yesterday that the boy wished to go to work, but because of his inexperience and the approaching end of the Summer vacation, when he goes back to school, his father thought it unlikely that Arthur could find employment. The bet was made.

Arthur found in the want columns of THE NEW YORK TIMES the advertisement of the Best Employment Agency, 103 Park Avenue, and through it got a job as an office boy with the Ducan Oil Company, 247 Park Avenue.

Thief Points Finger to Resemble Pistol; Patrolman Hits It With Bullet in the Gloom

How a burglar suspect received a patrolman's bullet in his right index finger when he tried to make it resemble a pistol was revealed in Jefferson Market Court yesterday morning when Joseph Howard, 19 years old, of 456 West Thirty-first Street was arraigned before Magistrate Jean Norris charged with the burglary earlier in the day of the drug store at 461 Eighth Avenue. He was held in $10,000 for examination tomorrow after the Magistrate had inspected his record, showing five previous arrests in eight years.

Patrolman George Treubert of the West Thirtieth Street Station said he was walking in Eighth Avenue, near Thirty-fourth Street, shortly before daybreak, when he heard a crash of glass. He went to the drug store at 461 Eighth Avenue and saw a man prowling in the semi-darkness inside. Treubert forced his way into the store. The man in the rear of the store pointed his finger at him, Treubert said, and commanded him to hold up his hands. Treubert fired one shot, the bullet hitting the index finger a glancing blow. Other patrolmen arrived and the man was arrested. Treubert said the prisoner tried to conceal $12 taken from the cash register.

SEEKS COLLEGE AID IN POLICE ACADEMY

PRAISE FOR PIONEER WORK

An educational committee composed of professors from New York City collegiate institutions was proposed yesterday by W. H. Edwards, President of the Police Academy, as a valuable aid to the training of policemen. Mr. Edwards made the suggestion in his first report to Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright.

"I have endeavored," said President Edwards, "to familiarize myself thoroughly with the work which is now being done, both mental and physical, and to arrange for constructive assistance in its extension and betterment. My observations have greatly impressed me with the advisability of utilizing every avenue of expert experience possible in all phases of our training, and I have been highly delighted with the cooperative spirit being evidenced on all sides.

"Plans are well under way for Fall and Winter aid of a consequential character, the detail of which will be treated in later reports. What is now being accomplished by those entrusted with the academy's administration is most gratifying, and all seem imbued with the spirit of doing the utmost to attain the maximum in results.

"Realizing the importance of our mental training, I put myself in touch with that most excellent friend of the academy, Dean Robinson of the College of the City of New York, who is always ready to give a helping hand. It is hoped that we may be able to have the assistance of an educational committee later on composed of representatives from City College, Teachers College of Columbia University, Fordham University and New York University."

Mr. Edwards enclosed a communication from Dr. Elbert K. Fretwell, Associate Professor of Education at Teachers College. Dr. Fretwell praised the instructors at the academy.

"What we have been doing here in our city," he added, "and all of the United States for that matter, prior to the establishment of the Police Academy, is to me almost unthinkable. We have been selecting policemen, authorizing them to do all manner of things—protect our lives and property, arrest us, shoot us if necessary, and at the same time prior to the establishment of this academy we have not been, as I see it, providing any adequate opportunity for instructing the policeman before he begins his job. If we have some 13,000 policemen in our city and need 1,200 new ones each year in our growing scheme of things, this pioneer attempt at training must be carried out.

"All of us need to wake up to the fact that here is a monumental piece of pioneer work. The three months' training of recruits is not long enough; it ought to be at least a year, but three months is a vast improvement over anything that I know of that has ever been done hitherto in America. The old apprentice system has its strong points. But this training going on in the academy is a tremendous stride forward."

TO "PROVE" JOSHUA'S FEAT.

Evangelist Says He Will Show That Sun Was Actually Stopped.

Addressing a thousand persons in the Tent Evangel, Ninety-fifth Street and West End Avenue, yesterday afternoon, the Rev. J. Frank Norris, Texas evangelist, said he planned to preach a sermon in the near future in which he would prove scientifically that Joshua actually stopped the sun in its course. He declared he would employ the teachings of a professor at Columbia University to prove the biblical account of that miracle literally true.

The Rev. Mr. Norris's sermon yesterday was the first one in his revival campaign in this city at the Tent Evangel. The whole Bible, he maintained, is a history of revivals, and Christianity since Pentecost has been a revival.

"We are now at the beginning of the world's greatest revival," he said. "The last ten years have been a survival. The Christian religion has survived the greatest attack of all times—the World War. It has survived the greatest upheavals in the industrial world, revolutions in government and the onslaughts of infidelity within. What the Reformation was to the sixteenth century, what the Puritan movement was to the seventeenth century, the Wesley movement to the eighteenth century and the Oxford missionary movements to the nineteenth century, the Fundamentalist movement is to the twentieth century. The whole world is hungering for a revival."

WIFE HELD AS POISONER.

Denies Husband's Story That She Gave Him Drink After Quarrel.

Samuel Grossman, a poultryman, of 176 Monroe Street, was taken to Gouverneur Hospital yesterday suffering from poisoning and his wife, Sophia, was held in the Clinton Street Police Station charged with felonious assault.

Grossman told the police that following a quarrel with his wife she had given him a drink that he supposed was whisky and that after drinking it he collapsed. His wife denied her husband's story and declared that Grossman had deliberately taken a drink containing poison after he had quarreled with her concerning another woman. She also charged that her husband had bitten her.

Italians Fly for Moscow Aug. 20.

TURIN, Italy, Aug. 9 (AP).—The departure of the squadron of Italian airplanes which will fly to Moscow and return has been set for Aug. 20. The itinerary covers a distance of nearly 7,000 miles and provides for stops in the capitals of six countries. The proposed routes will take the planes from Turin, over Udinzn-Zagreb, Belgrade, Bucharest, Odessa, Kharkov, Orel and Moscow, and return by way of Smolensk, Minsk, Kiev, Odessa, Constantinople, Sofia and possibly Budapest or Vienna, thence to Italy.

DROWNING FLIER RESCUED

Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright made public yesterday recent letters from citizens describing courageous performances of New York policemen.

"One of the nerviest things I ever saw," wrote Howard H. Logue, Vice President of the United States Trucking Corporation, was the action of Detective Stephen Devine of the Fifth Precinct, who was seated behind one of the cashiers of the corporation when armed thieves entered the office and attempted a hold-up. One bandit, pretending to be a customer, beat the detective to the draw, but instead of throwing up his hands, Devine drew his pistol under fire, drove the thieves off and wounded one. Eleven bullets had roughly outlined Devine's figure against the office wall behind him and one from the side had cut his necktie.

Mrs. Annie L. Fitch, widow of former Magistrate Fitch, and Robert J. Gray, Superintendent of the Corn Exchange Safe Deposit Company, both wrote to commend Policeman Michael Casey of Traffic A for hurling himself at the bridle of a runaway horse on Seventh Avenue, in front of the Pennsylvania Terminal.

Two Save Fliers From Water.

Major Gen. Mason M. Patrick, Chief of the Air Service, is the author of a letter of praise for Policemen Frank H. Hahn and Joseph McDonald of the Traffic Division for saving the life of Sergeant Edward J. Tuite of the Air Service. In making a parachute landing, Tuite was blown seaward by an unexpectedly high wind. With his heavy parachute harness he came down in deep water several hundred feet off the Staten Island shore. The two policemen promptly dived in, swam to the struggling flier and brought him safely to shore.

Letters of citizens praised Edward L. O'Neill of the Forty-third Precinct for his persistent chase of a gang of burglars which ended in the capture of one of them; Joseph Cohen of the Sixteenth Precinct for his dash in overpowering a drug-crazed and murderous bandit, and John R. Lloyd for stopping a runaway team.

Frank R. Siekmann of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station, who risked his life two years ago to rescue a man and woman from a burning building at 179th Street and Broadway, was commended again for pluck and stubbornness. Knocked over by a runaway team of horses, Siekmann tackled them three times and finally brought them to a stop, saving the lives of two children.

A letter of a new and unusual nature was one from a lawyer for two prisoners praising the policeman who arrested them. The lawyer was George Gordon Battle. The policeman was E. C. Hart of the Twelfth Precinct. Mr. Battle professed admiration for the courage displayed by the policeman in arresting his two desperate young clients and also "for calmness and good judgment displayed throughout the whole case."

Praises Aid of New York.

"Thomas Quigley, Chief of Police of Zelienople, Pa., thanks Detectives Vandergrift and Quinn of the Second Precinct for the marked detective ability displayed in arresting J. B. Tophan, a fugitive from Zelienople. 'I was treated better and received better service in New York than I have ever had in any other city,' says Chief Quigley.

"Patrick J. Hurley, Chief Inspector of Police, Cambridge, Mass., thanks the department for the splendid cooperation given him by Detectives Bishop and Singer of the Automobile Bureau, saying: 'With their assistance we have placed two clever automobile thieves in jail and have recovered to date four 1925 Hudson coaches, valued, approximately, at $5,600.'

"Abraham Bellinson of A. & L. Bellinson, 144 and 146 West Thirty-seventh Street, tells, as he says, 'of one of the acts of the police which show citizens that the police are always ready to protect them.' Patrolman Joseph M. Burke of Traffic A, on his day off on a Sunday afternoon, was in a barber's shop in Sixth Avenue near Forty-ninth Street when he heard a shot that had been fired by a Holmes patrolman at a man who had leaped from Mr. Bellinson's gown shop, at 49 West Forty-ninth Street. Burke ran out, and, seeing a hatless man running ahead of him, gave chase. As the man's coat showed a weapon of some kind bulging from his pocket, Burke drew his revolver and ordered him to halt, but had to overtake him, knock him down and overpower him. The man was held in $10,000 for burglary and possession of burglar's tools."

AIR MAIL BANDITS AT LARGE.

No Trace Found of San Francisco Robbers—Loss Being Checked.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 9 (AP).—Search continued today for the six armed men who last night held up a United States mail truck, seized eight pouches of air mail and escaped in an automobile through the heavy traffic of Market Street.

Early today six men and two women suspected of connection with the robbery were arrested but were released after questioning by postal inspectors.

The value of the loot, taken while hundreds of spectators looked on, will not be learned until a check is made in the East of the contents of the pouches. It is believed that the value was exceptionally high.

BACKS ENRIGHT PLEA FOR MORE POLICE

ALSO FOR SWIFT PENALTIES

London's Force 75% Greater Numerically Than New York's, Statement Sets Forth.

Greater police protection and a more severe administration of justice are needed to reduce crime in this city, according to a statement issued yesterday by the Fifth Avenue Association, which announced that Michael Friedsam, its President, would call a meeting early in the Fall to discuss and recommend crime prevention measures.

"It is our belief that this city, underpoliced as it is at the present time, is an open invitation to criminal activity," said Vice President and General Manager William J. Pedrick. Laws against firearms and other so-called restrictive measures restrain none but the honest citizen. Possession of firearms is a crime in this city today, but it does not keep criminals from carrying them.

"Other measures being considered may also help, but there is no dodging the fact that the two best deterrents against criminality, or certainty of detection, are swiftness and severity of justice. The second of these is largely a matter of public sentiment, but the first demands action and it is to that end that we are directing our present efforts.

"The figures disclosed in the Bronx Grand Jury investigation are startling to many of our citizens, but they merely reflect the present inadequate strength of the Police Department. After deducting from the total police force those who are needed for traffic, harbor duty and other assignments there are only 4,794 patrolmen available for straight police duty in the five boroughs. These are divided into three tours of 1,598 men, who cover 3,967 miles of paved streets, giving each man approximately two and one-half miles or five miles of property frontage for which he is accountable. Protection of life and property under such conditions is an absolute impossibility.

"There is no mystery about the fact that homicide indictments in New York City jumped from 67 in 1913 to 112 in 1923, nor is there anything inexplicable in the fact that in Greater London there is an average of but 27 per year. In this city we have a population (including transients) nearly the same as that of London, but a police problem that is far more difficult. We have nearly 4,000 miles of paved streets; they have but little more than 2,000 to cover. London's foreign born population is only 4 per cent. of the total, ours is 36 per cent. Their traffic problem does not begin to compare with ours, and requires only a fraction of the number of police.

"They do not have a problem of harbor patrol that is comparable to ours, nor do they have to contend with such problems as prohibition enforcement and others, that face the New York Police Department. With all of these differences in favor of London's Police Department, and with a correspondingly larger number of patrolmen available for police duty, their force is 75 per cent. greater in numerical strength; they have nearly 24,000 men, New York has but 14,000.

"Give New York City the same ratio of police protection, and a more severe administration of justice and we believe that the local crime problem will be lifted a long way toward solution. Under present conditions the city is underpoliced. Commissioner Enright has said so himself, and the civic and commercial organizations of the entire city are demanding the protection of life and property to which the citizens are entitled. For that reason we are glad that the Police Commissioner is supporting our request.

"If he will make a firm demand for 2,000 more men in his budget allotment, backed by the public, the civic organizations and the press, we do not feel that the Board of Estimate will refuse. An addition of 2,000 men will not solve all our troubles—at least 1,000 are needed at once in traffic, and 3,000 or 4,000 more could be absorbed in regular patrol duty—but an increase of 2,000 now, added to the 1,000 granted last year, will go a long way toward relieving the present intolerable conditions."

3 HELD AS SAFE-CRACKERS.

Policemen Surprise Men at Work in Store—All Have Records.

Three men were surprised yesterday afternoon attempting to crack a safe in a Woolworth store at 2,230 Third Avenue. They were captured and locked up charged with breaking and entering. The men gave their names as Leo Stapleton, 21 years old, a chauffeur, of 47 Morton Street; Edward Gavagan, 22, a teamster, of 69 King Street, and John Griffin, 22, a laborer, of 80 Charles Street. According to the police, they all have records and have been discharged from either Blackwell's Island or Sing Sing within the last six weeks.

Detectives Vincent Hastings and Thomas Fickbohn of the safe and loft squad; Patrolmen John Lloyd, Vincent Marino and Harold Plate, and Probationary Patrolman Wallace, were making a tour of inspection of the district yesterday when they discovered the men at work. They arrested Gavagan and Griffin, but Stapleton escaped and was found hiding in a coal bin in the cellar several hours later.

DISARMS NEGRO FUGITIVE.

Patrolman Chases Man Up Dark Stairway After a Shooting.

After pursuing an armed negro up a dark Third Avenue stairway and battering in a door, Patrolman Herbert M. Wilson of the East Fifty-first Street Station disarmed the fugitive last night and took him to the station house. He was charged with shooting another negro.

Patrolman Wilson was on duty in East Forty-second Street last night when a man in a taxicab told him a holdup had taken place in Third Avenue. As Wilson ran east, he met a negro woman who told him her husband had just been shot. The patrolman found him lying wounded on the sidewalk, between Forty-second and Forty-third Street. His wife said he was Benjamin Johnson, 27 years old, of 672 Third Avenue. When the woman told Wilson that the assailant had fled into a doorway at 672 Third Avenue, the patrolman drew his gun and went after him.

The prisoner said he was Andrew Todd, 24, of 672 Third Avenue. The wounded man was taken to Bellevue.

Izaak Walton Leaguers to Meet.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Aug. 9 (AP).—More than 2,500 delegates, representing 50,000 members, will gather here in September for the annual convention of the Izaak Walton League of America. The Pennsylvania division of the league will be organized at the time. Among those who have been invited to attend, officials of the Williamsport Chapter announced today, are President Coolidge, Vice President Dawes, Senators Pepper and Reed and Governor Pinchot.

Dinner to Launch 120 Boys On Their Careers as Farmers

A "Make a Farmer Dinner," under the auspices of the New York Branch of The National Farm School, will be held at the Hotel Astor on Oct. 20, according to announcement yesterday. For each of the 120 tables at the dinner, one deserving city boy will receive, entirely free, the first of his three years of schooling and support at The National Farm School. The guests at each table will have paid $600 for "their meal," to launch one more producer as a scientific, practical farmer.

The dinner, which will be attended by several hundred business and professional men and women of New York, is expected to assure the first $72,000 which is needed immediately for the year 1925-1926, as well as to acquaint the public with New York's ultimate program for the school. This involves the building up of a $1,200,000 New York Scholarship Endowment Fund, the income from which is expected to support 120 students at the Farm School in perpetuity.

BRIEF STORM FAILS TO END MUGGINESS

400,000 AT CONEY ISLAND

A cloudy and muggy day which threatened every minute to break into a storm, fulfilled its promise last night at 8:40 with ten minutes of violent thunder and lightning and a heavy downpour.

At the end of ten minutes, however, the storm had subsided to a faint drizzle. This continued for a few minutes and then stopped, but the weather grew muggier than ever.

The highest temperature was 75 at 1 o'clock. At 8 o'clock the temperature had dropped to 73, but the humidity was at 90. Both the temperature and humidity increased immediately after the storm. At 9 o'clock the thermometer showed 74 degrees with a humidity of 92. Approximately a third of an inch of rain fell during the storm.

Threatening skies kept the crowd at Coney Island yesterday down to 400,000. There were comparatively few bathers on the beaches. Only twenty missing children were reported during the day.

Pocketpicking was also at a minimum, but Detective George L. O'Connor, who was in swimming, came out of the water long enough to arrest John Green, 27 years old, who was charged with stealing a handbag containing $58 and jewelry from Mrs. Helen Zagusta of 438 East Eighth Street, Manhattan.

Alice Siegel, 23 years old, of 3,103 Mermaid Avenue, was cut accidentally in the right side by Samuel Koensberg, 20 years old, of 3,101 Mermaid Avenue, while the two were wrestling playfully for the possession of a knife in a store conducted by the young woman's father at 3103 Mermaid Avenue. Miss Siegel remained at home after being attended by an ambulance surgeon from the Coney Island Hospital. Koensberg was arrested on a charge of felonious assault.

Business men of Coney Island conferred yesterday with Police Inspector Byron Sackett in regard to police arrangements for the Mardi Gras celebration, which will be called the "Frolics of 1925" and will be held during the week of Sept. 14.

Herman J. Cohn, Captain of the United States Volunteer Life Saving Corps Station at the foot of Bay Parkway, Brooklyn, rescued Mrs. J. Stone, 25 years old, of 2 Bay Twenty-third Street, Brooklyn, yesterday from drowning in Gravesend Bay. After bringing Mrs. Stone ashore Cohn revived her by applying artificial respiration. Mrs. Stone did not require medical attention.

MOTORBOAT HITS ROPE; CANOES UPSET IN SOUND

Pilot Fails to See Tow Line—Three Men, Fully Clothed, Rescue Five.

The motorboat Ed, with G. E. Birch of College Point at the wheel, was towing two canoes containing three young men and two girls in Long Island Sound about one mile east of Harts Island just before the storm last night, when the Sunny Day, another motorboat, started to cut across the path. Birch shouted to the pilot of the Sunny Day, George Churchill, and Churchill veered his craft toward the rear of the Ed, not noticing the line to the canoes. Birch shouted once more. But the Sunny Day hit the tow rope. The two canoes were overturned and the occupants thrown into the water. They were fairly good swimmers, but a swift current was swinging them away from the motorboats.

Birch, Churchill and Harry Veight of the motorboat Harriett, which had been cruising near by, dived in fully clothed. They had a difficult time with the current, but after ten minutes managed to bring the young men and women to safety on the Ed.

With the storm gathering, a hasty run was made to City Island, where an ambulance was called. Two young men and the girls left for home after treatment without giving their names. Byron Fowler of 2,004 Crotona Avenue, the Bronx, was sent to Fordham Hospital with several ribs on the right side fractured by striking against the side of his canoe when he was thrown overboard.

FOUR POISONED BY PIE.

Woman by Mistake Uses Insect Powder in Baking It.

Mrs. Margaret Ryan of 705 Sixty-fourth Street, Woodside, L. I., baked a pie yesterday and by mistake used insect powder for baking powder. She served it for dessert at dinner to her 15-year-old daughter, Katherine, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ittmar, who live in the same house. She also ate a piece herself.

Within a few minutes all four were stricken with severe pains. Mrs. Ryan managed to get to a window and summon a policeman who in turn called an ambulance from St. John's Hospital. The ambulance doctor treated them and they were able to remain at home.

PLANS 9 TERMINALS FOR FREIGHT HERE

FOR GENERAL SHIPMENTS

Other Dairy and Vegetable Depots to Relieve Traffic in Harbor and Streets.

SEES $14,000,000 SAVING

A plan to establish nine freight terminals in lower Manhattan to and from which all the freight distributed in this region of the city, with the exception of foodstuffs, milk and a few other classifications, would be delivered, was announced yesterday by the Port of New York Authority. The plan would do away with congestion in the harbor and on the streets, and save $14,000,000, it has been estimated—$12,000,000 to shippers and receivers of freight, and $2,000,000 to the railroads.

The report, which is by the Committee on Inland Terminal Stations, as it is called, is signed by Otto B. Shulhof, Chairman, and Schuyler N. Rice, the other member of the committee, and has been approved and adopted by the Commissioners of the Port of New York Authority. The report asserts that the plan would release forty-three piers on Manhattan's waterfront for steamship use, release a large part of the New Jersey waterfront now used in handling freight to and from Manhattan, reduce carfloat transfer service in the harbor and help solve New York's traffic problem. The plan also provides for a modern food receiving terminal to be located on the Hudson River, which it is believed would bring about a large reduction in food marketing costs.

Not Dependent on Port Plan.

The plan is a part of the more comprehensive port plan, but does not depend upon other developments for its completion, and can be put into effect without great delay. It provides for the halting of a great part of Manhattan's freight at the railroad yards in New Jersey or elsewhere, its assortment for transportation by truck to the "universal" inland freight stations, from which the consignee will receive his freight and carry it to his own establishment on his own truck or a hired vehicle. Freight shipped from the city will first be taken to the universal station nearest the shipper and there assorted for delivery to whatever railroad he selects. If he desires, he may move it direct from store to car. At any universal station a shipper may deliver freight or receive freight from any railroad, with no increase in transportation rates. The trucks would cross the river by means of ferries and the vehicular tunnel.

What is known as "general package" or merchandise freight is involved in the new system of handling. Meats will continue to cross the river in cars on floats. Fresh fruits and vegetables will be handled through a union carfloat terminal to be located on the Hudson River waterfront near Franklin Street. Dairy products will be handled through another special terminal. Such commodities as building material, sewer pipe and the like which from their nature can be more economically transferred direct from car to truck, will also come over in cars and be unloaded in the "team track" yards now in use. Coal will also be handled in the present manner by floats.

The railroads will be expected to install "break-bulk" platforms at their terminal yards. Here goods for Manhattan will be taken from the cars, assorted and packed into special containers made to fit large trucks and sent to the inland stations. The containers will be used on the return trip from inland stations to railroad yards, and the "break-bulk" platforms will then be used for the purpose of assorting into cars.

It is expected that the railroads will save greatly, because cars unloaded in the yards can immediately be reloaded for return trips. Also the new system will enable cars to be packed more fully and permit a nearer approach to full tonnage in trains. In Manhattan the system will facilitate store door delivery.

Saving in Pier Space.

Of eleven railroads serving the port, ten use carfloats to get their shipments into Manhattan, and there are 830,000 cars moved in and out of the pier stations every year. To accommodate this traffic twenty-four piers are used on the Hudson River, seventeen on the East River and two on the Harlem River. Nearly all this valuable pier space would be released, it is pointed out, and also a much large proportion of the New Jersey river frontage.

The universal freight stations would be located as near the centre of the zones they will serve as possible. The platforms would be used as points of concentration and distribution for small shipments of freight moving via coastwise and intercoastal steamships, and river and sound steamships, and possibly for export and import freight. The operator of long haul motor truck service might also make use of these stations.

The proposed car float station for fruits and vegetables would be in principle the same plan as that proposed by John H. Delaney, when he was Commissioner of Docks, the reports states, a plan which was worked out with the cooperation of a committee representing the fruit and produce dealers of New York. Some changes in the interior design are suggested, however, to aid in consolidation and distribution. The terminal would extend out from the shore bulkhead about 450 feet and about 1,000 feet along the shore, and would handle 810 cars a day.

The report also refers to the Miller plan for west side improvement, and says:

"Should the plan announced by the Hon. Julius Miller, President of the Borough of Manhattan, for the solution of the 'west side problem,' in so far as it provides for the relocation and elevation of the New York Central's tracks and yards between Fifty-seventh Street and Thirtieth Street, ultimately be adopted, there would be no objection on the part of the Port Authority to the physical changes within that area.

"There would appear to be no economic reason why the rails of the New York Central should extend south of Thirtieth Street; therefore, that part of the Miller plan which makes provision for continuing the tracks from Thirtieth Street to Spring Street, relocated and reconstructed on an elevated structure, is disapproved as uneconomical. The commissioners' disapproval of this part of the Miller plan applies solely to the tracks of the railroad and in no way relates to that element of the plan which makes provision for an elevated street or highway to be constructed over the marginal way south of Thirtieth Street."

CHOICE TO COME THIS FALL

Bishops Lawrence, Brent, Gailor and Theodore Reese Appear Leaders in Discussion.

Four men are being discussed in Episcopal Church circles for the office of presiding bishop of that communion, to be elected at the triennial General Convention in New Orleans, beginning October 7. They are the Right Rev. William Lawrence of Boston, retired Bishop of Massachusetts; the Right Rev. Thomas H. Gailor of New York City and Memphis, Tenn., furloughed Bishop of Tennessee, now president of the National Council of the Episcopal Church; the Right Rev. Charles Henry Brent of Buffalo, N. Y., Bishop of Western New York, formerly Bishop of the Philippines, who was Chaplain-in-Chief of the A. E. F. in the war; the Right Rev. Theodore Irving Reese of Columbus, O., Bishop Coadjutor of Southern Ohio.

Others whose names have been mentioned as possibilities are the Right Rev. Paul Matthews of Princeton, N. J., Bishop of New Jersey; the Right Rev. William Cabell Brown of Richmond, Bishop of Virginia and chairman of the House of Bishops; the Right Rev. Alexander Mann, new Bishop of Pittsburgh, formerly rector of Trinity Church, Boston, who for twelve years has been chairman of the House of Deputies of the Church; the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, D. C.; the Right Rev. William T. Manning, Bishop of New York; the Right Rev. Frederick F. Reese, Savannah, Bishop of Georgia; the Right Rev. James de Wolf Perry of Providence, Bishop of Rhode Island.

Bishop Lawrence is being urged for many reasons, one of which is that he is known as a "star money raiser." Within a few years he has raised $10,000,000 for the extension work of Harvard University, $2,500,000 to raise salaries of the faculty of the University, $8,000,000 for an Episcopal Church Pension Fund, and $1,000,000 for the Cambridge Theological School.

Bishop a Liberal.

There are two arguments being advanced against Bishop Lawrence, however. One is that he is an avowed liberal in theology. Another is that he is seventy-five years old.

There are many who believe Bishop Gailor will be elected. His age is about the only thing that is being urged against him. He will be 69 years old Sept. 17. Bishop Brent was nominated for the Presidency of the National Council at Portland in opposition to Bishop Gailor, but the latter was re-elected. Bishop Brent was nominated by Bishop Lawrence. He is 63 years old, and a bachelor. His wide travel, his military experience, his knowledge of missions are all being urged as reasons for his election. About the only thing being urged against him is that he is not a native of the United States. He was born in Ontario, Canada.

Bishop Theodore Reese was much discussed for the office at Portland, but was not eligible then, as the canon says the presiding Bishop must be chosen from among "the Bishops having jurisdiction." At that time, the Right Rev. Boyd Vincent was Bishop of Southern Ohio, and Bishop Reese was his coadjutor. Since then Bishop Vincent has retired.

It is not believed that Bishops Manning, Mann and Freeman will have much chance of election because they are all newcomers in the House of Bishops. This will be the second triennial for Bishop Manning, and the first for Bishops Mann and Freeman.

To Be Position of Power.

The presiding Bishop is elected by the House of Bishops and his choice must be confirmed by the House of Deputies. The two bodies act separately. The canon requires that the presiding Bishop shall be a Bishop "having jurisdiction within the United States." A majority vote of all the Bishops entitled to vote in the house is also required.

This is the first time in 140 years that it has been possible to elect a presiding Bishop. The church law has provided that the senior Bishop of the Church in order of consecration should be its presiding prelate. For many years this was the Right Rev. Daniel Sylvester Tuttle of St. Louis. He became so deaf that for several conventions he was unable to preside at the sessions of the house.

Then it was the Right Rev. Alexander Charles Garrett, Bishop of Dallas, Texas, who succeeded in his ninety-first year. He was then blind, deaf and had to be lifted back and forth to his episcopal throne in the Dallas cathedral. The Right Rev. Ethelbert Talbot, Bishop of Bethlehem, Pa., succeeded to the office, and will preside at the opening service in New Orleans. He is 76 years old.

With the New Orleans convention the office of President of the National Council is expected to be blended with that of presiding Bishop. The new position will be one of such power that it has been likened to that of Pope of the Roman Catholic Church.

The term will be for six years, and the incumbent will be eligible for re-election. It is proposed to pay him a salary of $15,000 at a minimum, and to arrange for a pension if he is not re-elected. It is expected that he will reside here.

RELIGION NOT DYING, DR. PRINCE DECLARES

Will Last as Long as the Universe, Tennessee Pastor Says in Sermon Here.

There is no basis for the apprehension that the world will discard religion according to the Rev. Dr. John W. Prince of Chattanooga, Tenn., who preached yesterday morning at the Collegiate Church of St. Nicholas, Fifth Avenue and Forty-eighth Street. The golden rule and the Christian spirit will last as long as the universe lasts, he said.

"There is a fear in some quarters that religion will be nationalized out of existence," said Dr. Prince, "or that the more intelligent the race becomes the less and less it will need religion, until, becoming perfect mentally, it will do without religion entirely. But if such a stage as that were reached there would still be a need for religion. There would be areas of the universe that the most gifted mind would find impossible to penetrate, meanings of life that the intellect could not arrive at.

"There might be advanced the theory that the more society becomes democratic, the less will it need religion. Those who hold this opinion say that, though the rightful function of religion is to bring about such a desirable democracy, after that it will have to take a back seat. So also might be advanced the theory that, with the increase in the material progress of civilization, religion will be civilized out of existence.

"There are times when the Almighty must look down upon our civilization, after all these centuries of struggle and experience still no farther advanced than it is, and laugh at it. Not yet have we got to the state when we can say we are sufficient to ourselves."

SUGGESTS 3 WAYS TO ATTACK CRIME

Canon Chase for Law Reform, Federal Movie Censor and Campaign by All Churches.

SEES TOO MUCH POLITICS

Preacher Tells Congregation He Recommends Conviction by an 8 to 4 Vote of Jury.

Law reform stripping the criminal of his unreasonable advantages, Federal censorship of the motion pictures and a united educational attack on crime by all the churches were advocated yesterday by Canon William Sheafe Chase in his sermon at Christ Church, Brooklyn, as three greater measures necessary for the curbing of crime.

After quoting the figures to show by how wide a margin this country leads the world in murders, robberies and burglaries, the clergyman continued:

"The failure of the State to protect its citizens from professional criminals is nothing less than a breakdown of representative government.

"Political leaders in many cases exercise more power than those who nominally hold office. The political leaders often exercise that power in behalf of those interests which give them the most money or the most votes. An invisible government often controls executives, legislatures and judges."

After quoting Judge Rosalsky as estimating that there were 30,000 professional criminals in New York, the preacher continued:

"Is it not a travesty upon government to consider that these professional criminals, because of the money which they secure from their crimes, should, by using that money to fee politicians, employ fixers and experts in lobbying and court procedure, have more influence in our government than the law-abiding, tax-paying citizens of each community?"

Quoting the Chicago Crimes Committee and other authorities to prove that the proceeds of crimes pay legislators and lawyers to make laws and twist laws in favor of the criminals, Canon Chase asserted that bad education, especially the influence of the motion pictures, were raising a class of youth which were ready to take advantage of the crime-favoring legislation and court procedure.

Sees Evils in Movies.

"On the movie screen," he said "life is perverted and distorted so that crime is glorified and the inevitable evil consequences of sin and remorse are concealed. In the majority of films shown today throughout the world, vice, crime and immorality are shown out of all proportion and with the wrong emphasis. On the screen the youth of the world see immorality succeed and criminals applauded and honored. They see life depicted as if all people are governed by low, merely animal, selfish impulses. They see duty, self-restraint, self-control and self-sacrifice ridiculed as old-fashioned and contrary to the highest human nature."

Canon Chase recommended, among other legal remedies, conviction on a vote of 8 to 4; conviction on a preponderence of evidence, and permission to the prosecutor to spread the facts of the past life of the defendant before the jury. In addition to suggesting reforms in criminal procedure, Canon Chase made these recommendations:

"The removal of one cause of crime can be best accomplished by the establishment of a new moral education of the young through motion pictures and through the public schools.

"The motion pictures, which are an interstate and national business, can never be successfully and effectively regulated by local and State laws. The most effective way to eliminate from the face of the earth the evil pictures which are now the curse of the world will be by a Federal law which will regulate the production of movies by a Federal Commission, as the railroads are by an Interstate Commerce Commission.

Redemption of Criminals.

"Another cause of crime can be removed by arousing the united religions of America to inaugurate a movement for the redemption of the criminal. The Church, which has permitted theories of retribution and revenge to dominate in the treatment, should deal with the criminal in the spirit of Christ, Who, while hating the sin, loved the sinner as His brother. The Church was commissioned to remit sins, not in ecclesiastically guaranteeing admission to everlasting joy in the next world.

"Professor Charles R. Henderson is right when he says: 'Crime is not a disease of the body. It is not insanity. It is the deed of a responsible person. Unfavorable surroundings increase crime and modify its expression. The immediate cause of true crime is an evil personal choice, the act of a morally depraved will. The criminal is a weak man, generally defective in his body, intellect and will, at least in some point. His heredity, his home training and his environment are largely responsible for his condition. But he cannot be in a real sense a criminal unless he is morally responsible.'

"The Church has a large task in endeavoring to have every child well born, well educated morally and religiously. It is her task to create a community environment which will incite and develop in every child the principles of high living and will help to prepare him for an eternal fellowship with God."

LIKENS DEATH TO A VOYAGE.

Alexander H. Stewart Compares Reunion to the Lord's Coming.

Preaching on "The Lord's Second Coming" yesterday, Alexander H. Stewart, speaker at the Friends' Meeting House, 221 East Fifteenth Street, said:

"An illustration always comes to my mind when I read this Scripture and think of the difference between death and the Lord's coming. When I left Scotland to come to Canada I remember standing on board the steamer at Liverpool looking at all the people on the wharf, just as we were about to sail—many with handkerchiefs wiping away sad tears. It was the parting station. Husbands were parting from wives, lovers were parting, mothers were parting from sons and daughters. It reminds me of death. It is a parting station, death; and as our loved ones are taken from us, though we expect they are going to a better country, it seems like tearing limb from limb to part from them.

"Seven months later I went down to the wharf at Halifax to meet my wife, coming to join me in Canada, and as the gangway connected the ship and the wharf, and the passengers began to disembark, what a different scene! Wives and husbands meeting, kissing and hugging! Husbands and wives, mothers and families, coming together again! What a happy scene! Everybody rejoicing! Not a sad one in all the crowd! It was a meeting station. That's like the coming of the Lord. 'We'll meet with freens we kent langsyne and wha frae oo'r heart were ta'en.' What a day of rejoicing that will be! No wonder we say, 'Even so, come Lord Jesus!'"

END OF MAN IS FAITH, NOT RICHES, HE SAYS

Dr. Hughes of London Sounds Warning and Tells of Reward of Right Living.

The Rev. Dr. Samuel W. Hughes of Westbourne Park Chapel, London; preached yesterday in the Brick Presbyterian Church on the text "Who hath hardened himself against him and prospered?"

"You who obey the rules and laws of the church," said Dr. Hughes, "see yourselves superseded by people who dismiss the Ten Commandments with a nod. But you know that the end of man is faith, not riches.

"God's laws are indelibly clear. These Sabbath-breakers, of whom we have so many now, celebrate the day in merry style. Out on the highways they think of us here in church, and I daresay they regard it all as a bit of a joke on us. Let them wait till the judgment day. You cannot keep in touch with God unless you pray regularly to Him on the season which He has appointed for that purpose. I tell you if you keep the Sabbath holy, it will keep you.

"Our sons and daughters today are in a constant rush to 'keep in step.' You see that divine splendor in your pure and lovely daughter becoming cheap and tawdry. Plead with her that she keep the moral grandeur of her soul, and the majestic allurements of the sublime.

"While they may prosper materially, triflers with God's word are doomed, for there is not a single one of God's laws which will bend, nor on the other hand is there a single repentant sinner unforgiven."

STRESSES CHRISTIAN MIND.

Dr. Gilmore Says Steel and Oil Have Adopted It in Part.

Steel and oil have recently adopted Christian-mindedness "in part," said the Rev. Dr. O. T. Gilmore yesterday at the Grace Methodist Episcopal Church.

"Admittedly the best teacher, the clearest visioned and purest thinker was Jesus, and his was the most righteous, holy and perfect life ever lived," said Dr. Gilmore.

"He ran up against problems just like ours. He faced them and took an attitude toward them and the people involved. This is commonly called the Christian attitude, or being Christian-minded. That mind said that all of its thinking and acting would be controlled by love. Every decision would be in harmony with it and in all relationships with other people it would use no other force to influence besides love. It went out to all races and creeds, good and bad.

"Will we never learn that the only way that has ever for one moment produced conditions that have given real hope is that where Christian-mindedness was in control? In two thousand years the industrial world has learned to practice a bit of it, even if it is largely for business and economic efficiency. Steel and oil have recently adopted it in part. So far as our international problems are concerned, we have hardly progressed a noticeable inch in actual practice. Since the World War we have done a few hopeful turns along with our many aboriginal tricks—common to brutes with big sticks. The value of much of our good conduct has been discounted by our actions in and toward the East. During the last few weeks the doctrine of 'might makes right, or is right' has been foisted on China by inhuman militarists from Britain and America. We trained them. Yet, only a few years ago, we called such beings huns."

CALLS CHRIST A RADICAL.

Former Bishop Jones, However, Hits Present-Day "Superficial Reds.".

"The Sin of Radicals" was the topic of the Rev. Dr. Paul Jones, former Bishop of Utah, now Secretary of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, who preached yesterday at the Community Church.

He described Christ as a radical, said that the most interesting books now being published were the works of radicals such as H. G. Wells, praised the late Senator La Follette and characterized Ghandi and Lenin as men who had "sincerely sought to work out a new order of things in India and Russia, daring the shame and seeking for realities in the life above them."

Nevertheless, he attacked radicals as a group, saying that many of them were radicals for the sake of radicalism, that they moved capriciously from one movement to another without trying to live out the principles they preached, and that they had a weakness for assuming attitudes of arrogance toward others because of their own superficial studies in this and that.

"The tendency," he said, "is to take up pacifism, or some new thought, then espouse psychoanalysis, socialism, then birth control, communism, vegetarianism, and a lot of other isms, without knowing what these are all about or making any definite attempt to live them out. Such people are always looking for something new, not even staying long enough with one thing to make an impression on it.

"There are those who espouse pacifism, for example. They are strongly against war, but they still insist upon their rights, ready to retaliate or resent any injuries. Also, there are those who espouse socialism, who declare themselves for the cooperative commonwealth, yet draw dividends, take rents, &c.—are radicals intellectually, but nothing more."

DECRIES DEFINING CHRIST.

Dr. Warren Says Defenders Err in Trying to Sum Up Religion.

The attempt to define the conception of Christ and to sum up religion in a word is a mistake into which many of the defenders of religion have been beguiled in the present controversy, according to the Rev. Dr. Paul C. Warren, who said yesterday in his sermon at the West End Presbyterian Church:

"One of the distressing aspects about much of the controversy of late regarding the person of Christ is that such debate too often tends to belittle the whole fact of Christ. The man who seeks to sum up his conception of Christ in come hard, fast definition is making almost the same error as the man who refuses to accept Christ because he finds it difficult to define or explain Him. They both are failing to realize that Christ is far greater than speech or definition and that the truth about Him must be discovered for every one finally through a personal relationship.

"There needs to be less discussion about Christ and more preaching of Him and His gospel. And for all those who are in intellectual doubt or perplexity regarding His person and His claims, Jesus has pointed out a sure way to find the answer to one's questions, 'If any man willeth to do His will, he shall know of the teaching, whether it be of God, or whether I speak from myself.' In obedience to God's will and in conformity to the moral claims of God upon them, men will ever find the road to the truth about Christ. And as they go on in the life of fellowship with the Divine, more and more their doubts will fade away and Christ will become to them a sure and certain reality, their Divine Lord."

ASSERTS TRUE FAITH WELCOMES SCIENCE

DESTROY SUSPICION, HE SAYS

Then Let Religion Follow in the Path of Discovery and Recognize God's Handiwork, He Declares.

True faith welcomes rather than opposes scientific discovery, according to the Rev. Dr. Raymond C. Knox, chaplain of Columbia University, who preached at St. Paul's Chapel before several thousand Summer session students yesterday.

"Let us bid the scientist go on," he said. "Let us recognize the high service he renders to God and man. Let him show us more and more of the universe in which we live and then let faith advance to see in it all God's handiwork.

"In order to have this insight and faith it is first necessary to overcome now and forever all suspicion that there is any antagonism between religion and scientific discovery.

"If there is one thing that has made it difficult for men and women of inquiring minds to see in the universe as known today a revelation of God, it is because they have so frequently been told that there is no revelation there. On the contrary, they have often been told in the name of religion that to accept new discoveries about the universe destroys faith.

"We all believe today that the earth moves around the sun. Yet when that discovery was first announced, how vehemently was it opposed. Even Luther is said to have called Copernicus an upstart astrologer who dared set his own authority above that of Scripture.

"But now we see that Luther was mistaken. Faith in the Bible can be just as strong, it can be stronger, as we all accept the larger knowledge which once was obscured.

"In spite of many illustrations that knowledge does not destroy faith, the antagonism to science still survives, and in some sections of the land to teach an epoch-making discovery is forbidden by law.

"There once was a time when all men knew of the origin of the earth was explained in the statement that it was made in six days. Taking the world as they understood it, they saw in it God's creation. That was their faith.

"We have immeasurably advanced in our understanding since that early day; we think of the universe as slowly evolved through thousands of centuries.

"Even this knowledge is far from complete. There is much more to learn. But taking the universe as we now know it, our faith is the same. We see in it God's handiwork. What we have gained by the change in view is a larger universe in which our faith can expand and grow."

EXALTS PATIENCE OF JOB.

Church People Need It to End Strife, Says Dr. Hutchison.

Special to The New York Times.

STONY BROOK, Long Island, N. Y., Aug. 9.—People in the churhes should practice the patience of Job, the Rev. Dr. Stewart Nye Hutchison, pastor of the East Liberty Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, declared in a sermon this morning to a large congregation in the Stony Brook Auditorium.

"If we were more patient we would be able to solve the trouble between Fundamentalists and Modernists," said Dr. Hutchison.

The annual prophetic conference will open Wednesday with the Rev. Dr. Ford C. Ottman of Stamford, Conn., in charge.

SAYS GLOOMY PASTORS HAD INDIGESTION

Dr. Reiland Thinks Old-Time Threats of Doom Sprung From Physical Disturbances.

The Rev. Dr. Karl Reiland, rector of St. George's Church, suggested in his sermon yesterday that the generosity with which some of the old-time divines broadcast promises of eternal punishment was a result of digestive disturbances and poor physical condition.

"It is amazing," he said, "how much our feelings have to do with our philosophy. A restful night, good digestion and a brisk walk in the fresh air makes as much difference in our outlook upon life as there is between the tarnish and the polish of a piece of silver.

"It is not too much to assert that a careful investigation into the personal habits and the physical condition of those great minds of the past who have shown the most irritation and impatience over conditions and who have encouraged hopelessness in the thought around them, would reveal some organic or functional distemper which in part at least would account for their distorted view of things. It is unquestionably quite scientific not only to listen to what a lecturer says but to guess if you can how he feels. Just as with a player, so with a writer or a speaker, close observation will inform you of his 'good days' by his performance.

"This variation runs through the conduct of all of us from the cradle to the grave and to remember it is to reckon with it. The misbehaving child who will not 'show off' as a proper exhibit should before the admiring guests and sustain with appropriate reactions the reputation his parents have given him is 'tired' or 'hungry.' In which case you are gracious enough to believe that his inheritance is for the time being obscured by his temporary indulgence.

"We are all children at times, especially in our feelings and often regret the expression of them when they are beyond recall and we are feeling better. Hunger, weariness, anxiety and physical unfitness are prolific causes of mental and temperamental twists. We do not like to admit it at the time because it hurts one's pride not to be taken seriously and we dislike the imputation that anything is the matter with us. Truth is, however, that a headache alone, can change the headline on the column of the day's doings and when one is feeling really fit he is most remote from the danger of having one.

"Perhaps the dogmatic denial of salvation to so many people in the theological excesses of past days, was in a measure due to the immoderate nourishment."

DR. HUTTON ON EVOLUTION.

Bryan Sincere but Chose Wrong Ground, London Pastor Thinks.

Evolution and religion were discussed yesterday in the Central Presbyterian Church by Dr. John A. Hutton of Westminster Congregational Chapel, Buckingham Gate, London. Dr. Hutton took as his subject, "What Is Man?" adding "Heads or Tails?" He apologized for "his own addition to the great question raised in Holy Scripture," but went on to say that that was the real issue in the recent controversy.

Alluding indirectly to the recent Scopes case, Dr. Hutton made friendly and generous reference to the sincerity of William Jennings Bryan in the case. "I believe that he chose the wrong ground, but there is something in the question Mr. Bryan raised which can never be set aside. I wish he had said in effect, 'What I would like the Legislature of Tennessee and the Congress of the Republic to announce is this: Do we as a people intend to stand by that total view of man as the child of God which they undoubtedly did hold who drew up the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution?'"

SAYS GOOD 'SOLDIER' ENDURES HARDNESS

Dr. Carter Declares True Christian Must Be Willing to Die for His Country.

FINDS SOME PACIFISTS GOOD

But Asks if Patriotism Is So Dear as Not to Be Purchased by Sacrifice of Life.

There are some good pacifists, according to the Rev. Dr. William Carter of the Throop Avenue Presbyterian Church in Brooklyn, who preached yesterday before military students at Camp Blauvelt, N. J.

"There are some people who do not believe there is such a thing as 'a good soldier,'" said Dr. Carter. "They have heard pacifists denounce militarism so much that they think everything and every one connected with military life is bad and utterly to be condemned.

"We who are in military life, however, are more intolerant than they; we admit that there are some good pacifists, but say of the most of them, 'There is something wrong either with their life or with their liver.' Christ compared the Christian life to a warfare. He Himself was seen by John in the Revelation as a Commander-in-Chief of the armies of heaven, seated upon a white charger with sword and full war panoply, leading His army to battle. And Paul says that 'the good soldier of Jesus Christ' is one who 'endures hardess.' As a soldier who is also a civilian I would commend this mark of a 'good soldier' to those pacifists who are civilians but ought to be soldiers.

"Christians who are 'good Christians' must endure hardness. So must soldiers, if they would prove themselves 'good.' The one is used as an illustration of the other. Good Christians proved their 'goodness' by being willing to die for their country. They are called heroes. Are pacifists such because they are not of the stuff of which heroes are made? Have they no love of their country to prompt self-sacrifice? Is loyalty so high and patriotism so dear as not to be purchased by such a price as this? Thank God, at least there are some who think differently, who are such good soldiers of Jesus Christ and of their country as to be willing to endure all things and give up life itself for the love they have for God and native land."

BISHOP MANN ON REFORMS.

None Can Succeed Unless Start Is Made With Individuals, He Says.

No general reforms can succeed unless they start by reforming individuals, according to the Right Rev. Alexander Mann, Bishop of Pittsburgh, who preached yesterday at St. Thomas's Episcopal Church, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street. After analyzing St. Paul's Epistle to the Ephesians, the Bishop continued:

"St. Paul points out that the family, not the individual, is the social unit. Back of all social movements and back of all mass social reforms there lies and there must ever lie an individual. It is impossible to reform the world so long as the character of the individual remains unchanged.

"The real fight is not outward but inward—the conflict between right and wrong. The 'crown of righteousness' means a good life—the life of duty. Let me ask you, is there any greater aid to overcome temptation than the daily doing of the daily duty?

"Duty is a great word in English history, and it goes far to explain the dominance of the English-speaking world."

FINANCIAL MARKETS

The Midsummer Attitude This Year and Others—Agriculture, Trade and Money.

August is apt to be a month of uncertainty in financial markets; partly because of doubt as to just what kind of industrial situation will be disclosed by the usual test of Autumn activities, but chiefly because of distrust of the money market, which will sometimes present a false appearance of ease in the idle midsummer trade, only to tighten suddenly a few weeks later. Even in years that are now remembered as a whole for the vigorous forward movement in all markets—in 1919, 1916 and 1915, for instance—violent downward reactions occurred in August on the Stock Exchange. The absence of any such apprehensive movement, and the continuing display of financial hopefulness, is the interesting sign of the times.

It is the more interesting because of the presence of some facts in the general situation which on other occasions would have been seized on as a basis for discouragement. The steel trade is complaining of low prices; production of iron, although much above last Summer's rate, has been gradually curtailed throughout the season. Indications of the wheat crop have thus far foreshadowed a yield of 20 per cent. below last year's; so much indeed below the recent usual harvest that, occurring along with a probable 20 per cent. increase in the production of Europe and Canada, it bids fair to bring our grain export during the coming season to the smallest total in a decade. How, then, can Wall Street reasonably talk of a prosperous Autumn?

It will probably be answered, first, that no season even of high and recognized prosperity has ever occurred without some dark spots in the field of industry, some branch of trade which was hanging back through causes peculiar to itself, but also that some of the facts that are at present cited as unfavorable influences arise from circumstances which from another viewpoint testify to the soundness of the situation. Lack of aggressive purchases in such industries as steel, and of long dated orders in other industries, reflects at any rate the absence of speculation in the country's trade; therefore it removes the misgivings which were entertained in 1923, of a brief "inflation boom" and a subsequent collapse. The loss of Autumn-sown wheat acreage last Winter was unusually large; but it must also be remembered that the best agricultural authorities expressed grave misgivings when the large increase in planted acreage became known last Winter, lest the resultant crop might drive grain prices down again to the very low level of 1923.

Unconsciously in a measure, financial markets appear to recognize these considerations. They are not likely to be disturbed even by the probable decrease in our export trade as a result of the smaller wheat crop. The equanimity, not to say gratification, with which the recent change from gold imports to gold exports was received, was fairly conclusive proof of the financial attitude on that question. It recognizes the changed position of the United States in its relations with other countries, since we have become the creditor nation of the world. But it also recognizes the high importance of maintaining grain prices on a level with prices of what the farmer has to buy.

If there were visible signs of a tightening money market, the Stock Exchange would lay more immediate stress on that fact than on any evidence of improving trade. But there are no such signs. The Treasury measured the market's probabilities in June, when its offering of a one-year loan of $125,000,000 at only 3 per cent. was nearly four times oversubscribed in cash or in maturing notes bearing 4½ per cent. Prices of outstanding United States bonds have not maintained the high prices of July, which were the highest in the history of those securities, but most of them sell today a point or more above the present year's lowest and fairly on a level with last August. Along with these evidences against expectation of any sudden rise of New York money rates comes last week's expression of judgment by the Bank of England, whose reduction of its discount rate on Thursday, on the very eve of the Autumn season, was the clearest possible evidence that the Bank has no apprehension of such tightening money here as should draw on London's credit resources and jeopardize the London reserve position.

The Stock Exchange has occasionally gone pretty fast in its "discounting" of Autumn probabilities in trade. But, on the other hand, even the Stock Exchange is under no illusion as to the actual business outlook; it is predicting a large trade on a sound and stable basis, but no excited stocking up of goods on speculation. What the cheerful financial attitude really indicates is belief that certain underlying difficulties which obstructed revival of the country's prosperity between 1920 and 1924, and which tripped up more than one promising forward movement in finance and industry, have been removed.

HOPE FOR DEBT SETTLEMENT

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—War debt negotiations are expected to drag on for a considerable time, while the results of the French loan cannot be known for some weeks. Reports, however, indicate that the final result will be very satisfactory.

If these hopes are realized a large part of the French floating debt will have been funded on a reasonable basis. Steps to stabilize the franc will then become practicable.

LOWER BANK RATE MARKS CONFIDENCE

London Ascribes Reduction to Admitted Triumph of Gold Resumption Experiment.

NOT DUE TO TRADE NEEDS

Bank of England Now Considered Able to Meet All Autumn Demands on Its Gold Reserve.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—To the majority of the financial interests the bank rate reduction came on Thursday as a complete surprise. Nevertheless, the action of the Bank of England in lowering its rate is believed by financial London to be explained by a few obvious facts. First of all, the reduction is looked upon in all experienced financial quarters as a triumph for the gold standard, and as having no political significance whatever.

The suggestion that the reduction may have been connected with the coal trade crisis is not seriously entertained. The granting of a subsidy to that industry is an incident which stands by itself, and no one in the financial or business community has held that the Government needed to placate industrial interests generally by securing a reduction in the bank rate. It is still true that the Treasury and the Bank of England work in close accord, but last week's action of the bank was due primarily to its own greatly strengthened position.

Rise in Gold Reserve After Resumption.

On April 29, when the gold standard was restored, the amount of gold held by the Bank of England was £155,742,064. Since then there has been a steady influx of gold from abroad. The actual net receipts by the Bank up to last Wednesday were £8,651,000, while allowing for certain minor internal movements the Bank's gold holdings increased from £155,742,064 on April 29 to £164,500,152. At the same time, the banking reserve against deposits has risen from £27,103,359 to £37,930,527, and the ratio of reserves to liabilities from 22.1 per cent. to 31.2 per cent.

In spite of this great improvement, the most the city had expected was unchanged maintenance of a rate of 5 per cent. It took this view because, with the approach of the Autumn, demands upon our gold are likely to increase and that in all probability America will withdraw part at least of the large balances at present employed in London, in order to finance its own crop movement. This would be a perfectly normal development, but one calculated to weaken American exchange. The lowering of the money rate in London at this juncture, therefore, is of considerable significance. It will probably tend to hasten the withdrawal of American balances, but it also indicates that the authorities consider it unnecessary to offer such attractive terms for use either of American or other foreign funds in London.

Looking to the Autumn.

In other words, they think that confidence in sterling has been restored to such an extent that the market needs no special protection, and that the Bank of England is now in position to meet all normal demands that may be made upon it for gold this Autumn. The Bank, however, is already taking action to see that the new rate is made more effective than the old one. This is being done through the large clearing banks, which, instead of lowering their rate for loans to the money market by a full ½ of 1 per cent., have reduced the charge by ¼ of 1 per cent. This money constitutes something like 75 per cent. of the discount market's resources, so that its cost has a direct influence upon the bill rates.

Currency notes outstanding at the end of the week aggregated £305,484,190, as compared with £301,040,321 one week ago and £298,070,155 two weeks ago. The circulation is now at the highest point of the year to date, the lowest having been £281,165,917 on Feb. 28.

ESTIMATES OF GERMAN PUBLIC REVENUE RISE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 9.—Radically revised revenue estimates have just been submitted to the Reichstag for the financial year 1925-26. They show an expected yield of taxation amounting to 6,344,000,000 gold marks, as against 5,343,000,000 estimated in the original budget. Financial circles believe, however, that even the figure last submitted will prove to be less than the actual yield, seeing that the first quarter of the year alone produced 1,825,000,000.

The Government at Berlin has come to an agreement with the German States and municipalities, whereby it guarantees them 2,100,000,000 marks yearly out of the federal income tax and from the yield of the "turnover tax."

Royal Bank of Canada
Capital Stock
To yield 5.75%

This Bank has a remarkable record of continuous growth and earning power. It has recently completed negotiations for absorbing the Union Bank of Canada as of September 1, 1925, thus further enhancing its earning possibilities. The combined assets of these two banks will probably make this the largest Bank in Canada.

WHERE WAS JACKSON BORN?

Both North and South Carolina claim the distinction of being the birth State of Andrew Jackson. Now Congress will be asked to decide the matter. Some of the evidence of the two States is given in an article in The New York Times Magazine Section next Sunday.—Advt.

WATCHING FRENCH BANK AND TREASURY

Paris Explanation of $6,000,000 Gold Shipment From France to New York.

TO MEET DEBT MATURITIES

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 9.—The Paris markets were governed last week not only by the reaction in State securities, due to realizing, but by the uncertainty during the first half of the week as to what showing the French bank statement would make on Thursday. When the statement turned out to be much less satisfactory than that of the preceding week, home securities became irregular on the Bourse, but foreign securities were widely sought and ended at the week's highest prices.

The Treasury had to meet last week some rather important maturities of the commercial debt of France to the United States. This included the sum of $10,000,000, payment of which last week covered the half yearly interest on the $400,000,000 debt incurred through purchase of the American war supplies by France. Interest payments which simultaneously fell due on French Government loans placed abroad or loans guaranteed by the Government, was covered by the $6,000,000 gold delivered for account of the French Government to the New York Federal Reserve Bank.

The Gold Shipment to New York.

This operation was designed to avert purchase of dollars on the exchange market with the necessary equivalent of a fall in francs. The Government preferred to send the gold, part of which will be used to cover the maturity of the Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean Railroad loan. The balance will be held as a dollar credit for other purposes.

The shipment of gold did not figure in the week's Bank of France statement, because the gold shipped belonged to the French Treasury itself, and had been held by the Bank of France merely as consignee. As to the origin of the gold, it is believed to have been Russian gold paid by Germany under the armistice conditions, which was divided among the Allies.

Subscriptions to the New Loan.

It is impossible to give any close estimate of actual subscriptions to the new gold coupon 4 per cent. refunding bonds. It is recognized that the placing of the loan has been severely hindered recently by the strike of bank clerks and by the consequent closing of many agencies of the large Paris banks. At present it is thought that the Treasury will overcome this obstacle by extending the sales of the loan over a longer period than had been originaly designed.

As to the effect of the new loan on the maturing short-term debt, 1,800,000,000 francs in bonds of the Credit National were presented for redemption on July 1 and paid in full, yet the Treasury was able in the second week of July to recover a very substantial part of the cash thus disbursed when the bondholders who had been paid off applied as subscribers to National Defense bonds in order, through them, to participate in the new loan.

AUTUMN RISE IN LONDON BANK RATE IS POSSIBLE

Market Believes It Will Move According to Gold Outflow or Inflow.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—Discussion of the lower Bank of England rate has brought expression of opinion on the money market that, since we are now effectively on the gold basis, the bank rate must fluctuate according to the inflow or outflow of gold. Consequently, the money market does not altogether share the Stock Exchange view that the present reduction is a guarantee against a fresh advance later in the year.

For some time past the bank rate has been out of touch with the open-market discount rate, and as the lower level of the latter has not turned out to be prejudicial to the sterling market, it is considered that these open-market rates were another factor which induced the Bank of England to bring its own rate more into line with Lombard Street conditions.

FRENCH STEEL OUTPUT HOLDS NEAR MAXIMUM

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 9.—Output of steel in France as just reported for the month of June amounted to 600,000 tons. This compared with 596,000 in May and with 608,000 at the high point of the year to date, which was the maximum since the armistice. In June of last year production was 550,000 tons. Output of iron in June was 703,000 tons, against 706,000 in May and only 639,000 in June of last year. The figures show that production is held at an exceptionally high level and they are taken to reflect the exceedingly strong economic situation.

For the six completed months of the present year the steel production of France has been 3,567,000 tons, compared with 3,390,000 in the same period of 1924, while the iron output has been 4,091,000 tons, against 3,764,000. Export business in iron and steel continues very active, with prices extremely firm.

Bank of England Still Gaining Gold

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—Gold receipts of the Bank of England during the week amounted to £500,000, all from South Africa. Withdrawals were £276,000, India taking £65,000, the Argentine £15,000, and unstated destinations £196,000.

STRONG POSITION OF THE BANK OF ENGLAND

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—Last week's Bank of England return was of more than usual interest, in view of the reduction in the bank rate and the large holiday demand for currency notes. The actual net import of gold for the week ended Wednesday was £228,000, but the bank return shows an increase of £242,845 in its gold holdings, bringing the total up to £164,500,152. The note circulation expanded by £1,568,830, so that the reserve declined £1,326,485, to £37,930,527. The ratio of reserves to deposit liabilities fell only from 31.6 to 31 per cent.

Of this increase in the bank's note circulation, no less than £1,300,000 has been due to the transfer of that amount of bank notes to the currency note reserve, this being necessary in order to prevent the fiduciary currency note issue from exceeding the legal maximum of £248,145,400. As it is, the fiduciary issue amounts to £247,902,549, there having been an increase during the week of £4,443,869 in notes outstanding, the total now being £305,484,190. The addition of bank notes to currency note reserve has an important influence on the Bank of England's own reserve, as the notes transferred are equivalent to gold. The tendency will now, however, be for the currency note issue to decline; but bank notes, once they are transferred to the currency note reserve, are not taken back again when the currency issue contracts.

The total of bank notes in the currency note reserve is now £56,250,000. The ratio of the bank's reserve to its liabilities would have been considerably higher had it not been for the necessity to put up more cover for currency notes; but an increasing ratio may be expected if more gold comes in or if gold holdings remain stationary, because a falling note circulation is usual as the holiday season wanes.

COMPANY CAPITAL IN GERMANY ABOVE 1913

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 9.—The process of converting corporation finance and bookkeeping in Germany to a gold mark basis is now complete. The gold mark balance of 991 corporations whose stocks are quoted on the Berlin Boerse shows a total capital of 8,835,000,000 gold marks, which compares with 72,383,000,000 paper marks at the close of 1923, and 7,874,000,000 gold marks before the war. These figures have chiefly excited interest because of their indication that company capitalization averages about 10 per cent. more than before the war.

It is generally commented in financial circles that if the list had omitted the banks and the insurance and shipping companies, with all of whom the capital is much lower than before the war, the general increase would be much greater. For instance, 67 chemical corporations now report a gold mark capital of 1,036,000,000, as against 425,000,000 before the war. Similarly, the reports of 78 mining and smelting corporations show capital of 2,149,000,000 gold marks, against a pre-war capital of 1,260,000,000, and 224 engineering corporations report 1,380,000,000 capital, against 980,000,000.

BERLIN DOMINATED BY TIGHT MONEY

German Bankers Now Predict Shortage of Credit Will Be Long-Continued.

CRITICIZING GOLD IMPORTS

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 9.—The Stock Exchange and general business during the past week have been entirely under the influence of the increasing shortage of money, expressed in a high interest rate. Day-to-day money at Berlin, in preparation for the July month-end settlements, had risen from 9 per cent. to 12, from which it has subsequently fallen only by one-half of 1 per cent. It now, therefore, remains about 3 per cent. higher than in the Spring.

Bankers now declare that the heavy fall in interest rates, which began after the credit crisis of April, 1924, may be said to have definitely ended—the permanent tendency for months to come, according to their belief, is likely to be gradually upward. Not only do rates for day money hold very high, but rates for monthly maturities and long-term credits have also risen slightly.

The Plan to Import Gold.

The proposal of Reichsbank President Schacht to convert the bank's holdings of foreign exchange into gold in the bank's vaults, has encountered criticism here on the ground of the loss of interest which would be caused by such a policy. Generally, it is assumed that the new policy was positively determined when Governor Strong of the New York Federal Reserve Bank and Governor Norman of the Bank of England were in conference with the Reichsbank authorities here last month.

It is not believed, however, that Schacht's decision can be ascribed to pressure from the New York and London bankers, for the Reichsbank President has from the beginning been a strong champion of the policy of holding bank reserves in actual gold. One inconvenience of the present system is that only five foreign exchanges—the American, the British, the Dutch, the Swiss and the Swedish—are "bookable" as legal cover for circulation. For this reason, it is felt that large German acquisitions or sales of these currencies for account of the Reichsbank might easily provoke awkward fluctuations in exchange.

The Reichsbank's "Exchange Cover."

For the same reason the Reichsbank returns do not show the actual distribution of its reserve of exchange bills among the different countries. The statement is made, however, as bearing on the possible source of the contemplated gold imports, that about one-half of the present exchange reserve consists of time exchange bills.

As a result of the adverse balance of merchandise trade, the bank's holdings of other exchange bills, which are booked among "other assets," have declined heavily. The whole item of other assets has fallen from 1,654,000,000 marks at the end of 1924 to 502,000,000 at the end of July.

LARGE EUROPEAN CROPS WILL HELP EXCHANGE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—Apart from any influence which the future movement of money rates in London and New York may have upon sterling, one important factor in its favor, which did not exist last year, is the improved prospect for the European harvest.

Conditions in some directions, especially France, are not up to earlier promise; but, generally speaking, larger crops will be harvested, and to that extent the demand for dollars to pay for purchases of cereals from America will be reduced. The French wheat crop is threatened with reduction from continuous rains, and Paris reports the likelihood of unusually large need for foreign wheat this season. French exchange remains very unsettled, with no sign of permanent improvement.

France Must Again Import Wheat.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 9.—The latest Government estimates of the French wheat crop range from 80,000,000 to 82,000,000 quintals, or, say, 293,000,000 to 300,000,000 bushels, whereas last year's harvest slightly exceeded 280,000,000 bushels. The indicated crop this year would still leave a deficit under home requirements of 18,300,000 to 29,200,000 bushels, which must be covered by importation.

On the other hand, it is reported that the crop of the French North African colonies is very abundant, from which fact it is hoped that purchases from other foreign countries can be reduced to one-half the above figures. In view of this consideration, the Paris market has come to the conclusion that the Paris foreign exchange market will not be adversely affected at all in the coming months by the agricultural situation.

PRESSURE ON REICHSBANK.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 9.—The Reichsbank's return of last week, covering conditions of July 31, was interesting chiefly for its reflection of heavy pressures in the discount market. The bank's discounts increased 302,000,000 marks and its advances by 39,000,000, while note circulation rose 329,000,000 to 2,530,000,000, which compares with 2,474,000 at the end of June.

Total circulation of all currencies in Germany at the end of July was 4,906,000,000 marks, comparing with 4,797,000,000 at the end of June.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 9.—The Amsterdam stock market has been favorable on the whole thus far in the month, despite a declining tendency in rubber shares, owing to disappointment over the decline in price of that commodity as a result of the increase in the export percentage allowed by the English colonies to 75 per cent. In spite of this reaction feeling is optimistic here as to the future prospects of rubber cultivation on the Dutch plantations.

The point is made that the previous hard times have rendered possible the exploitation of the industry under the new conditions on the soundest basis. The rubber shares most favored are Amsterdam Rubber, Kending, Lemboe and Oost Java and Serbadjadi.

Tobacco shares also are in a very sound position. The Deli Maatschappy has lately reported a profit for 1924 of 14,000,000 guilders, against only 6,000,000 in 1923, and has paid a dividend of 41 per cent., against 20 per cent. in the preceding year. It now quotes at 400.

GERMAN TRADE SHOWS IRREGULAR CONDITIONS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 9.—The report of the Prussian Trade Ministry for July denies that any industrial improvement has lately occurred except in the potash, brewing, printing and, in a measure, the textile industries. The potash syndicate's sales up to July 1 were 829,270 tons of pure potash, as against 374,894 in the same period of 1924.

The Prussian-Silesian coal industry, however, is booming as a result of the boycott of Polish coal. An aluminum syndicate has been formed on the same lines as the raw steel syndicate. Manufacturers will be conceded specially low prices for all crude aluminum used in production of export goods.

Activity in the steel trade continues with prices firm. Steel bars are now reaching from 135 marks per metric ton, as against 124 at the end of July. Reports also show that the paper industry is also expanding. The Ruhr coal masters have presented a petition to the Government demanding reduction of taxes, railroad rates and social insurance burdens, also restoration of pre-war working hours and abolition of compulsory arbitration in labor disputes.

Shipping arrivals at Hamburg during July were 1,441,209 net tons, which compares with 1,271,752 in the same month of 1913.

WEEK'S HEAVY DEMANDS ON THE BANK OF FRANCE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 9.—The increase of 950,000,000 francs in loans to the Government, shown by Thursday's bank statement, and the 850,000,000 increase in note circulation were larger than the market had expected. The balance sheet, however, covers all of the month-end settlements reported by the bank's branches, which closed their books on July 31. Furthermore, the Treasury's needs at the end of the month were very considerable. Exceptional payments had to be made to Government employes, and the disbursements on account of the Morocco campaign were particularly large.

It should also be observed that the strike of bank clerks in various banking establishments—a demonstration which now includes nearly all banks in Paris and the large towns of France—had seriously interfered with all sorts of financial operations, and had created a great shortage of cash on the open money market.

UNCERTAIN BERLIN MARKET.

Recovery in Stocks, but Distrust Owing to Dear Money.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 9.—The Berlin stock market has again been very weak, but on Thursday a recovery occurred, due in part to moderate intervention purchases by individual banks. Also there was considerable foreign buying, and on Friday sentiment seemed to be improved.

The bear combination, however, showed great activity and endeavored to depress quotations by persistent rumors. In banking circles no lasting improvement on the Boerse is expected so long as current interest rates remain as they now are, considerably higher than the average dividend yield on stocks.

LONDON STOCK MARKET UP.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—The stock market fairly blazed up last week on the Bank of England's action in reducing the rate, the advance being led by gilt-edged securities. Public interest, however, is very small, since this is the height of the holiday season.

The coal settlement has brought only qualified relief, because it is recognized in the market that direct or indirect taxation must provide the subsidy, while a permanent solution of the coal crisis has yet to be found. The belligerent attitude of trade union leaders has not aided the situation.

AUTUMN EXCHANGE OUTLOOK FAVORABLE

Dutch Market Believes Maintenance of Gold Standard Will Be Easily Effected.

CROP SITUATION A FACTOR

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 9.—In connection with last week's reduction of the Bank of England rate, I have made inquiry in the leading circles of Amsterdam high finance as to the autumn outlook for sterling exchange and for the gold situation. The opinion is generally expressed that the Autumn payments for imported produce will press heavily on the sterling market, but no doubt whatever is expressed as to the maintenance of the gold standard. This would in any case be guaranteed by the large American gold credits.

No further exports of gold from Amsterdam to London are now expected. The percentage of gold to cover note circulation at the Bank of the Netherlands has now decreased to 47 per cent. foreign bills standing at 232,000,000 guilders, or 26 per cent. of the note circulation. On April 29, the week in which gold payments were resumed, the note circulation was covered up to 54 per cent. by gold and up to 56 per cent. by gold and silver, whereas the foreign bills then held were only 147,000,000 guilders, or 16 per cent. of the note circulation.

The general view taken on this exchange market is that the normal work of international exchange between the old and the new world is now chiefly confined to the exchanges of England, Holland and Scandinavia. The weak currency countries continue for the most part to rely on foreign credits.

No doubt is entertained here that the highly favorable European crop situation will greatly decrease the dependency of European consumers on the American grain market. On the other hand, it is felt in some quarters that the larger crops may also mean larger home consumption. Nevertheless, the outcome of this year's harvests is everywhere recognized as an extremely favorable factor in strengthening the economic position, especially in Eastern Europe, which is more absolutely dependent on its grain production than the industrialist Western states.

LIVING COSTS LIKELY TO RISE IN GERMANY

Wages May Also Go Higher Because of Increased Rents and Food Prices.

BERLIN, Aug. 9.—The Government's index of wholesale prices as of Aug. 5 shows little change. The figure is 133.8, against 133.9 one week earlier, and this compares with 131.3 three months ago. The January average was 138.2. The cost of living index for July, on the other hand, is stated at 143.3, against 138.3 in the preceding month.

The Reichstag has decided to increase rents to the pre-war level on the first of next April. This and the food duties, which the Socialists declare will cost the average family 150 marks annually, are likely to result in sending up wages considerably. The average weekly wage of skilled workmen in eleven industries during June was 42 marks 46 pfennigs, or slightly over $10, as against 41 marks 71 pfennigs in May.

HALT RISE OF FRENCH BONDS

Realizing Sales Provoked by Revival of Speculation.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 9.—The extraordinary rise of French securities in the preceding week occasioned as its counterpart a certain amount of bull speculation on the Bourse, which continued, that week and early in the week just closed, to exaggerate the rising movement of stocks. This speculation brought heavy realizing sales in the course of the week, which carried most prices down, but without entirely wiping out the previous advance.

The 3 per cent. Government bonds closed last week at 47.70 as against the previous week's maximum of 61, while the 4 per cents of 1918 ended at 46.85 against their high point of 51. Among the other State securities, the 5 per cent. sinking fund bonds closed last week at 71.50, the previous high price having been 74.95, while the 6 per cents went to 66, against 71.

PRICE AVERAGE UP AGAIN.

Weekly American Index Number Highest Since March—British Average Lower.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 9.—Professor Irving Fisher's index number of American commodity prices last week, based on 100 as the average of 1913, is 161.4, which compares with 160.8 a week ago, 160.4 two weeks ago, 160.5 three weeks ago and 159.3 four weeks ago. Last week's average is the highest since the third week of March. The highest weekly average reached this year to date was 164.4, on Jan. 31, which was also higher than any point reached in 1924; the lowest was 154.1, on May 2. Last year's high point was 156.7, on Dec. 27; its lowest 142.3, on June 29. The highest percentage since the war was 247, in May, 1920; the lowest, 130, in January, 1922.

Crump's British index number, as cabled, for the past week is 152.9, comparing with 153.7 a week ago, 151.9 two weeks ago, 152.1 three weeks ago and 151.5 four weeks ago. The average of 166.5, on Jan. 10, was the highest reached this year to date; the lowest was 149.6, on June 27.

Multiple-break oil breakers have been used for several years in Europe and by one or two utilities in this country. . . . . >
> ". . . . There is much to be done in determining whether breakers can be made to handle two or three million kilovolt-amperes successfully, and co-operative tests of the kind described in this issue furnish data and stimulation of the competitive development essential to the progress of the industry."

What Results from Competitive Development for Utilities—

THE Value of Competitive Development to the public is clearly indicated in a comparison of public utility and railroad rates over a period of years. For example, in 1905 a kilowatt hour of electric energy for household use, in New York City, cost 20c; today it costs 7c. In the same period railroad passenger and freight rates in the United States have doubled and trebled.

This comparison is all the more remarkable when it is considered that both the Electric Utilities and the Railroads have the same fundamental operating problems, and expenses. Both convert fuel and labor into public service, the Utilities in the form of electric energy, the Railroads in the form of transportation. They both require great quantities of steel, iron and building materials, as well as finished machinery every year, they must both maintain and operate tremendously expensive plants.

Competitive Development more Resultful than Government Regulation

Railroad rates, closely scrutinized as they are by Federal and State Commissions, have, in late years, advanced more or less in proportion to the advances in the raw materials they convert. Although the Utilities convert, for the public use, identically the same materials, their rates, at the same time, have steadily decreased.

Present in the Utility business must be, therefore, an element which is not present in the Railroad situation. And it is evident that the element is not one of outside regulation. The explanation is quite simple. Twenty years ago electric generating stations were small and isolated; today they are huge and interconnected. Twenty years ago several pounds of coal were required to produce a kilowatt hour of energy; today a modern generating station requires a little more than a pound. This economy was brought about by the competitive development of the great manufacturers of the electrical and mechanical apparatus used by Utilities.

Twenty years ago the Utilities were still using reciprocating steam engines for generating electric energy, such as we see today applied in steam locomotive practice. Ten years ago a turbo generator of 10,000 kva was a large one, today 50,000 kva units are common.

Economy from Improved Machinery

The Utilities have proved by their consistent growth and reduction in rates that it is not competition between themselves or outside control or regulation that reduces operating costs and consumers rates. Their consistent demand on the manufacturers for improvements in design and efficiency of system and equipment has produced this splendid result. Today a Utility could not afford to purchase, at any price, a unit which was perfectly satisfactory ten years ago. It would cost too much to run it. The same will be true ten years from now if the stimulus for competitive development is still present.

The cost of living of every individual, rich or poor, is directly affected by the operating costs of Utilities and Railroads. All such costs must eventually be paid for by the consumer public, either in electric rates or transportation rates; or in the purchase price of every commodity which involves manufacturing power or carrying charges, or both.

Sustained Competition the Guaranty of Progress

The Electrical World estimates that the American Utilities will invest $1,000,000,000 this year in new equipment and plant, to extend and improve their service. The public will not alone obtain from these huge expenditures increased service but, as well, more economic service.

Small concerns can manufacture, in quantity, items which become and remain for a time standardized. But, only great engineering and manufacturing concerns can afford the ever increasing cost and assume the risk of the competitive development required by the electric industry.

The solution of the single problem mentioned in the Electrical World's editorial, cost Brown, Boveri a considerable sum for research and design. Yet, this is only one of the many problems which are continuously being solved by such engineering and manufacturing organizations.

Electrification of Swiss Federal Railways

In 1906, Brown, Boveri electrified, at its own expense, the Simplon tunnel and railway, in Switzerland, to prove the efficiency and economy of system electrification. As a result of this work practically every mile of the Swiss Federal Railways will be uniformly electrified by 1928.

Brown, Boveri competes on the basis of competitive development for its share of the electrical and mechanical business in all the markets of the World; directly, if the market is small, through domestic manufacturing Companies, to which it lends its great technical and manufacturing knowledge, if the market is large.

Thus the parent Brown, Boveri Company is duly acquainted with the competitive development, the special problems and the growing needs of the electrical, mechanical and railway industries the world over. It maintains a great engineering, technical and designing staff to meet the specialized requirements of these industries and so keeps its cherished position in the onward march of development.

And, Now, in America

The proved and constantly increasing American market for Brown, Boveri products has now reached such proportions as to necessitate the early formation of an American company to manufacture and serve Brown, Boveri products here.

We esteem it a privilege to place the resources of this great organization and its associated Companies at the command of American Utilities and Railroads.

STEEL PRODUCTION SHOWS NO GAIN

LINE PIPE IN DEMAND

Extra Outlet for Coke If Anthracite Mines Suspend—Wire Mills at 50% Capacity.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 9.—Steel ingot production in July, as reported at 3,087,590 tons, represents a decrease of three and seven-tenths per cent. from the June production, and as production was declining during June, the July average rate was probably fully equal to the rate at the end of June. The July rate was 6 per cent. above the average rate in the six post-war years up to the present year, and as production has decreased only 26 per cent. from last March the showing is quite favorable. On the other hand the prospect that there will be a sharp increase in mill operations from the recent and present rate is correspondingly small.

The Iron Age blast furnace report shows pig iron production in July at 3.6 per cent. below the June rate, but the rated capacity in blast Aug. 1 was a small fraction of 1 per cent. greater than the capacity in blast July 1. Furnaces vary in size and there was one more stack in blast on the later date.

Efforts made to gauge the exact rate of buying of steel are fruitless. Various ex parte statements are made, but they cover only a very small part of the total trade. The volume of buying does not tell the whole story by any means. This can be seen by observing that in the past five months the Steel Corporation's obligations have decreased by something like 1,750,000 tons, or by 250,000 tons a month. This means that the corporation has for five months shipped 250,000 tons a month more than it sold, which represents 18 per cent. of its capacity. The best test is what customers permit steel mills to ship. Forward buying makes a good augury for the future.

Prices Hold Up Well.

Steel prices are holding quite well and the sheet market has stiffened further. The steel market as a whole has preserved substantially the same average since late in June, following four months of continued though slight weakening.

By far the strongest demand is for oil country tubular goods, including pipe for gas lines. In line pipe for oil and gas lines and in material for drilling wells the buying of late has exceeded the capacity, for it has kept the lap weld departments of pipe mills in full operation for more than a month. The tin plate industry makes practically the same showing as to operations, but not as to gain in bookings, as the mills are now engaged in working out contracts.

Other steel finishing branches are operating at various lower rates. The butt weld departments of pipe mills are at 75 to 80 per cent., their work being in "merchant pipe," the ordinary variety. The wire mills are at the bottom of the list, some observers setting their operation at not over 50 per cent. of capacity.

Argue for Higher Pig-Iron Prices.

The Connellsville coke trade has continued extremely dull, and is not looking for any material improvement in the near future by way of iron and steel activity increasing, but it does have some hope of being given an extra and unusual outlet for coke, in connection with the expected anthracite suspension. This point is being used by some furnacemen as an argument that pig iron prices for the fourth quarter ought to advance probably 50 cents a ton on account of coke being likely to become less plentiful. Pig iron has been dull, but perfectly firm in price.

Two mills in the Pittsburgh district have bought heavy melting steel scrap in the past week, to a total of about 20,000 tons, paying $19.50, or 50 cents above the last mill purchases over a fortnight ago. At the moment no mill is bidding over $18.50 and thus there is doubt whether the advance will hold. As the market stands, however, it has recovered just one-half of its loss by the preceding decline, having been at a high point Jan. 1, declining $6 to the latter part of April, and advancing since then by $3.

EUROPE USING MORE AMERICAN COTTON

Largest Consumption Since Season of 1915-16 Is Credited to Foreign Mills.

YEAR'S CARRYOVER SMALL

Week's Trade Is Held Down to Low Levels by Crop Report Uncertainty.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 9.—The Government crop report attracted so much attention in the cotton trade last week that some imporant constructive developments have been almost ignored. One of these was the annual report of Secretary H. G. Hester of the local Cotton Exchange on the supply and distribution of the American cotton crop during the season just closed.

The two outstanding features of this report were the large consumption of American cotton totaling 14,247,000 bales of which amount 7,787,000 bales were consumed by foreign mills, the largest consumption of American cotton abroad since the season 1915-16, and the comparatively small carryover. As a result of this large consumption the supply resulting from the larger crop produced in 1924 has been absorbed, leaving little of the past year's production in the cotton States.

Carryover Very Small.

Despite the comparatively large crop of last year the carryover of American cotton at the end of the season was only 2,889,000 bales against 2,319,000 last year. This is a very small carryover and should the consumption of American cotton prove as large during the season just opening as it did last season, and many believe it will be larger, another large crop will be needed if the world's needs are to be supplied at a reasonable price.

Some people are disposed to criticize the carryover total as too small owing to the failure to include the stocks held in Japan. Secretary Hester points out that the stocks held in the Far East have not been included in his compilations for the reason that cotton held in the Orient will never come back and should be properly considered to have passed into consumption.

Secretary Hester says that a cable from one of the largest and most reliable Japanese houses states that mill stocks held in Japan, July 16 were 200,000 bales against 240,000 last year, that port stocks were none against 20,000 last year and that stock in transit was 43,000 against 2,000 making total stocks 243,000 against 262,000 last year.

To Determine Effect Monday.

As the Government report was issued yesterday after the markets closed, its effect on prices will not be felt until Monday, but trade has been restricted all week owing to uncertainty as to what the figures would show. The uncertainty has been so great that the speculative public has withdrawn altogether from the market and professional ring traders have reduced their commitments to a minimum and avoided all fresh trading possible. The net result has been a serious decline in business.

As a result of the liquidation which has occurred during the past week or ten days, due to the fear that the next report would materially increase the crop forecast, prices lost almost the entire gain resulting from the bullish report of July 23 based on the conditions existing on July 16. The market rallied moderately during the last days of the week, not under the stimulus of trade buying or fresh speculation but on the prudent covering by shorts unwilling to risk the chance of another bullish report.

TO REDEEM NORWAY BONDS.

Kuhn, Loeb & Co. Announce Transaction for Oct. 1.

Kuhn, Loeb & Co., as fiscal agents, have issued a notice to holders of Christiania, Norway, municipal external loan of 1920, 8 per cent sinking fund gold bonds, announcing that a block of the issue has been drawn by lot for redemption on Oct. 1 at 110 per cent. of their principal amount. Bonds so drawn will be paid on Oct. 1 at the office of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., on surrender of the bonds, together with all coupons maturing on and after that date.

Bonds so drawn for redemption will cease to bear interest from Oct. 1

$2 WHEAT EXPECTED BY CHICAGO TRADERS

BULLISH TENDENCY NOTED

But Leaders Advise Against Entry of the Public as Speculative Buyers.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—The wheat trade is looking for higher prices ultimately with many talking $2 on a supply and demand basis. Conditions are regarded as bullish. Foreigners are beginning to realize that the United States traders have told them the truth regarding the wheat crop of this country and Canada and that they have been misled by Canadian traders who were said to be short.

There is a scarcity of cash wheat for nearby export, with premiums of 2 to 25 cents over the September and a lighter movement of Winter wheat from the farms since July 1. The aggregate movement so far is 53,610,000 bushels, compared with 67,265,000 bushels last year. Chicago has had 8,536,000 bushels, against 10,187,000 bushels last year. Kansas City has received 13,094,000 bushels, or more than 14,000,000 bushels less than last year, while Omaha has received 3,174,000 bushels, against 5,225,000 bushels last year. Millers are said to have secured more wheat at primary markets and have secured good supplies.

Winter Wheat Shortage.

The situation in Winter wheat is most unusual. There is a shortage of nearly 200,000,000 bushels from last year and Kansas City millers are said to have bid higher prices for cash wheat in Illinois and Iowa territory than Chicago cash buyers were willing to pay.

Chicago had been relatively the lowest wheat market until about a week ago when the squeeze in July put prices up to $1.66, but in the last seven days September has advanced to $1.67½, an upturn of 20 cents in eight days.

Those who are bearish say that prices are too high and that they have advanced too fast for the best interests of the trade, being around 33 cents above last year. There is a strong holding of September wheat by local interests, who took the cash grain on July delivery and have arranged to ship out over 2,000,000 bushels, or about 50 per cent. of the July deliveries. The advance has put the hedgers to a disadvantage and there is said to be a movement under way to prevent the tieing up of the wheat markets by the strong interests.

Trade leaders are advising against the public coming into the market as buyers in anticipation of securing big profits. Their experience last February taught them a lesson. Prices may move up irregularly, but wheat at $1.67 for September and cash wheat 2 to 25 cents over, while bullish, should not be considered as an inducement for wild speculative trading until the size of the Argentine and Australian crops is known.

Expect Better Crop in Europe.

Europe has a wet harvest, but the prospects are that the crop in the aggregate will be larger and of better quality than last year. Russia is a disturbing factor in the world's wheat situation, but estimates of her crop are not considered in the aggregate of 2,147,000,000 bushels for eighteen countries which raise two-thirds of the world's crop, or only 49,000,000 bushels more than last year.

Closing prices, as compared with a week ago, show wheat up 10⅛ to 12½ cents, with September leading. Corn ⅝ to 1¼ cents higher, oats ¾ to 1⅛ cents higher, rye 10 to 10¼ cents higher.

Primary receipts of wheat for the week this year, 11,045,000 bushels; last year, 22,861,000 bushels. Corn, receipts this year 2,601,000 bushels; last year, 3,765,000 bushels. Wheat shipments this year, 6,553,000 bushels; last year, 10,682,000 bushels. Corn shipments this year, 1,740,000 bushels; last year, 2,404,000 bushels.

NEW FIRM ENTERS INVESTMENT FIELD

WRIGLEY TO BE CHAIRMAN

Wholesale Distribution to Be Aim of Company in Its Nation-Wide Business.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—Organization of a new nation-wide investment banking corporation to originate and handle in a wholesale way real estate mortgage bonds was announced tonight by a group of prominent Chicagoans.

William K. Wrigley Jr. will act as Chairman of the Board of Directors of the new company. It will be known as Lawrence Stern & Co. Lawrence F. Stern will be President and other members of the board will be John Hertz, taxicab owner and builder; John R. Thompson, Chairman of a chain of restaurants bearing his name; A. D. Lasker, former Shipping Board President and head of the Lord & Thomas Advertising Agency; Stuyvesant Peabody, President of the Peabody Coal Company; Charles A. McCullach, President of the Parmalee Company; Herbert L. Stern, President of the Balaban & Katz Company; Alfred Ettlinger and Joseph J. Rice.

The organization of the new company follows the sudden resignation of Lawrence F. Stern from a senior Vice Presidency of S. W. Straus & Co. on June 22. His resignation at that time was accompanied by considerable mystery, neither Mr. Stern nor Mr. Straus having been willing to discuss the matter. All Mr. Stern would say was that he wanted to rest. Minor officials of the company hinted that the resignation followed a lively session of the Board of Directors.

Wealthy Though Still Young.

The story of Mr. Stern's rise in the real estate mortgage fields is filled with romance. He is still in his thirties and at the time of his resignation from the Straus company he was reputed to be the highest salaried man of his age in Chicago and one of the wealthiest. He joined the Straus organization at the age of 18.

The active management of the new corporation will be in the hands of President Stern and Messrs. Rice and Ettlinger, all of whom have many years' experience in the real estate mortgage field. Temporary quarters will be opened in the Illinois Merchants Trust Building tomorrow and permanent quarters are expected to be opened soon along La Salle Street.

Chicago bankers and security dealers have evinced great interest in the announcement of the new firm because the wholesale distribution of real estate mortgage securities, on the scale contemplated by the new organization, represents a departure in the investment banking field, and also because of the long experience and prominence of those associated in the enterprise.

In discussing the formation of the new firm, Lawrence Stern, President, said: "We believe that there exists today a real need and an unusual opoprtunity for the establishment of a conservative, strongly financed house specializing in the underwriting and wholesale distribution of the better class of real estate mortgage bond issues. While we will not confine ourselves to real estate financing, it seems to us that the greatest present opportunity lies in that field.

"Within a few years the real estate mortgage bond business has developed into one of the most important divisions of national financing. Ten years ago the total national volume of this type of security was less than $100,000,000 a year. In 1923 the yearly volume was estimated at half a billion. This year it will probably exceed a billion dollars. This great development has been brought about largely by the houses specializing in retail distribution, and the means for wholesale distribution of this important class of securities has lagged behind.

For Wholesale Distribution.

"It is only very recently that there has been any carefully planned effort toward wholesale distribution. Such distribution has been handled to a certain extent by some of the established general bond houses which have been more accustomed to operations in the industrial and public utility fields; and in part by the larger real estate bond houses. Neither of these groups is primarily organized for the wholesale distribution of real estate mortgage bonds, and in many cases their methods of doing business make it difficult for them to meet the point of view of the dealer who purchases securities from them for retail distribution. Therefore, there is a splendid opportunity—in fact a real and pressing need—for a house managed by men of long experience and training in the real estate field, operated along conservative lines and specializing in the originating and wholesale distribution of real estate securities."

BRITISH COMMODITIES MOVE HIGHER IN JULY

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—A general upward movement in wholesale prices during July is recorded by The Economist. It finds the rise almost offsets the fall in June, the total prices having risen from 4,351 to 4,446 points. The rise was spread over nearly the whole table, with the exception of foodstuffs.

Minerals	756	736	777

May 1, 1925	4,550	Aug. 1, 1921	4,798
Jan. 1, 1925	4,855	Aug. 1, 1917	5,589
Nov. 1, 1924	4,847	Aug. 1, 1915	3,281

The highest point reached in the monthly averages during or since the war was 8,352, on April 1, 1920.

Business in the cash markets last week revealed a decidedly brisk advance in a majority of the subjoined list of twenty-one articles, eleven staples moving higher. Seven were steady and unchanged, while three dropped in value below the previous week.

The feature of the improvement was the consistent strength in the grains, metals and Middle West lard. The rally in cash wheat, corn, rye, oats and flour followed a sharp bulge in the future grades on good domestic buying and an increase in exports. Smaller stocks of the metals, while there was a good demand from industry, accounted for the gain in copper, zinc, lead and tin. Smaller manufacturers' interest in the rubber market and uncertainty over the cotton crop estimate of Aug. 1, which came late on Saturday, sent rubber and cotton lower. Steadiness was found in butter, pork, beef, iron, steel billets and printcloths.

Continued Advance

Freight Shipments Also Rise Despite Decline in Factory Employment and Wages.

FARM PRODUCTS HIGHER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9 (AP).—Production of basic commodities and factory employment over the country declined further in June, the Federal Reserve Board said tonight in its monthly review, but railway freight shipments and the volume of wholesale trade increased.

Wholesale prices, after declining for two months, advanced 1.4 per cent. The largest increase for any commodity group was for the miscellaneous, which includes crude rubber.

Prices of farm products, foods and fuel and lighting also advanced. In the first half of July quotations on flour, beef, hogs, wool, copper, petroleum, hides and rubber increased, while prices of sugar, bituminous coal and hardwood lumber declined.

The decline in the production of basic commodities was placed at 1 per cent., bringing it to the lowest level since last Autumn. This production, however, was 17 per cent. above the low point of last Summer during the Presidential campaign.

The output of pig iron, steel ingots, lumber, newsprint and petroleum, and the mill consumption of cotton fell off in June, while production of bituminous coal, sole leather and wheat flour increased. The number of automobiles manufactured during June was slightly less than in May.

Drop in Factory Payrolls.

Factory employment declined 1 per cent., and factory payrolls fell off more than 2 per cent. between May 15 and June 15, reflecting substantial declines in the automobile, boot and shoe, textile and iron and steel industries.

Building contracts awarded during June were larger in value than during May and almost equaled the peak figures in April. Residential contracts in June were the smallest for any month since last February, but greatly exceeded those of a year ago.

Sales at department stores in June were seasonably smaller than in May, but totaled 5 per cent. more than a year ago. Mail order sales were 6 per cent. larger than in May and also exceeded the amount of June, 1924. Sales by wholesale firms were 5 per cent. greater than in May and larger than in any June in the last five years.

Department store stocks were further reduced in June, but were slightly larger than a year ago. Wholesale movement of groceries, shoes and hardware was smaller at the end of June than a month earlier, but that of dry goods and drugs was larger. Compared with a year ago, stocks of groceries and drugs were larger in value, while stocks of dry goods, shoes and hardware were smaller.

Loans on Securities Increase.

"At member banks in leading cities," the review said, "the volume of loans on securities continued to increase after the middle of June and during the first half of July was at a higher level than at any previous time.

"Demand for bank credit for commercial purposes was relatively inactive and the volume of commercial loans at reporting member banks remained near the low level for this year, although considerably above the amount for the corresponding period in 1924.

"At the Reserve banks, the seasonal demand for credit and currency was reflected in increased borrowings by member banks, which carried discounts at the beginning of July to the highest level in more than a year, and notwithstanding the subsequent decline, the total on July 22 was still at a relatively high level.

"Total earning assets on that date showed little change as compared with the figures for four weeks earlier.

"Firmness in the money market at the close of the fiscal year was followed by an easing of money after the first of July. In the latter part of the month there was again evidence of firmer money conditions. These changes were reflected chiefly in the movement of rates for call money, quoted rates on prime commercial paper and on bankers' acceptances remaining throughout the period at 3¾ to 4 and 3¼ per cent."

Rise in Bankers' Acceptances Taken.

The board announced that about one-half of the bankers' acceptances purchased outright by the Federal Reserve banks in March and April were drawn to finance the marketing and storing of agricultural products, the Reserve banks taking $247,000,000 of bankers' acceptances.

Of the total, $87,000,000 was drawn to finance imports, $77,000,000 to finance exports, $59,000,000 to finance domestic transactions, including to a large extent storage of agricultural staples in elevators and warehouses awaiting export, and $24,000,000 to finance the storage and shipment of goods between foreign countries.

"Before the Federal Reserve system was established," the statement said, "this convenient and economical way of financing the marketing of crops by the use of American bankers' acceptances was not available, and a large part of our foreign trade was financed through the use of acceptances drawn on foreign banks, which involved the payment of commissions and discounts in foreign markets.

"The Federal Reserve act made it possible for banks in this country to accept drafts, and the Federal Reserve banks by standing ready to purchase acceptances have fostered an acceptance market in this country, the extent of which is indicated by the fact that there are now outstanding at different times of the year between $600,000,000 and $800,000,000 of bankers' acceptances.

Acceptances Cover 600 Commodities.

"Through the acceptance market, facilities have been also provided for financing the storage and shipment of American farm products by exporters and co-operative marketing associations at lower rates and more conveniently than was possible before.

"The analysis made by the Federal Reserve Board shows that acceptances purchased by the Reserve banks cover a wide range of different commodities. During March and April import acceptances covered about 600 commodities, and export acceptances covered over 250 commodities.

"The principal commodities underlying the $247,000,000 of acceptances purchased by the Reserve banks in March and April, combining acceptances in foreign trade and in domestic transactions, were as follows: Cotton, $74,836,000; grain, $27,180,000; sugar, $19,782,000; coffee, $17,752,000; silk, $15,082,000; wool, $11,431,000; hides and skins, $7,300,000; copper, $6,879,000; lard and meat, $5,323,000; flour, $3,286,000; tobacco, $4,195,000; rubber, $3,046,000; cotton manufactures, $2,337,000; wood pulp, $1,915,000; lumber, $1,856,000; furs, $1,688,000; farm implements, $1,235,000."

COTTON CROP REPORT'S EFFECT NOW AWAITED

Increased Government 'Pars' Prevented Smaller Indicated Yield Than Was Reported.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 9.—The Government's condition average of 65.6 per cent. of normal and indicated crop of 13,566,000 bales of 500 pounds weight, issued Saturday, proved a surprise to traders who had looked for a condition above 67 per cent. and an indicated crop of 14,000,000 bales or thereabouts. As the market was closed when the report was received it was impossible to predict just what effect the report will have on prices when trading is resumed Monday. As the market had lost nearly all of the advance caused by the bullish report of July 23, mainly on the expectation that the report published yesterday should show a much larger indicated yield than the 13,588,000 bales then forecast, it is only reasonable to surmise that prices will advance now that it is known that the crop indication, based on conditions existing on July 16, still holds, as yesterday's forecast was actually 22,000 bales smaller than the preceding estimate.

The ginning total was larger than had been expected, but the trade has learned from past experience that no importance is to be attached to large early ginnings as indicative of the size of the crop. Crops that showed heavy early ginnings have commonly turned out to be small ones.

The course of the market next week will depend largely on how Liverpool receives the report. It is now evident that had not the "pars" used in compiling the present crop forecast been heavily increased over those used two weeks ago, the indicated yield would have been much smaller than the figure given today.

Collar Man to Offer 52,500 Shares at $10 Par—Turns Business Over to Son.

E. H. Cluett, Vice President of Cluett, Peabody & Co., manufacturers of collars and shirts, announced yesterday that he had obtained control of the Radio Pack Company, Inc., of New York, sole producers of the "hot water bag without hot water." Mr. Cluett says he has turned the company over to his son, John P. Cluett, who has just been elected President. The elder Cluett becomes a director of the company, along with C. W. T. Barker, Director of the United National Bank of Troy, N. Y., and head of the Barker Shirt Company, and George W. Carmany, hotel owner of Atlantic City.

The Cluett interests will make a public offering of 52,500 shares of the capital stock of the Radio Pack Company, at $10 par value, through the brokerage house of Hosher, Montanye & Co., 15 Broad Street. The proceeds will be used to enlarge manufacturing and distributing activities.

RUSSIA PURCHASING FARM MACHINERY

Shipments Worth $2,200,000 Made Recently—Good Crops Cause a Heavy Demand.

Large purchases of tractors and other agricultural machinery for Soviet Russia have been made in recent weeks by the Amtorg Trading Corporation, agents here for the Russian State Export and Import Department, it was announced yesterday. The increased demand is a result of the good crop conditions in the Soviet Union.

The first shipment of the new purchases was on the steamer Stakesby, which sailed from New York on Aug. 7 with a cargo of 1,494 tractors and 1,500 plows and parts for Novorossisk, on the Black Sea. An additional 2,300 tractors, with plows and parts, will make up the cargo of the Beckenham, leaving New York on Aug. 12 for Odessa and Novorossisk.

The value of the two shipments is placed at about $2,200,000. Other shipments are to be made in the near future. The two cargoes mentioned will bring the number of tractors shipped to Soviet Russia by the Amtorg Trading Corporation since last August to 9,000.

ACQUIRES BELL PROPERTIES

Pennsylvania Company to Have Sole Phone Rights in a County.

One of the few cases of a property of the Bell Telephone System being ceded to an independent company is disclosed in the announcement by R. F. De Voe & Co. of a forthcoming issue of $1,200,000 first mortgage 6 per cent. gold bonds of the Mutual Telephone Company of Erie, Pa. The Mutual company is acquiring the local service properties of the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania in Erie County.

Purchase by the Mutual includes all the Bell properties in Erie County with the exception of the Bell company's central station in Erie, which will be utilized in connection with toll arrangements with the Mutual. Upon completion of the acquisition, the Mutual company will do all the telephone business in the territory in Erie County now served by both companies and will turn over to the Bell company on a commission basis the toll business to points outside of the county.

The Mutual Telephone Company was organized twenty-eight years ago and has grown steadily. Its equipment is entirely automatic.

HAS LONGEST LOCOMOTIVE.

Ford Plant Builds Electric Engine 117 Feet in Length.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 9.—The longest railroad locomotive in the world, the result of much experimenting by the Ford Motor Company, is ready for a test run. It is electrically driven and has power enough to pull a train one and a half miles long. It has an overall length of 117 feet, equivalent to a train of three freight cars.

The new locomotive was taken from the Highland Park plant to the River Rouge yards of the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton July 15 and is being groomed for a trial run. The test is expected to be made before the end of the month.

The locomotive is of heavy steel construction, weighing 372 tons. A maximum of 5,000 horsepower is always available and the maximum speed will be about thirty-five miles an hour, the unit being designed especially for heavy freight service. It is the first locomotive to be built for operation with high volts taken directly from the line.

FINE ERA AHEAD, DECLARES HOOVER

He Says Decision to Let Tariff Alone and Cut Taxes Means Great Prosperity.

CALLS FOUNDATION SOUND

Other Advisers Assure Coolidge of Conditions Promising Well for Business.

Special to The New York Times.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 9.—The decision to permit business to go along unperturbed by fear of tariff revision and the certainty that more tax burdens will be lifted from business incomes are two factors that are working to make prosperity permanent and produce the best era since the war, according to Secretary Hoover.

In his discussion of conditions in the country, as gained from his own observations and those of investigators in the Government, Secretary Hoover gave President Coolidge a review of the economic strength of the country. He did not overlook the bad spots such as appear in the textile industry in New England and the anthracite regions of Pennsylvania. But with these exceptions and the slow restoration of good returns to the farmers, Mr. Hoover said, the United States had never been upon such a solid economic basis as at present.

In his trip to the Pacific Coast Mr. Hoover said he found that the people were thinking in terms of taxation and business prospects. The Administration, he indicated, had gained strength in its program of allowing business to go ahead without constant discussion of new legislation. Among the people the thing that has given the President his present hold is his persistence in reducing taxes and keeping down Government expenses, he said.

There is no fear among Administration advisers that a hard coal strike will occur. But even conceding that the deadlock results in a strike, the Administration officials say that it cannot be lasting. At present the users of hard coal represent 17 per cent. of coal users as against 29 per cent. who in 1923 depended upon this commodity for fuel and power. This 17 per cent., it is said, can find enough hard coal to satisfy their needs for four months after Sept. 1, and, should the strike continue after that period, can use substitutes, such as soft coal, oil and coke.

It is argued that a hard coal strike will not affect present prosperity or bring hardship to the homes as was the case in 1923. It is because of this fact and the definite purpose of the President not to inject the Government into disputes between labor and capital that President Coolidge does not intend to act in any peremptory way in September should a strike come.

In the meantime he is going ahead giving earnest study to taxation, the World Court and, above all, consolidation of the railroads, with their effect upon farm conditions.

The casual observations which the President made last week upon the advisability of voluntary railroad combinations has evoked many favorable comments.

Improvement of railroad shares last week is traced directly to the influence of President Coolidge's views. It is apparent that the railroads are enjoying great activity, not only in the Granger sections, but in most of the East as well. In addition to having heavy loadings the railroads have shown a distinct improvement in efficiency of operation, according to reports made to the President.

So a survey of present conditions, taken with indications as to Fall business expansion, has convinced those reporting to the President that there is no really bad condition facing the country in the next year.

HARVESTING WHEAT IN THE NORTHWEST

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—Harvesting of Spring wheat in the Northwest is well advanced and threshing is progressing rapidly. Yields of six to seven bushels of wheat per acre are reported, the low return being the result of hot and dry weather in Eastern South Dakota, Eastern Minnesota, Eastern and Northern Montana. Expectations are for good yields in South Dakota east of the Missouri River, North Central and Eastern North Dakota and Southwestern Montana. Blackrust has been gradually spreading. Durum wheat is much better than bread wheat, as rust has affected it but little.

Oat threshing is well toward completion in the Middle West and West with irregular returns. Damage to wheat from heat and drought is reported in Western Canada with yields estimated at 300,000,000 to 350,000,000 bushels, while earlier in the season predictions were for 400,000,000 to 500,000,000 bushels. Corn has had rain within a few days in Iowa and a few other States, but more is needed. The crop, however, is doing fairly in leading sections.

The Government report is due Monday.

The average of four private reports on Winter wheat is 407,000,000 bushels and on Spring wheat 255,600,000 bushels, a total of 662,000,000 bushels. Corn averaged 3,017,000,000 and oats 1,301,000,000 bushels. There is little change in Winter wheat since last month, while Spring wheat has dropped 21,000,000 bushels. Corn is off 78,000,000 bushels, and oats are up 9,000,000 bushels, as compared with last month. The total wheat crop last year was 873,000,000 bushels, corn 2,437,000,000 bushels, oats 1,542,000,000 bushels.

ASK FEWER REPORTS.

Producers Say Government System Demoralizes Cotton Trade.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 9.—A movement has been started for the abolishment of the present system of two Government cotton crops being issued each month. Farmers are being quietly appealed to with a view of having them write their respective Congressmen, pointing out the injury to every branch of the industry resulting from these frequent reports.

Not only is the business of the trading markets hurt, but the manufactured goods trade is made to suffer through the constant hesitation of buyers who are afraid of what the next Government report may show on the matter of probable production. With a report twice each month the trade is thrown into violent convulsions immediately after each report and then is compelled to mark time until the succeeding report is issued.

Estimated Livestock Receipts.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—Estimated receipts of livestock at Chicago for this week are: Cattle, 56,000; hogs, 120,000; sheep, 75,000. Arrivals last year: Cattle, 53,966; hogs, 151,036; sheep, 77,489. Seven markets received 882,624 cattle, 227,730 calves, 1,702,415 hogs and 765,304 sheep. Last year cattle receipts were 793,176; calves, 211,296; hogs, 2,478,187; sheep, 835,809. Total of all live stock for seven months was 3,578,102, a loss of 746,456 from last year, all in hogs and sheep, as cattle gained 89,448 and calves 16,463.

Business in provisions, both cash and speculative, is not large and spasmodic. Stocks of products have been reduced.

STEERS RISE IN PRICE.

Fancy Grades Especially Strong—Hogs and Sheep Are Lower.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—Cattle feeders with fancy heavy beef steers and yearlings are getting the highest prices in five years, while the general run of stock is not bringing prices in comparison with the top grades. Fancy heavy beef steers are 85 cents higher for the week, with the top $15.50 and yearlings $15.25. The average of all beef steers for the week was $12.50, gaining 10 cents over the previous week, and was $2.60 above last year. The poor to common grades of cattle, of which there was a liberal supply, closed 25 cents to 75 cents lower. Stockers and feeders finished firmer and fancy heifers gained 50 cents, with a carload sold at $13.75. Calves were up 5 cents. Butcher stock, on the whole, was 25 cents to 75 cents lower.

Hogs were off 35 cents for the week. The top was $14.50 and the week's average $13.40, a gain of 15 cents for the week and of nearly $4 as compared with a year ago. More heavy packing hogs were received. Packers bought 90,000 and shippers 26,500.

Sheep and lamb raisers had a poor week, with lambs 50 cents to 75 cents lower for fat of the killing order, while feeding lambs closed 10 cents to 15 cents higher. The average was $14.90, or 30 cents lower for the week and $1.50 higher than last year. Average price of sheep for the week was unchanged at $7.25 and 35 cents higher than last year. Receipts of cattle at Chicago for the week were 54,500; last year 52,413. All receipts 110,000; last year 134,431. Sheep receipts were the heaviest since January, 94,400; last year, 86,333.

FROG AND SWITCH MERGER.

Weir and Kilby Companies Have United, Officer Says.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Aug. 9.—The reported consolidation of the Weir Frog and Switch Company of Norwood and the Kilby Frog and Switch Company of Birmingham, Ala., was confirmed by J. K. Lansdowne, Vice President of the concern here. Mr. Lansdowne declined to give the details. He said it would be several weeks before the plans of the two companies could be determined because many of the directors of both were abroad on vacations.

For the time being both companies will continue under their present managements. It is proposed to organize a holding company with Oliver De Gray Vanderbilt, President of the Weir Company, as President to operate both plants. The transaction will involve no cash, but will be a transfer of stock in both companies, the shareholders qualifying equally. Mr. Lansdowne intimated that the Norwood Company would probably have the controlling interest in the consolidated concern.

The Weir Frog and Switch Company is considered one of the most up-to-date establishments for the manufacture of railroad, logging and coal mining equipment in the country.

URGES PACIFIC OIL BASES.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 9 (AP).—A declaration that Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, and San Francisco Bay naval bases should be developed regardless of what is sacrificed on the Atlantic Coast, was contained in a report sent at his request to Senator William H. King, Utah, last night by W. B. Shearer, experimental expert for the Navy during the World War.

In his letter Mr. Shearer said: "The Special Board on Shore Establishments, of which Admiral Hugh Rodman is senior member, said the bases, in the order in which they should be developed, are San Francisco Bay, Puget Sound, the New York-Narragansett Bay Region, Chesapeake Bay, Canal Zone and Hawaiian Islands."

Mr. Shearer in his own report declared:

"San Francisco and Pearl Harbor bases should be developed regardless of what is sacrificed on the Atlantic Coast. If there is further need for more economy, then the navy yards should build their own ships.

"Also considering the exceptionally large fuel shipments to Japan, something should be done to store navy fuel oil at strategic points on the Pacific."

CORN WELL ADVANCED.

Crop Cut Down by Drought, However, and Oats Are Moving Fast.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—The corn situation is mixed. The crop has been cut down by drought and heat. It is well advanced toward maturity, and farmers who are satisfied with their prospective yields are more disposed to sell their old grain. The movement the past week was the lightest at this time of year in more than five years. There has been heavy selling of corn against purchases of wheat, the spread being a most profitable one, and within a few days, many of these spreads have been closed. The new crop futures are strictly a short sale, while the September is an old crop delivery and good cash premiums are being paid. The visible supply has been reduced to a low figure and further reductions are predicted by cash handlers.

The low price of new crop futures has induced cash handlers to offer corn abroad for January-February shipment, and some business has been done.

Oats are moving faster than last year, with primary receipts of 9,726,000 bushels, against 4,368,000 bushels last year. Cash hedgers in the North and Northwest are selling on all bulges, while the general speculative buying is light. A little more interest is noticeable in rye, but there is no enthusiasm in the trade.

NEW NATIONAL CITY BRANCH

The National City Bank, the largest financial institution in the United States, will further extend its service today, when its new branch at Park Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street opens its doors for business. The establishment of this branch was decided on in recognition of the increasing importance and rapid growth of the section as a retail trade and residential centre of the city.

The complete facilities of the National City organization will be made available to clients of the branch and special attention will be paid to the women's department, recently placed under the supervision of Mrs. William Laimbeer. The building, upon which the bank has taken a twenty-year lease, has been extensively remodeled to meet banking requirements. This is the seventh branch to be established by the National City Bank since its decision to carry its banking service beyond Wall Street.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Charles Smithers of F. S. Smithers & Co. has gone to Colorado Springs for a short vacation and later will visit the properties of the Marland Oil Company and attend the midyear meeting of directors to be held in Ponca City, Okla.

David Newberger has been admitted to partnership in the firm of Samuel Newberger & Co., auditors and accountants, 38 Park Row. F. D. Lehn has withdrawn as a partner, but will continue as manager of the tax department.

Benjamin D. Mosser and George C. Cutler Jr., partner of Edward B. Smith & Co., have sailed for a month's business trip in England and Germany.

Chester L. Mays has become associated with Sanford & Lee, Inc., and will manage their city sales department.

The Seaboard National Bank of the City of New York has been appointed registrar of preferred and common stock of the Interstate Elevator Corporation, also agent to receive and transfer subscription warrants and to receive subscriptions for new common stock of the Glidden Company.

BUSINESS IN THE WEST CONTINUES TO IMPROVE

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—The business for the week made gains over the previous week and last year, creating a more healthy situation and increasing optimism as to the future among trade leaders. The West has plenty of money, farmers are getting good prices for their grains, especially wheat, and are not selling as readily as last year. More orders for dry goods and miscellaneous merchandise were received last week and showed an increase over last year. The steel industry is making gains in new tonnage and with operating capacity enlarged shipments are liberal and the amount of unfilled tonnage is not showing increases in comparison with the amount of business booked.

The outstanding feature was the appearance of railroads as buyers of cars and a reopening of the Southern Illinois coal mines after a long shutdown; also the increase in building activities during July. Permits in Chicago were valued at $216,742,500 and for the State of Illinois $325,000,000, showing heavy gains over last year. More steadiness in values was also featured.

A shortage in the fruit crop is reflected in slowness among manufacturers of containers. Manufacturing capacity has increased materially in the last few years and there is not enough business to go around when crops are short. Labor conditions in Illinois are practically unchanged as to seasonal activities, showing an increase over the previous month.

Money is plentiful in the West, with call rates 3¾ to 4 per cent. and time funds plentiful at 4¼ to 5¼ per cent. Loans of the Seventh Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago decreased and deposits increased, making the ratio of reserve 79 per cent., against 77.3 per cent. the previous week.

U. S. RUBBER REPORTS INCREASE IN EARNINGS

Balance After Preferred Dividends Is Equal to $4.03 a Share on Common Stock.

C. B. Seger, Chairman of the Board of the U. S. Rubber Company, in the semi-annual report of the company made public last night, stated that net income available for dividends was $5,875,204, an increase of $1,452,717 or 32.85 per cent over the same period last year. After preferred dividends the balance was $3,270,804, equal to $4.03 a share on the $81,000,000 of common stock for the period ended June 30. This compares with $2.04 for the first half of 1924.

In reporting sales of $92,503,127 for the six months, a gain of $14,755,431, or 18.97 per cent, Mr. Seger said that the increase had resulted principally from an increase in the unit sales of tires, the average selling price being lower than in the six months of last year. Sales of other products of the company were described as satisfactory.

On June 30 the company had current assets of $124,073,421, including cash of $9,582,328, accounts receivable, $47,514,333, and inventories, $66,976,760. Current liabilities were $17,751,028. There were no bank loans.

In his letter to stockholders accompanying the report, Mr. Seger said that the high price of crude rubber had resulted in substantial increase of profits of the plantation properties of the company. Contractual liabilities representing forward commitments for raw materials and supplies were at prices substantially below market values and as to quantity, covered requirements for substantial periods.

14,026 COMPANIES GET CHARTERS IN 7 MONTHS

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Aug. 9.—There were 2,032 more stock companies incorporated from Jan. 1 to Aug. 1 of this year than in the corresponding period in 1924, according to a statement issued by Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, Secretary of State, showing the activities of the corporation bureau of her office. Up to Aug. 1 this year 14,026 stock companies were chartered. The statement shows that from Jan. 1 to Aug. 1 receipts of the bureau were $2,461,619.56, an increase of $1,146,473.18 over the receipts for the first seven months of 1924.

Receipts from organization taxes for July alone were $553,557 and the organization tax amounted to $471,248.20. Filing fees amounted to $76,114. In July of last year the receipts to the bureau were $146,201.

July receipts established a new record and exceeded those of April by approximately $32,000. Of the 1,887 stock companies that received charters in July from the Secretary of State's office, 1,620 gave New York as their principal office. The other 267 were scattered over the remainder of the State, Erie County leading with 67 and Westchester following with 49.

Real estate and construction companies continue to lead, and during July 498 were incorporated. Fourteen radio companies and twenty-four motion picture concerns also were chartered.

MAHOGANY IS IMPORTANT.

Economic Life of British Honduras Depends Largely Upon It.

So important is the trade in mahogany to British Honduras, according to Vice Consul E. A. Bonnet, Belize, that the economic life of the region depends almost entirely upon it. The unusual importance of this single industry over a long period of time has affected the business practices of the community. The colony was settled and established by wood cutters, who were attracted by the richness of the tropical forests. It is certain, Mr. Bonnet tells the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, that mahogany has been exported from the country for more than 200 years and, since the decline in the value of logwood, has been the chief product.

"Transportation between Belize and other ports on the coast of British Honduras and the mahogany-producing areas in the interior is restricted to shallow-river craft and pack mules," Mr. Bonnet reports. "There are no vehicle roads or railways in the colony over which mahogany logs can be transported, or by which the necessary supplies for the logging camps can be taken. Supplies are handled by the river boats.

"The mahogany logs must be felled in the dry season, trucked or skidded by cattle teams to the banks of one of the streams and driven to the sea on the first flood. The loose logs are collected at booms near the mouth of the river, rafted, and towed to the steamer in open bay which is to deliver them at the seaboard market in the United States or England.

"The uncertainty of the floods occasion great losses to the mahogany contractors and to the exporters. When the rains break, usually the first or second week in June, there appears a tension in Belize, which does not disappear until word is received that the mahogany logs are in the booms. The several important rivers have been known to rise forty feet and return to normal within less than twenty-four hours. Unless sufficient men are on hand when the flood comes, so that the loose logs can be driven down midstream, the rapidly falling waters of the rivers, which have inundated the country for miles on either side of the low river banks, will deposit a part or all of the drive so far from the normal river bed that the logs can never be recovered. These losses are nominally borne by the 'contractors' and not by the exporting lumber companies."

REFUSED TO BE EVICTED.

Vera Cruz Red Union Members Reenter Homes After Police Go.

VERA CRUZ, Aug. 9 (AP).—Eviction by force of arms of tenants in this city appears to have been a failure. Landlords, who were unable to secure rent from members of the Union of Red Tenants, who for several years had refused to pay, obtained a dispossess notice from the court.

Policemen were sent to evict the tenants, but without avail, the tenants refusing to leave even when the police began to fire into the air.

Wherever the tenants were officially evicted they returned to the homes as soon as the police had left the scene.

CHEAP FERTILIZER SOON

Du Pont Plant Will Develop Process, Now Used on a Large Scale in Germany.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—To Chester A. Penning, a young chemist connected with the Tariff Commission as an expert, was attributed today the discovery of a seized German patent, owned by the Chemical Foundation, under which preparations are being made to manufacture a new and cheap motor fuel of great power, which is free from the dangers attached to tetraethyl lead and is to be used also as the basis for a cheap fertilizer.

Full credit for discovering the great value of the German patent was given by an official of the Chemical Foundation to Mr. Penning. According to this official's statement, the initial step which led to the discovery was taken by C. R. De Long, chief chemist of the Tariff Commission, who realized that the commission would soon be urged to increase tariff rates under the flexible tariff system on methanol and decided to begin a preliminary investigation concerning its production in this country. This realization was the outgrowth of recent German exportation to the United States of methanol produced by a new synthetic process and known as synthol, carried out so cheaply that it probably would put the wood distillation industry of this country out of business.

Mr. De Long, it was said, assigned to this investigation his young associate, Mr. Penning, who discovered in the Patent Office a German patent obtained prior to the entrance of the United States into the World War, which he believed was the basis of the German process. Other material was gathered from the Patent Office files by Mr. Penning. When a representative of the Chemical Foundation called on him one day to discuss wood alcohol processes Mr. Penning mentioned the German patent, known officially as No. 1,201,850. The Chemical Foundation's representative called the office of the Foundation in New York on the telephone and ascertained that this patent was owned by the foundation. As a result of this investigation experiments were conducted which are expected to result soon in the production of the new cheap motor fuel and a cheap fertilizer.

Plant to Make Fertilizer.

It is the understanding in informed quarters here that the du Pont Company, which obtained a license to produce under the seized German patent, undertook to begin operations in a plant at Clinchfield, W. Va., but abandoned that intention and is erecting a "pilot" factory at Charleston in that State for the manufacture of synthetic methanol. This plant, it is understood here, is to be used eventually by the du Pont Company for the production of fertilizer at a cost which will materially reduce its price to the farmer. Seven other chemical manufacturing concerns have obtained licenses to manufacture under the new process. The fixed nitrogen laboratory of the Department of Agriculture has been doing much research work on the process hoping to benefit the farmer by obtaining a cheaper fertilizer and the information obtained is at the disposal of any concern which desires to undertake manufacturing. The fixed nitrogen laboratory made so much progress that in the past year its chemical engineers and chemists have designed and superintended the construction of a synthetic ammonia plant at Seattle which is now being operated successfully in the production of fertilizer.

An editorial article in the Aug. 1 number of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry, published by the American Chemical Society, with Harrison E. Howe as editor, contains this statement:

"Information reaches us that the present production of synthetic methanol in Germany is calculated at about 1,000 tons monthly, and that the Oppau plant is to go on a commercial production basis. By Autumn it is expected that production will reach 2,000 tons monthly, making an estimated total for 1925 of 15,000 tons. Of this at least one-third will be used by the I. G. and, thanks to the reduced cost of this raw material, it will give them an advantage in the cost of producing methyl dyestuffs. It is claimed that the production costs are now about 13 per cent. of the cost of methanol by the wood distillation process. Indeed it is stated that at one plant the cost has been reduced to 3 cents per kilogram."

Fifteen thousand tons of methanol is equal to 5,000,000 gallons, or more than half the amount of methanol produced in this country now by wood distillation. With the increased German production of 2,000 tons a month, the production in 1926 should be 8,000,000 gallons, which is more than the United States produces now by wood distillation. It is probable also, it was said here today, that in 1926 the Germans will be obliged to compete with synthetic methanol produced in this country, as the du Pont Company expectes to be able to produce it.

Simple Method of Manufacture.

The new synthetic methanol is produced by forcing hydrogen and carbon monoxide under high pressure into a copper-lined vessel which is heated to a high temperature. In this vessel is what is known as a catalyst of zinc oxide. This zinc oxide catalyst, for some reason yet unknown to chemistry, causes a large part of the gases to combine into methanol which is passed through a condenser and liquefied. The uncombined gases automatically are carried back to the copper-lined vessel and a large part of them combined into methanol. The process is automatic and continuous, so that very little human labor is required. Once the machinery begins to operate efficiently the plant, it is claimed, "almost operates itself."

It has been known in chemical circles for several months, it was said today, that the du Pont Company was conducting extensive research work in synthetic ammonia and synthetic methanol in the belief that in the next five years synthetic ammonia for use as a cheap fertilizer and synthetic methanol for use as a cheap motor fuel would be the two most important chemical compounds in this country. This research work, it was said, has been done at Wilmington under the direction of Dr. A. T. Larson, formerly an expert in catalysts at the Government's Fixed Nitrogen Laboratory in Washington.

Largely as a result of the research work at Wilmington, the du Pont Company undertook the erection of the "pilot" plant at Charleston for making synthetic ammonia and methanol. It is not contemplated to employ synthetic methanol by itself as a motor fuel. The purpose is to combine it with some coal tar derivative. Those informed of what is being accomplished claim that it is quite certain that this will be the motor fuel of the future. The belief exists that this fuel combination will be produced at a price much lower than the present cost of gasoline.

The new motor fuel differs from lead tetraethyl in that it will be actual motor fuel itself, while lead tetraethyl is a liquid put into gasoline to give it greater power.

FEATURE WIDENING LINES.

Couturiers Abroad Lay Great Stress on Them in New Models.

Predominating throughout the current openings of the French couturiers is the note of insistence upon widening lines. From the house of Martial and Armand, the first emphatically to stress back fullness last season, comes news of additional developments of this theme. The apron tunic remains in front, but it now ties at the back with an exceedingly large bow, according to a bulletin issued yesterday by the fashion service department of the Botany Worsted Mills.

"In general," the bulletin continues, "the sponsors of the amplified silhouette recognize back fullness as of leading interest, and in the majority of houses it has been worked out with a smart intricacy which knows no bounds. With additional fabric for fashioning the garment, the devising of more attractive trimmings has also occupied the designers. The result is that seamings, cordings, quiltings, tuckings, appliques and modernistic embroideries add to the earlier impression of a greatly elaborated Winter mode.

"Where an apparently simplified style is submitted, an extreme fabric choice makes the appeal. Martial and Armand's use of metal kid as a foundation for chiffon frocks introduces this theory of novel combinations. Seaming and piping the bell silhouette from neck to hem is another illustration of elaborated simplicity.

"Godet fullness inserted at centre front or back is Patou's newer contribution to dresses. For fur coats there are circular panels set in below the knee. Agnes introduces a shirred, high-boned collar. Other 'full' details include numerous sleeve variations, and those of the Chinese balloon order are among the novel effects submitted. This house makes a specialty of flounced tiers.

"Straight loose lines which are fuller at the hem, lace flouncings and deep, swinging fringes characterize Phillip and Gaston's silhouette. Full circular capes are shown in the Lucien Lelong collection, among many other developments of fullness, while Miler Soeurs accent the capelet coat.

"Georgette presents as a special interpretation a bustle back fullness with bows and ends. One new presentation of front fullness by this house is that of a flat drapery running crosswise from the normal waistline to the hips, merging into the back drapery. This handling is repeated in a formal coat.

"Douillet introduces solid shirrings as a means to fullness, while Lenief offers a side flare with the noticeably higher waistlines that are repeatedly emphasized in various houses. Lucile's circular mode for formal wear is strengthened by the addition of voluminous evening capes in sumptuous fabric."

SILK METHODS IMPROVED.

Sericultural work in China has been taking remarkable forward steps in recent years, according to the Silk Association of America. That organization yesterday issued a review of the work being done to improve the quality of Chinese silks for the benefit of the manufacturing trade. It is notable, the review points out, that the work has not suffered materially because of the unsettled conditions.

"In spite of the political situation in China," the report continues, "the second cocoon crop at Canton Christian College has been about normal, according to advices received from Professor C. W. Howard, head of the sericultural department there. This is encouraging news to the American silk men, who have done a great deal to promote silk culture at this and other Chinese institutions. The student registration is growing yearly, which speaks well for the future of China's silk industry. Research work in reeling will soon be begun. The unsettled political situation, the excessive military taxation and the resultant strikes in the cocoon markets and on the boat lines along the canals, however, have made exports almost impossible.

"Equally favorable is the report from Professor J. H. Reisner, dean of the Agricultural College at Nanking, situated in the Yangtze Valley, where some of the highest grade silk is produced. The college has produced over 1,000,000 layings of selected silkworm eggs in the Spring crops, while the International Committee for the Improvement of Sericulture in China will probably distribute between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 layings to the farmers. The trouble in Shanghai has not disturbed the filatures, as they are owned mostly by the Chinese. There has been the same shipping trouble, however, and raw silk ready for shipment has accumulated at Shanghai. It will not move until shipping conditions are normal again.

"China with its great, rich river valleys, in which the mulberry tree flourishes, and with its immense population, demonstrates every year that it holds out the best opportunities for the expansion of silk culture. Although methods of cultivation and breeding of silkworms have been known for centuries in China, they have become antiquated and inefficient, and every year great quantities of raw silk are produced unsuitable for export, involving large economic losses.

"Anticipating the constantly increasing consumption of silk, the movement to extend the source of supply was begun by the Silk Association during the war. Their sericultural fund is now promoting silk culture through Canton Christian College, Nanking University, Fukien Christian College and the International Testing House at Shanghai."

LEATHER GOODS EXPORTS.

Those From U. S. In Last Fiscal Year Decline Somewhat.

Manufactured leather goods exported from the United States to foreign countries during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1925, were valued at $20,323,550, compared with $21,176,656 in 1924. Leather footwear represented $15,937,874 of the total; leather belting, $1,788,669; harness and saddlery, $547,150; bags and suitcases, $267,929; pocketbooks and purses, $188,642; leather gloves, $182,500, and miscellaneous articles, $1,410,786.

The quantity of leather footwear exported to foreign countries during the last two fiscal years shows little variation, having been 7,018,259 pairs in 1924 and 6,955,469 pairs in 1925. Of the 1925 exports, 2,662,048 pairs were shoes for men and boys and 2,504,442 pairs for women. As compared with 1924, the shoes for men and boys decreased about 300,000 pairs, while the exports of women's shoes increased 22.5 per cent.

The principal markets for leather boots and shoes for men and boys showing an increase in the quantity taken during 1925 were Panama, Mexico, Jamaica, Dominican Republic, Canada, and the Philippine Islands. Cuba purchased 1,467,011 pairs of men's and boys' shoes, or approximately 300,000 pairs less than during the corresponding period ended June, 1924.

The large increase in the exports of women's shoes was principally due to a greater demand in Cuba, Jamaica, Mexico, Panama, and the Dominican Republic. Sales to the United Kingdom and the Canadian markets show slight declines.

Italy to Study Albanian Oil Lands.

ROME, Aug. 9 (AP).—The Government has appropriated 30,000,000 lire (about $1,200,000 at present quotations), for study and exploitation work in the oil lands of Albania.

TRADE ASSOCIATIONS AID BUSINESS GROWTH

Consumers Are Also Benefitted Greatly by Manufacturers' Cooperation.

More than ever trade associations are playing a progressive rôle in the development of American industry, particularly in textile lines, according to Emil Zvirin, Secretary of the National Knitted Outerwear Association. He quoted yesterday the answer made to a question recently asked by a prominent business magazine: "What is the greatest recent development in the business world?" It was that the greatest factor aiding modern commerce to develop is the willingness of business men to join together to solve their common problems. They are in readiness to do any anything which will improve general business in their various industries.

"This readiness to cooperate has reacted to the benefit of not only the manufacturer," Mr. Zvirin added, "but of every link in the chain of commerce from the supplier of raw material to the ultimate consumer." Taking the activities of the National Knitted Outerwear Association as an example, he pointed out how this organization is working out many trade problems through cooperation and, at the same time, is benefitting the consumer.

"Our association," continued Mr. Zvirin, "recently issued over a million pamphlets to retailers throughout the country. This pamphlet, entitled 'How to Take Care of Your Knitted Outerwear,' was furnished to them without charge to be enclosed with every article of knitted outerwear they sold. It gave concise and simple directions on how to wash garments, whether of knitted woolen, worsted, silk or rayon yarns. By following the directions in this booklet, the consumer can measurably add to the life of every knitted garment purchased. At the same time the volume of returned goods is materially lessened, for often what may appear to be a defect in the goods is actually a fault arising from the fact that they have not been properly handled.

"Another very important recent undertaking by this association has been the standardization of sizes of various types of knitted outerwear. Up to this time when a man purchased a size forty bathing suit, for instance, he was never sure whether it would fit. With the final adoption of the standard sizes proposed by this association, however, when a man goes into a shop and asks for a size forty bathing suit, he can be certain that it will be the size ordered and no other.

"Definite measurements are being established for every size of garment, and every garment conforming to these standards will bear a label stating that it conforms to the standard measurements determined by the United States Bureau of Standards and the National Knitted Outerwear Association. This standardization of sizes is merely the first step in establishing knitted garment standards, for in the course of time similar standards for raw material, dyes and other requisites will be adopted by our members.

"Another important service rendered the consumer is the educational work carried on by us in cost accounting. Instead of a manufacturer purposely adding a larger per cent. to what he roughly figures to be his cost of manufacturing so as to feel sure he is safely covered, the mill man today can accurately gauge his costs. Knowing that his figures are accurate, he can afford to add only a fair margin of profit, thus passing on the benefit of a lower price to the ultimate consumer.

"Especially noticeable in recent years has been the great diversity of style that has featured knitted outerwear. This variety has been due in part to the association's furnishing its members with periodical fashion reports covering the latest trend of styles in knitted outerwear, both in Europe and in the United States. Leading fashion experts—specialists in knitted outerwear—have prepared these reports for our members. They have illustrated these reports with photographs taken in Paris, showing the most original styles seen in European resorts.

"Still another field of endeavor has favored the purchaser of knitted outerwear. Through educational articles in our monthly bulletin, which is distributed to all manufacturing members, we have constantly kept before them the importance of properly dyeing their garments. Special literature has been issued showing the relative fastness to light and water of various shades. We have shown the manufacturer that from the customer's point of view a most important factor in holding his trade and keeping him satisfied with his purchases of knitted outerwear is to see that he gets garments which will retain their fresh and colorful appearance over a period of time.

"Perhaps the most important point to emphasize in summarizing the activities of our association is the fact that the national office constantly keeps in mind how it can best instil confidence in our product in the mind of the ultimate consumer—how the demand for our product can be increased and sustained. We recognize that the success of the business of our members depends on what the customer thinks of our product, so all our activities are aimed at educating the manufacturer to make up goods which will live up to our association motto, 'Knitted Outerwear Deserves the Preference.'"

BUYERS NOT TO BLAME.

Limited Purchasing Is Less Dangerous Than Overproduction.

The piecemeal buying policy that is being pursued by so many representative retailers during the current season does not react unfavorably upon manufacturers who exercise care in making their production plans, according to Louis J. Mallas of the Mallas-Cravis Dress Company. Mr. Mallas said yesterday that it was quite common in the ready-to-wear industry for manufacturers and stockhouse men to deplore the retailers' hand-to-mouth purchasing, which has supplanted their practice of buying heavily in the early part of the season. He added that wholesalers were helped rather than injured by the new policy.

"There is nothing to be feared by capable producers in the tendency of retailers to buy ready-to-wear in small but frequent instalments," Mr. Mallas continued. "It is true that many manufacturers have been disappointed by the comparatively small volume of early season business, but this is due as much to their too optimistic expectations as it is to current business conditions.

"Manufacturers are not compelled to begin operating on a large scale at the outset of the season. This was advisable when buyers were eager for merchandise and hurried to the market in the early part of the season to make substantial commitments. During the war and just after it, for example, retailers feared a shortage of desirable goods and hastened to protect themselves against it.

"This situation, of course, has been radically changed. Instead of a dearth of goods there has been something of a surplus, although desirable apparel at a fair price can always find a market. Some producers have been slow to recognize the vastly altered situation. They have acted as though they momentarily expected a resumption of the hectic prosperity of the war, and they have hesitated to readjust their organizations to conform with the new conditions."

KLAN'S BIG RALLY ENDS WITH ORATORY

Speakers Denounce Catholics, Jews, Scientists, Bootleggers and Newspapers.

HUGE FIERY CROSS BURNED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9 (AP).—Preliminary to the conclusion of their demonstration at the national capital with the burning of a huge fiery cross on the Virginia side of the Potomac River tonight, a speech-making rally was held late today by the Ku Klux Klan at the Arlington Horse Show grounds.

Earlier in the day a small delegation of Klansmen placed wreaths of red roses on the tomb of the unknown soldier and the grave of William Jennings Bryan in the Arlington National Cemetery.

Klan orators—John E. Gulledge of Columbus, Ohio, and the Rev. Thomas Calvin Jones of the Methodist Protestant Church of Odenton, Md.—roused the Klansmen to cheers with their criticisms of Catholics, Jews, scientists and newspapers. They also assailed bootleggers, gamblers and traducers of women, and called upon the Klansmen to "rally around the foot of the cross," assuring them they would not fail in their mission.

At one point in his speech Mr. Gulledge vigorously assailed newspapers which, he charged, had printed unfair accounts of the Klan and its activities.

Sees Too Many Religions.

"The difficulty with the world is that it is cursed with too many religions and lacks the religion of the Lord Jesus Christ," Mr. Gulledge declared. "We say to our enemies, 'We hate you not; we love you. But, for the love of God, come to the foot of the cross.'"

Mr. Jones advocated a law for the District of Columbia to prevent the intermarriage of negroes and white persons, and closed by saying:

At the close of the speeches an invitation was extended for new members and a group of men and women responded. They were marched down front into a circle formed by Klansmen holding hands.

"America" With New Music.

The assemblage was opened with the singing of the words of "America" to new music, composed for the Klan, the song leader explaining that the purpose of the change was to eliminate the tune of "God Save the King," for which the lines were originally written. He said that the Klan preferred to sing the song to an American tune, since it was an American song, written about America and was sung by Americans.

The tune was new to the crowd and was not readily grasped, however, so the song was sung later with the usual music.

The singing of "Onward, Christian Soldiers" followed, and then the Rev. Mr. Gulledge offered a prayer for the success of the Klan. A Klan song, "The Old Rugged Cross," followed.

The crowd was warned "to keep your hands on your pocketbooks, as the operations of pickpockets have been reported."

PLATON RE-ENTERS RUSSIAN CATHEDRAL

Archbishop Platon, Metropolitan of North America, recently reinstalled as head of the Russian Orthodox Church here after Bishop Adam Philippovsky had been ousted, conducted a rededication ceremony yesterday morning at the Russian Orthodox Cathedral, 15 East Ninety-seventh Street. The service was attended by the deacons of the cathedral and twenty-five visiting clergymen from near-by States.

The ceremonies began at 10 o'clock with a prayer on the street in front of the cathedral. The congregation of 1,500 persons crowded the middle of the street and both sidewalks, standing bareheaded while Archbishop Platon led the prayer. At its conclusion the Archbishop, attended by the visiting clergymen in their vestments, proceeded to the centre door of the cathedral carrying in his right hand the gold cross with which he blessed the congregation. The congregation entered the church and knelt while another prayer was said.

Archbishop Platon, followed by the dignitaries, moved slowly through the cathedral, scattering holy water on the floor and on the altar. He then opened the "Ikonostas" door, which leads to the altar, and blessed the bare altar. The deacons spread altar cloths, ikons and lighted candles on the altar in preparation for the mass. During the ceremony the cathedral choir of thirty-five voices, which had not sung since Archbishop Platon left the cathedral several weeks ago, sang under the direction of the very Rev. Peter Popoff.

When the mass began half the congregation remained on the street, since the cathedral was taxed to capacity by an influx of out-of-town visitors.

While the service was going on, Carlo Capovitch of 132 East 100th Street, an adherent of Bishop Philippovsky, was ejected from the cathedral by Patrolmen Stio, King and Ferey of the East 104th Street Sation, under Sergeant T. V. Hall. A little later the police ejected another man who caused a slight disturbance.

The Very Rev. Vassili Lysenkovsky read an address prepared by Archbishop Platon for his congregation, explaining the cause of the recent dispute between Bishop Philippovsky and himself over the rightful leadership of the Russian Church.

After thanking the loyal members of his congregation for their support, the statement said contributions had been sent to the cathedral from all over the country with letters pleding support to Archbishop Platon. The Archbishop, it was announced, had already taken steps to charter the cathedral under the name of the Russian American Orthodox Church, to prevent its seizure by the Soviet Government if the United States recognizes that Government. The church is totally independent of the Russian Government.

Civil proceedings have been started by Archbishop Platon through the attorney for the cathedral, George Gordon Battle, to recover property valued at $1,335, said to have been missing from the church after Bishop Adam Philippovsky and his aids evacuated it. A convention of Russian clergymen will be held at the cathedral on August 12.

BUILDERS CYNICAL ON WAGE ADVANCES

Speculators Profess to See Benefits to Them in Adding to Construction Costs.

Queer cores have come from test borings driven into the New York building investment market to find out how much more cost-load construction in general is willing to bear, writes Allen E. Beals in the current Dow Service Daily Building Reports.

Building trades wage readjustments are due to be made before Dec. 31, 1925. Employes in the electrical trades have already put in their demand for an increase from the present rate of $10.50 a day to $12.

This is a sort of forerunner of what all the other building trades workers will demand, and unless there is a compensating decline in the cost of basic building materials, the granting of increases in wages to building trades employes will undoubtedly mark up the cost of construction.

The question of the day is, therefore, how much farther is the building investor willing to go in carrying ascending construction costs. Furthermore, is the recent slump in the projection of building enterprises a silent protest against cost levels that now promise to rise instead of fall; the more distant the war-time influences become.

Investigation reveals that building trades employes recall, in looking back over the history of wage contests in the building trades to the panic of 1907, during which the "labor-must-be-liquidated" cry was raised that not a single building trades labor union in New York City reduced its wage scale, although the carpenters' union postponed its demands for an increase.

Union leaders now say that if they were successful in resisting wage cuts under the conditions existing in the panic of 1907 it is not reasonable to assume that cuts will occur at a time when building money is more readily obtainable than it ever has been, when both contractors and employes are prosperous, and when many of the employers have obligations running far into 1926 and 1927.

The skilled building artisan recalls, also, that when wages were only half what they now are employers said that if they granted the increases then asked for they would be ruined and building construction would stop. Subsequent events have proved that the employers have prosperously survived and that the living conditions of the workers have been considerably improved.

The viewpoints of the building speculator, however, give an entirely different cross section of today's building perspective, if the following is typical of the attitude of any considerable group:

"If the wages of building trades employes are raised again or material costs are advanced once more, any building I put up will represent that much greater value as a resale proposition or it can be made to return greater rental for me."

Another angle was revealed by an independent speculative builder in these words:

"I should worry about wage increases to workers in the building industry. I come into the market for a building. I buy labor and materials in large lots and figure out what I consider to be a safe gamble on how much time it will take to change these commodities into four walls, a roof and a given number of floors which I rent or sell at a profit. The charge on me for labor and materials does not last as long as does the income from the structure they put up for me, so no matter what the building costs me, I pass it along and the problems of the building industry when I get through with it do not concern me. Why not, therefore, let the men have more money and keep them from having strikes that keep buildings from being finished on time?"

The independent contractor says: "Why should I be the eternal guardian of the public's pursestrings? I stand the strain of battle so that the owner can get the benefit. It is my job to keep the owner from getting held up on his operation, but when his job is struck he is the first one to propose a separate settlement, indifferent to the precedents it establishes for complete disruption of the building construction industry.

"On the other hand, I work for an owner probably once in all my business career. Should the same owner come back into the market the fact that I have done a good job for him is lost sight of by the counteracting fact that some other person is in authority, and, being mindful of the owner's desire to keep costs low, accepts the bid of a competing contractor who, needing the job in order to keep his organization together in a slack time, cuts the profit out of the operation and takes a chance on getting some of it back on extras.

"What thanks does the public give me, the typical building contractor, for fighting to keep down the wages of the men who work for me? If a building in New York is badly needed enough it will be built, no matter what it costs, so why not give the men what they want?"

The organized conservative contractor counters, however, with this: "When the time comes when the public gets tired of paying rents and buying property based upon constantly increased costs, the reaction hits every one alike—owner, architect, builder, banker, broker, general contractor, sub-contractor, material dealer and manufacturer, journeyman, helper and common laborer. The public cannot be called up on the telephone or written to in order that his opinion may be obtained in advance of action. It is our job to act first and learn afterward whether the public indorses or condemns our action.

"Sometimes the public gives an indication of its wishes before hand. It is then our duty to interpret the signs. The public speaks in decisive language when it does speak. It simply stops building, buying and trading. It is already slowing down on building. Shall we interpret that fact as a mere incident, a quirk of the times, or is it the handwriting on the wall warning against a further advance in building costs?"

COMMUTERS' APPEAL IS SENT TO ALBANY

Rehearing on the New Haven Rate Increase Sought at an Early Date.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Aug. 8.—The Westchester commuters on the New Haven Railroad, through Corporation Counsel Charles A. Van Auken of New Rochelle, forwarded by mail to Albany today their petition to the Public Service Commission for a rehearing of the New Haven commutation rate increase. Mr. Van Auken drafted the application in consultation with Milo R. Maltbie, traction expert and former Public Service Commissioner.

The petition is made by Frank J. Hermes and C. Le Roy Dennis, commuters, on behalf of themselves and other commuters of New Rochelle, Mount Vernon, Port Chester, Rye, Harrison, Mamaroneck, Larchmont, Pelham and North Pelham, and also on official behalf of the towns of Harrison and Mamaroneck. They request a rehearing on the 40 per cent. rate increase at an early date.

The grounds for asking a rehearing were published yesterday.

Face Brick fireplaces, sun parlor floors, garden walls, walks and terraces add charm to the house, and they are not expensive. If you are thinking of building you will find many helpful suggestions in our booklet "Hytex Brick." Send for a copy.

Hy-tex

The Standard of Quality in Brick

THE Hy-tex organization has been building its reputation for quality, service and fair dealings for more than fifty years. The Hy-tex policy of giving every customer complete satisfaction has made Hy-tex the largest Face Brick organization in the world.

In buying Hy-tex Brick you do business with the manufacturer, who is directly responsible to you.

We invite anyone interested in Face Brick to visit our Exhibit Room to see wall sections of Hy-tex Brick in all colors and textures; and to discuss their building problems.

AUTOMATIC
PRINTING-TELEGRAPHY.

Automatic telegraphy is a varied, pleasing occupation, especially suitable for young women, although many young men find it the foundation for permanent and progressive employment. It offers a more dependable and remunerative livelihood than the majority of stenographic positions. The work is a combination of typing and proof reading, with miscellaneous features. The personnel has been carefully chosen. The educational requirements are not great, but a quick and thoughtful mind is necessary. During the training period of a few weeks the student earns enough to be self-supporting. Upon graduation the beginning wage is $18 a week, increasing to $25 and $30 per week, depending upon the aptitude and qualifications of the operator. Supervisory positions are invariably filled by promotion of operators.

MINIMUM age 17 years. Maximum 25.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 9.—Pressure is relatively high over Saskatchewan, the Northern Plain States and the Northern Rocky Mountain region and off the South Atlantic Coast, and it is low over practically all other sections with centres of minimum pressure over Western Quebec, Texas and the interior of California. This pressure distribution has been attended by local showers within the last twenty-four hours in the Atlantic and East Gulf States, the northern and eastern lake region, the Southern Rocky Mountains and South Plateau regions, Arkansas, Oklahoma and the Lower Mississippi Valley. Elsewhere fair weather has prevailed.

The temperature has risen in the upper lake region, the Ohio and middle Mississippi Valleys and in Saskatchewan, and it has fallen in Colorado and along the North Pacific Coast.

The indications are for mostly fair weather Monday and Tuesday east of the Mississippi River, except that showers are probable in New England on Monday and local thunder showers Monday and Tuesday in portions of the South Atlantic and East Gulf States. The temperatures will not change materially during the next two days.

COUNTRY-WIDE WEATHER CONDITIONS.

In the following record of observations at United States Weather Bureau stations yesterday the temperatures given are the highest during the twelve hours from 8 A. M. to 8 P. M. and the lowest during the preceding twelve hours from 8 P. M. to 8 A. M.; the barometer reading and condition of weather are those recorded at 8 P. M., and the rainfall is for the twenty-four hours ended at 8 P. M.

ARRESTED ON THE ADRIATIC.

U. S. Agents Seize Alleged Bail-Jumper, Deported by England.

When the White Star liner Adriatic anchored off the Quarantine Station, Staten Island, yesterday afternoon she was boarded by an agent of the United States Department of Justice, who took into custody William Carlon, alias William Harris, 32 years old, of 45 Strute Place, Minneapolis. Carlon had been deported by the British authorities as an undesirable.

United States Marshal Hyer and J. D. Sullivan, personnel officer of the Federal Narcotic Bureau at Washington, boarded the Adriatic at the foot of West Twentieth Street and arrested Carlon, who they declared was a fugitive from justice. He had jumped his bail of $5,000 while under indictment for violation of the Narcotic act at Minneapolis, it was charged. Carlon was taken to the Tombs for the night and will go West today.

FIRE IN SHIP OFFICE.

Fire yesterday, said to have been caused by defective wiring, in the office occupied jointly by the Admiral-Oriental Line, the Pacific Steamship Company and the Dollar Steamship Line, on the third floor of the building at 32 Broadway, caused approximately $1,500 damage.

The fire was discovered by Paul Ruhle, an employe of The Associated Press, who turned in an alarm.

An invitation to the physicians of Greater New York

THE BRONX BATHS have been given the exclusive rights in Greater New York, to the famous Mt. Clemens Mineral Baths and Treatments. These Treatments, as given at the Bronx Baths' splendid institution, at 163rd Street and Westchester Avenue, consists of 21 baths in a solution of the authentic Mt. Clemens Minerals, the free use of Mt. Clemens Mineral Water for drinking, and massages in and out of the tubs—all under the supervision of a competent house physician, and graduate and registered nurses.

We can definitely state that these baths, given here in New York, give exactly the same results as if taken in Mt. Clemens. We invite you to inspect the Bronx Baths, to inspect the Mt. Clemens department—and to assure yourself of the wisdom of sending patients here, for the same treatments for which you would ordinarily send them to Mt. Clemens, Michigan. For here, the treatments cost only $105.00 complete—$5 a treatment—a fraction of what the same treatment would cost at Mt. Clemens.

TO THE PUBLIC: You will find the modernly-equipped BRONX BATHS a delightful place in which to obtain the benefits of the Mt. Clemens treatments. The many patients who have already taken treatments here bear tangible witness to almost miraculous results. Write — or phone KILPATRICK 7564 for FREE booklet, or, better still — come in!

"National City" Service—
Now at Park Avenue and 57TH Street

FOUNDED 1812

Today The National City Bank of New York opens the doors of the seventh place of business in New York City (exclusive of Head Office) where "National City Banking and Investment Service" is available. This new location is at the intersection of two of America's great business and residential thoroughfares—Park Avenue and 57th Street. When you pass by, or when you come in—as we hope you will—you will notice that it does not look like the ordinary place where banking business is conducted. That, however, is because we are trying to make our uptown branch offices look like any store or place of business making a frank bid for the custom and trade of those interested in goods or service. In our case, it is service rather than goods that we are merchandising.

"Service" is a much over-worked word. It can mean much or little depending both on the ability and the willingness of an institution to actually render it. What do we mean by "National City" Service? Perhaps we can best explain what we mean by listing below a few of the many questions we are called upon to answer in the ordinary routine of a business day. You are quite sure to find among them one or more of especial personal interest.

Answer: We welcome checking accounts with a minimum balance as low as $500 and initial deposits in amounts as low as $1 in our Compound Interest Department. Interest is compounded in this department twelve times a year on balances of $5 and over.

Q: Can you obtain a quotation for me on some bonds that I own which are only listed, I believe, on the Argentine Stock Exchange?

A: We can secure this quotation for you direct from our Branch in Buenos Aires.

Q: Do you maintain a Women's Banking Department at your uptown branches?

A: We do, especially organized and equipped to assist women in the care of their personal and household funds, the handling of their investment accounts, and the balancing of their budgets.

Q: Can any National City Company office inform me quickly what bonds, if any, on my list have been called?

A: Yes. (The National City Company, closely affiliated with The National City Bank, will occupy part of the space at the new Park Avenue office, and it's organization at that location will have a direct tie-up with the more than fifty City Company offices in the leading financial centers of the United States and Canada.)

Q: Do you keep customers who may be interested in certain foreign countries, posted as to happenings of business interest to them, such as tax legislation, et cetera?

A: We do. We have frequently saved clients time and embarrassment by such notification.

Q: Can you arrange to pay a small bill which I have received from Calcutta, India, for goods shipped to me from there?

A: We can, either by selling you a draft drawn on Calcutta, or if you want the bill paid promptly, we can pay it by cable through the I. B. C. branch in Calcutta. (The International Banking Corporation, referred to as I. B. C., is owned by The National City Bank of New York, and is the only American bank operating throughout the Orient.)

Q: Can the National City furnish credit information to its customers on the principal firms and leading individuals in all cities where it has branches?

A: Yes. The National City Bank's credit files are the most complete in the country.

Q: Can I make arrangements to have you pay the salaries of my representatives abroad on a given day each month?

A: Yes, in any of the 74 cities where the Bank and the I. B. C. have branches.

Q: Can I deposit in any of your offices money to the credit of my Compound Interest Department account?

A: You can.

Q: Can you supply me monthly with a list of bonds you recommend for investment?

A: The National City Company, whose sole business is the buying and selling of investment securities, issues a monthly circular listing a broad selection of offerings suited to widely varying requirements. This circular will be mailed to you regularly upon request.

Q: As a customer in your Compound Interest Department, can I have my signature verified by you to effect the sale of a registered bond?

A: We will gladly verify your signature and effect the sale for you.

Q: What are some of the most important services your Trust Department can render me as an individual, or my company as a corporation?

A: The Trust Department of this Bank is authorized to serve the individual as executor under a will, trustee under a will or deed, administrator of estates, guardian of the property of a minor and custodian of securities; and to serve corporations as trustee under stock issue and corporation mortgages, registrar of securities, transfer agent, fiscal agent and depositary.

Q: As I am planning a business trip pretty much all over the United States, can you furnish me with an introduction to leading bankers in different cities?

A: We have correspondent banks in over 1700 cities in the United States to whom we gladly give our customers letters of introduction.

Q: In making a tour of the world, can I arrange through you to have my mail forwarded so that I may collect it at scheduled stops on my itinerary?

A: Our branches together with more than 4000 correspondents, cover practically every port in the world, and we shall be glad to receive and forward mail for you.

Q: In connection with a contemplated trip to Cuba and South America, can you help schedule my itinerary and make my hotel reservations?

A: Yes.

Q: Will you permit me to make deposits by mail in my Compound Interest account?

A: Checks, coupons, money orders, etc., may be mailed without the necessity of sending your pass book each time.

Q: Can I arrange to have my employer withhold and deposit money to my account?

A: Our Compound Interest Department has a special system which your employer will be glad to introduce for the benefit of yourself and other employes.

Q: Do you own outright, and operate yourselves, the twenty-two branches which you have on the Island of Cuba?

A: We own and operate them ourselves. These Cuban branches are as much a part of The National City Bank of New York as is this new branch office at Park Avenue and 57th Street, and are backed by the bank's total resources of over One Billion Dollars.

Q: Can you give me information concerning the details involved in buying and paying for a shipment of goods from the Straits Settlements?

A: Full information on such a subject is obtainable through our Commercial Credit Department and from the I. B. C. which has a branch in Singapore.

Q: Can I transfer at any time, funds from my Compound Interest account to a checking account and vice versa?

A: Through I. B. C. branches in Spain, direct contact can be arranged.

A: A safe and convenient way is to use National City Travelers' Checks (issued in denominations up to $100) and National City Letters of Credit for larger amounts. The latter are in themselves an introduction to our foreign branches and more than 4,000 correspondents throughout the world.

If you have not found above the answer to some particular question regarding financial service, we would welcome the opportunity to discuss it with you. In fact, it is our sincere aim to render a financial service to business interests that will care for the maintenance of a sound current position, finance the movement of goods from any point to any point the world over, and assist in shaping a permanent financial structure, buying and distributing the securities that may be involved, and to render a financial service to the individual, which starting with the savings account carries through every phase of personal requirement to the point where the estate of the individual is administered.
